Inflation rate slows to 8.1%

OTTAWA (CP) — The cost of living rose last month at an annual rate of 8.1 per cent, the lowest 12-month inflation rate since June, 1977.

Government figures released today showed the annual inflation rate for July dropped from the June figure of 8.9 per cent in spite of a sharp increase in food prices and transportation costs.

The Statistics Canada consumer price index showed the cost of living during July increased by 0.8 per cent, a relatively steep monthly jump. By the time the July figure was combined with those of the previous 11 months, however, the annual increase in consumer prices appeared moderate.

Leading all other prices in increases was a 10.5-per-cent rise in transportation costs. This reflected both the initial impact of the July 1 $1-a-barrel increase in oil prices and higher prices for new North American cars.

Higher prices for fresh fruits and vegetables, beef, dairy products, cereal and eggs were chiefly to blame, Statistics Canada said.

This means a selection of typical consumer monthly purchases, which would have cost $100 in 1971, now costs $192.10. The price-tag for that same so-called basket of goods and services in June was $190.60.

In other words, a 1971 dollar last month had 52 cents worth of purchasing power.

Although some home-grown produce came on the market in July, many fresh fruits and vegetables such as apples were not locally available. Large monthly price increases were also reported for beef, fish and eggs.

The cost of buying a new car or truck last month was 13.2 per cent higher than one year earlier and the cost of running it was up 8.4 per cent.

Clothing prices rose last month at a rate of 9.6 per cent, health-care products were up 9.4 per cent and energy prices rose by 9.5 per cent.

Housing was one area where some relief was evident. Accommodation costs rose by 7.1 per cent last month, a more moderate increase than those reported for most other items. This has a signficant impact on the consumer price index because Statistics Canada assumes housing accounts for 34 per cent of the average person's monthly spending.

Canada's inflation rate is considerably less than that of the United States. The International Monetary Fund released figures this week showing that prices in the United States are 10.9 per cent above their 1978 level.

The Washington-based agency said Canada, Austria and the Netherlands were the only countries in the industrialized world not to face rapidly-rising prices so far this year.

Prime Minister Joe Clark and wife Maureen McTeer pause beside John Diefenbaker's coffin

Hundreds line to mourn

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Hundreds of mourners lined up at the House of Commons today to bid a final farewell to former prime minister John Diefenbaker.

His body will lie in state until Sunday, when it will be transported to its final resting place in Saskatchewan.

House of Commons janitors and security guards — the common people — were the first to pay final respects today.

Even before dignitaries and the general public arrived, House of Commons staff, who got to know Diefenbaker well over 40 years here, filed solemnly past his open casket near the Commons chamber he loved so well.

The coffin was draped with two flags, the old Red Ensign, which Diefenbaker had fought unsuccessfully to have kept as Canada's offical standard, and the new Maple Leaf flag introduced by Lester Pearson's Liberal administration.

The day dawned crisp and sunny as mourners made their way to pay their respects. Black and gray draping was placed in the entrances of the Peace Tower leading to the Centre Block of Parliament.

Cyclist killed

Dead is Diana Fournier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Fournier, of 995 Brookview Road.

Colwood RCMP said the girl was attempting to ride across the road in the 3400-block when she was struck.

Fares upset handicapped

As of Sept. 1 a round trip ride on an Easter Seal bus will cost $7, a hike of $4 over the present fare.

On Nov. 1 the fare will increase to $14, not including a 25 cents a mile extra charge for each mile beyond the four-mile downtown radius.

A spokesman for the Handicapped Recreation Society said Thursday the disabled community is furious about the proposed increases.

Many handicapped people will have few alternatives, since most are physically unable to use taxis, even if they could afford them, he said.

In Victoria, B.C. Hydro will equip its regular buses for wheelchairs, but only for a six-month experimental period in the Beacon Hill area.

The highest concentration of handicapped citizens live in a Saanich housing project where the buses do not run.

The news of the increases came in letters to the handicapped from the B.C. Lion's Society for Crippled Children.

STEPHEN

He had it all figured

He came home for lunch Wednesday to yet another figure — this time $650.

Israelis storm Lebanon town

BEIRUT (UPI) — Israeli commandos stormed into a southern Lebanese town today and Israeli and Lebanese rightist artillery bombarded a string of cities and towns along the southern coast, reports from the area said.

Beirut radio said 50 Israeli commandos invaded the town of Shakra, about five miles north of the Lebanese-Israeli border, searched several houses and blew up at least two of them.

It was the latest in a series of assaults in the region, apparently aimed at suspected Palestinian guerrilla positions. There were no immediate reports of casualties after the Israelis pulled out.

Israeli and rightist artillery fire, striking under an umbrella of Israeli reconnaissance warplanes, slammed into the southern port city of Tyre, suburban Bass and the town of Rashidiya just to the south, reports said.

The Palestine news agency WAFA said the heavy shelling began at 10:30 a.m. local time and was still going on three hours later. At least one woman was killed and another wounded, the agency added.

Israeli jets swept over southern Lebanon on low-altitude runs but did not attack.

Reporters on the scene said Israeli positions and Israeli-armed rightist militiamen inside southeast Lebanon unleashed 155-mm and 175-mm shell barrages against Palestinian-controlled towns including Nabatiyeh, Arnoun and Mahmoudiyeh.

2-month Alberni repairs

The bad news is now official.

The B.C. Ferry Corp. said Thursday that the Queen of Alberni, which ran aground a week ago in Active Pass, will be out of service for at least two months.

Mechanics at North Vancouver's Burrard Drydocks have finished examining the Alberni's engines and they report severe damage to the number two gear box, the corporation said.

The gear box will have to be removed and sent back to the factory in Germany for repairs. It then will have to be realigned with the engine.

However, airline spokesmen say the corporation may have trouble taking the 20-ton gear box overseas.

The spokesmen said most 747 jets can handle a maximum load of nine tons. While a spokesman for Flying Tigers air freight company said a special 747 could handle the gear box, he said the plane does not fly into Vancouver.

If the ferry corporation can get the box to Seattle the Flying Tigers may be able to fly it to New York, and from there maybe Lufthansa can take it to Germany, he said.

Ferry traffic between the island and mainland faced two and three-sailing waits Thursday.

Typhoon still flexing muscle

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Typhoon Irving, packing winds of 144 km/h, spared Shanghai but sideswiped Korea's southern coast today, killing at least two people. Three people were reported missing in the storm's wake.

The Korean Central Meteorological Station warned the storm could move inland off the Yellow Sea and hit the nation's western coast by tonight.

Irving dumped heavy rain on Cheju Island and other areas along Korea's southern coast Thursday and today, the station said.

Police said two people died and three others were missing.

At 3 p.m. Shanghai time, Irving was located about 81 miles west of the southwestern tip of the Korean peninsula, moving northeast at 21 km/h.

If the typhoon stays on its current course through the Yellow Sea, it is expected to land near Sosan, 104 km southwest of Seoul by evening and then cut across the Korean peninsula into the Sea of Japan, the station said.

Meteorological officials said Irving showing no signs of weakening.

Irving also dropped heavy rains on the western Japanese islands of Shikoku and Kyushu, disrupting air flights and ferry services as it moved north, Japan's meteorological authorities said. The agency warned residents in northern Kyushu against strong winds and heavy rains.

Firemen walk out

HALIFAX (CP) — Halifax's 271 firemen began walking off the job at 10:10 a.m. ADT today in the first firefighters' strike in the city's 230-year history.

Several hundred off-duty firemen who packed the local fighters' club applauded, pulled out picket signs and went to man the picket lines as Greg Smith, president of International Fire Fighters Association local 268, declared the strike was on.

Smith reiterated that the firemen will not fight any fire, even a major outbreak, during the strike.

"There is no point in our withholding our services and then telling the public we will fight a fire," he said in answer to a reporter's question. "We will not respond to any fire fighting situation."

Holdup in cab thwarted

A woman foiled an armed holdup early today when she flagged down a passing police car to report a city cab driver in trouble.

Police stopped the cab within a couple of blocks and arrested a man who was holding a knife to the driver's throat as he drove up Johnson Street.

City police said Esquimalt-Saanich cabbie Robert Chavenaile, 30, of 344 Vincent, picked up the man in View Royal about 1 a.m.

As the cab moved through the 600-block, the woman noticed something strange inside and flagged down a passing police car which caught up to the cab in the 1000-block Johnson.

The suspect gave up without a struggle and Chavenaile was unhurt.

Police are withholding the woman's name.

Police said the incident was the fourth armed or attempted armed robbery in the city within a week, all of which have led to arrests.

Shots warning as measles spread

Regional health officer Dr. A.S. Arneil said Thursday it is not an epidemic but Victorians should get their children immunized.

"These outbreaks are not necessarily all bad," said Arneil. "They act as reminders to people who forget that the disease is still around."

Arneil said it is a serious disease. Complications can include bronchial pneumonia, encephalitis, infected ears and loss of hearing. The death rate is one in a 1,000.

Vancouver's new medical health officer, Dr. David Kinloch, said there were more than seven times as many cases reported in Vancouver in the first six months of 1979 than during all of 1978.

"Practically none of these youngsters need have been infected if they had been immunized," he said. "Measles could be wiped out in a few years, as smallpox has, if all children were immunized as soon as they are a year old."

In Canada this year there were 16,265 cases of measles up to June 16 compared with 3,813 for the same period last year. In Vancouver there have been 148 cases compared with 20 in 1978.

Victoria's Arneil said it is difficult to get an accurate reading of the problem because many doctors do not report measles.

Kinloch, who took his position about a month ago, also said he is concerned about Vancouver's immunization record, partly because of the difficulty in obtaining accurate records.

"We have to find some way to persuade private practitioners to inform us when they do immunizations," he said. "It is also essential that each individual have a record of when and with what he (or) she has been immunized."

Accurate personal records are particularily important for those past the age of 20 because of changes in a number of vaccines, he said.

It has been found the first measles vaccines using dead virus only gave immunity for a limited time, he said. Now high school and college students are getting the disease in increased numbers.

Most of this year's cases have been in children about nine or 10.

Young tries to cool U.S. blacks' anger at his resignation

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — With Andrew Young taking the lead, the Carter administration is trying to ease the growing antagonism between blacks and Jews over Young's resignation as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

President Carter called Young Thursday morning to compliment him on the "gentlemanly" way he handled his resignation and to encourage the ambassador in his efforts to cool down the reaction among blacks, many of whom are bitterly blaming Israel for Young's fall.

"I think that it is clear that no reasonable and decent person would want that to be the result of what is already an unfortunate chain of circumstances," White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said.

Young resigned under fire on Wednesday after misleading the State Department about a secret meeting he held last month with a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization, a contact that violated U.S. policy.

The ambassador said at a New York news conference Thursday that after levelling with the Israelis about the meeting he had warned them that disclosure of the affair would create an "uproar that would provide among the blacks in the United States a constituency for the PLO that did not yet exist."

Within hours of his resignation Young was on the telephone with black elected officials and civil rights leaders around the country urging them to stay cool and support the president.

Young said blacks had a "vested interest" in seeing the Middle East conflict resolved because a new crisis would have an economic impact on the United States. He was alluding to possible Arab use of the oil weapon and that blacks, as the poorest, would be likely to suffer the most.

Young said that in no way should black interest in the Mideast be seen as anti-Jewish. He said blacks might be more pro-Palestinian than before and that the Jewish community would have the responsibility of relating to that develoment without being anti-black.

The circumstances of Young's resignation from the Cabinet have further complicated the president's political fortunes and his Middle East diplomacy at a crucial time.

In Jerusalem, special U.S. envoy Robert Strauss said today the United States will veto a proposed U.N. resolution recognizing Palestinian rights and will stand firm with Israel on current guidelines for an over-all Middle East peace.

But he said he failed in an attempt to get Israel to agree to a possible resolution on the Palestinians the United States would present to the United Nations.

Strauss first met with Prime Minister Menachem Begin for two hours and 15 minutes then later met for an hour with Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and Defense Mnister Ezer Weizman at Dayan's suburban Tel Aviv home.

Following the session, the envoy predicted "perpetual problems" ahead in the United Nations on the Palestinian issue. Strauss then left for Cairo.

In Cairo, former foreign minister Ismail Fahmi today deplored the "forced" resignation of U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young and called on the United States to reverse its policy and negotiate directly with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"I am really disappointed to witness Ambassador Young's forced departure from office under colossal pressure," Fahmi told reporters.

Manitoba Metis force new legislature policy

WINNIPEG (CP) — Government Services Minister Harry Enns has ordered all but the front door to the Manitoba legislature locked and restricted access to the building.

The action follows the third successive night in which Metis demonstrators have been removed from the building.

"I want to break this pattern of 40 or 50 or 60 people beginning to obviously demonstrate," Enns said today.

The Metis demonstrators are seeking economic aid for Norway House, but the government has insisted on negotiating only with the elected council of the northern community.

While Enns commended the demonstrators for their "restrained and orderly actions," he said the security staff are "not equipped to cope with what they've had to cope with in the last week."

Latest IMF figures show prices in Britain rose in June at an annual rate of 11.3 per cent. France reported 10.1 per cent annual inflation.

Although Japan reported a mere 3.1 per cent inflation, its rate was climbing; Canada's had shown some moderation this year.

The respite is not expected to last. Finance Minister John Crosbie last month released his state-of-the-economy analysis showing the government expects the cost of living to rise by nine per cent this year.

The two main sources of trouble in the price outlook are rapidly rising energy costs and higher costs for goods imported from the United States, which already shows signs of moving into a protracted recession.

Among the 15 cities for which Statistics Canada compiles price figures, prices rose most steeply in St. John's, Nfld., and increased at their slowest annual rate in Regina.

City-by-city annual inflation rates for July were: St. John's, Nfld., 9.5 per cent; Charlottetown, 7.9 per cent; Halifax, 9.0 per cent; Saint John, N.B., 9.0 per cent; Quebec, 7.7 per cent; Montreal, 7.7 per cent; Ottawa, 8.3 per cent; Toronto, 8.1 per cent; Thunder Bay, Ont., 9.0 per cent; Winnipeg, 9.2 per cent; Regina, 7.5 per cent; Saskatoon, 8.6 per cent; Edmonton, 9.0 per cent; Calgary, 8.0 per cent and Vancouver 7.6 per cent.

The Lions' decision not to continue to subsidize the transportation service is one of the reasons the fare will increase.

According to Lions executive director Bill Paddon, the society was paying out about $115,000 for an adult bus service on Victoria and the Lower Mainland with money intended for crippled children and it has decided not to do so any more.

A request by the Lions to the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee for $18,000 to help pay for the bus service was turned down by the city May 25.

In a letter to the Lions, the committee said it had decided subsidizing the service should not be a municipal responsibility.

Urban Transit Authority cost-sharing regulations do not include any provision for financing transportation for the disabled.

UTA assistant general manager Larry Miller said Thursday the UTA has submitted a cost-sharing recommendation to the government that would see the users paying a percentage of the cost, but has not received any response yet.

The Easter Seal bus service in Vancouver is fully subsidized by the city and users pay $2 for a round trip.

The Lions have been trying to raise funds from other B.C. municipalities but have only managed to extract a promise of a small grant from North Vancouver.

Pipeline crew finds old bones

CALGARY (CP) — Laying pipelines is one thing but becoming amateur archeologists isn't exactly what Gulf Canada Ltd. employees had expected.

Norm Ferguson, project manager for Gulf, said Thursday that his crew stumbled upon a 2,000- to 3,000-year-old Indian encampment while digging a trench for a pipeline near the company's refinery in southeast Calgary.

The crew found broken buffalo bones surrounding a campfire about two metres below the surface. It is the fifth such dicovery in the area in the last year.

Ferguson said he notified the Glenbow Museum, University of Calgary and provincial culture department about the most recent find.

The provincial department sent an archeologist from Edmonton who collected about three bags of bones, he said. The archeologist said the site appeared to be a spring encampment used primarily for making tallow.

Provincial officials refused to comment on the find until Culture Minister Mary LeMessurier has been personally notified.

Ferguson said Gulf is keeping the location secret because of the possibility of vandalism.

Chrysler confirms rebates

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. confirmed today that it will offer rebates of $400 to U.S. customers who buy its big cars and trucks.

The official word to dealers attending a meeting followed reports this week that the financially-troubled auto-maker will offer the cash incentive.

The rebates are good on all 1979 cars and trucks sold in the United States, except the sub-compact Omni and Horizon cars and imported car and truck models.

Promotion on the rebates will begin Satur[illegible]

Chrysler was the first manufacturer to offer cash rebates. In 1975, it offered customers up to $300 at two times during that year. General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. also cut prices that year, with GM also giving rebates.

Chrysler had a second-quarter loss of $207 million and has requested $1 billion in federal aid.

Bickering a ballet disgrace

Betty Oliphant, principal and founder of the National Ballet School, has sharply rebuked Alexander Grant, artistic director of the National Ballet of Canada for his remarks earlier in the week concerning the schooling of his company's dancers. Grant had said from London, during the company's engagements there, that the comments by critics that the schooling was inadequate surprised him. "It is not our job to teach technique. I must take the very best that is available." Miss Oliphant remarked that "it is easy not to take responsibility for this, but a company, if it is not responsible for teaching technique, is definitely responsible for maintaining it."

There really is no problem with the post office, the only problem is that the public thinks there's a problem, according to Al Secor, co-ordinator of priority services for the Ontario postal region. Recent tests show the post office to be running smoothly about 95 per cent of the time, he adds. But it's usually an important piece of mail or a personal cheque which has taken longer than usual to arrive which people remember, he admits.

A U.S. judge ordered a 13-year-old Gypsy bride arrested Thursday, saying she and her 15-year-old husband had defied an earlier order dissolving their marriage. Judge Jay Dalton' of Tulsa, Oklahoma, acted after receiving reports from the couple's families that the pair went out of state to be married after he had ordered their traditional Gypsy marriage dissolved. He also said that a $10,000-dowry paid by the boy's father had resulted in the girl's " being sold into marriage."

The letters column of the London Evening Standard was full of complaints. Topics for discontent included slow industrial production, road lawlessness, the dearth of raincoat-rewaterproofers, and eyesores in the Walthamstow Marshes. Londoner Henry Root did not wish to be so narrow. He wrote: "I wish to protest most strongly about everything."

Bonnie and Milton Hoffa were looking forward to their ride on the Delta Queen. But the Hoffas were bumped off the Mississippi River steamboat cruise for one Jimmy Carter and party. "I'm not mad at the president," Mrs. Hoffa said. "It's not his fault. But I'm kind of frustrated. We're getting the giggles now and then. It's hard to believe this is happening." The Carters leave St. Paul on the Delta Queen at 7 p.m. today on a cruise to St. Louis. Mrs. Hoffa said she liked the suggestion of Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., that they stay in the White House while the Carters were cruising down the Mississippi on the famous old sternwheeler. "I told him it would be great to stay in the White House if I didn't have to clean it," she said.

And finally: Parents beware! Three out of four teen-agers surveyed recently said they would trade you in if they could get Burt Reynolds, Cheryl Ladd or Carol Burnett in return. The September issue of the Ladies Home Journal says that 75 per cent of the 850 high school juniors and seniors reported dissatisfaction with their parents. Most of the youths from five U.S. cities named movie or television stars as replacements, including Raquel Welch, Robert Redford, Farrah Fawcett and Lee Majors. The girls' top choices were Jaclyn Smith and Burt Reynolds. The boys also chose Reynolds as their first-choice father and gave Cheryl Ladd the most votes as a potential mother.

Herbal treatment used on cancers

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese women with cancer of the cervix have been successfully treated with medicinal herbs, the official Chinese news agency Xinhua (Hsinhua) reported Thursday.

Xinhua said that 319 cervical cancer patients have been treated with the herbs since 1969 and 169 of them were cured.

The news agency said the treatment using herb concentrates was developed by four doctors at the Shanxi Province Institute of Oncology.

"This will be good news for patients who cannot undergo an operation to remove the uterus or are unable to sustain radio therapy and also for those young patients who wish to remain fertile," it said in a dispatch from Taiyuan, in the southeastern Chinese province.

It said 63 of 83 women with pre-invasive or in-situ cervical cancer were cured. In-situ cancer is that which has not yet spread to other tissues. It is considered much easier to treat.

The herbs showed "effective results" in 106 cases of invasive cancer, or about 40 per cent of the rest of the women in the study, the dispatch said. "Four young women have borne children after recovery from this disease," it added.

Auto layoffs spiral again

DETROIT (AP) — Auto industry layoffs in Canada and U.S. will hit 68,650 next week, about 30 per cent more than previously reported, figures from automakers showed Thursday.

General Motors Corp. announced that it had not included in its previous figures about 15,000 layoffs in parts and components plants. In new layoffs announced Thursday, Chrysler Corp. gave indefinite furloughs to 2,556 workers at five plants in Canada and the U.S.

At Chrysler's Windsor, Ont., engine plant, layoffs involving 980 workers will begin next week. Another 45 workers at an associated casting plant in Toronto will be made idle Sept. 7.

That will bring Chrysler's layoff total to 24,950 in the United States and 1,985 in Canada, company figures show.

Ford Motor Co. said it has 14,500 indefinite layoffs in the United States and 597 in Canada, with 650 more coming in Canada on Sept. 10.

Spill woes worsen

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — More than 30 kilometres of scenic Texas coastline has been blackened by history's worst oil spill and a government scientist says the situation will worsen and remain critical until winds shift this autumn.

"There will be larger areas (of oil) every day than we've had, at least for a while," John Robinson, scientific co-ordinator of a government task force, said Thursday.

An offshore well near the Yucatan Peninsula blew out June 3 and has since been spewing thousands of barrels of oil a day into the Gulf of Mexico, producing a spill that covers thousands of square kilometres.

On Thursday, oil rolled in soiling nearly 10 kilometres of beach in the South Padre Island resort area.

The area's multi-million dollar tourist industry is reeling from the oily onslaught.

"What we're looking at is the loss of several million dollars over the next few weeks if this trend continues," said Ralph Thompson, spokesman for the South Padre Island Chamber of Commerce.

Death to Carter millions chant

TEHRAN (UPI) — To the chants of "Death to Carter, Begin and Sadat," up to a million Iranians rallied in central Tehran today in observance of "Jerusalem Day" and heard Syria's foreign minister condemn U.S. Middle East policy.

Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam praised Iran for joining the ranks against Israel and thanked Ayatollah Khomeini for his support of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Witnesses said the crowd, spread out over the entire shuttered-up downtown shopping district, would easily reach the million mark before the day's end.

Moslem militants interpreted the rally as a show of solidarity with Khomeini, Iran's de facto head of state, after demonstrations critical of the Islamic regime earlier in the week.

Khaddam, accompanied by Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan and Arab ambassadors, attended the "Jerusalem Day" demonstrations as thousands of men, women and children still poured into the Tehran university area shouting slogans such as, "Death to Carter, Begin and Sadat."

Placards displayed at the rally quoted Khomeini, "It's my desire that I die a martyr in Palestine."

Iran severed its ties with Israel after Khomeini took over in February and recognized the Palestine Liberation Organization. Israel's embassy in Tehran was handed over to the PLO.

Khaddam accused President Carter, Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt of trying to stabilize the Israeli occupation of Arab lands. He said the United States was seeking to turn Sadat into "a gendarme to defend American interests."

Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan said the "pharoahs" dominating the Middle East would face annihilation at the hands of the faithful, "Just as Moses defeated the pharaohs" of ancient Egypt.

Little chance given for five of surviving Italian octuplets

NAPLES (AP) — Five of the seven surviving day-old octuplets born to a Neopolitan woman have been given little chance of life because they are so tiny but doctors say there is some hope for the two largest.

The mother, 29-year-old Pasqualina Chianese, who lost sextuplets shortly after they were born three years ago, is reported in satisfactory condition physically but despondent that the same thing might happen again.

"This time, when they told me there were eight, I felt pain rather than joy," said the father, Stefano Chianese, an insurance company employee. "I beget 14 children and maybe none of them survives. Pasqualina and I desperately want a baby, a good and healthy one, not all these together."

Mrs. Chianese, who has been taking fertility drugs for several years, gave birth Thursday to five girls and three boys.

The babies were delivered in the space of 20 minutes at the Hospital of the Incurable by Dr. Salvatore Scala assisted by three nurses. Quadruplets had been expected and when eight arrived some had to be rushed to incubators in other hospitals.

"Everybody in the delivery room was so convinced that four were coming," said Scala. "You can hardly imagine the surprise of Mrs. Chianese and everybody else when the number kept increasing. They were so tiny that the mother hardly felt any pain."

Local doctors say they knew of only one previous birth of octuplets, in 1977 in Athens. All died within hours.

The Guinness Book of World Records says the highest number of babies reported at a single birth was 10, reported without medical confirmation in Spain in 1924, in China in 1936 and in Brazil in 1946.

The highest number medically recorded, Guinness says, was nine — in Sydney, Australia, in 1971, in Philadelphia in 1972 and in Bangladesh in 1977. All died.

Eighteenth Fastnet body

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — The death toll in the storm-battered Fastnet yacht race climbed to 18 today with the recovery of another body by a ship off southern England.

A coast guard spokesman said the dead man was from a yacht which sailed with the racing fleet but did not compete in the the 970-kilometre event from the Isle of Wight to Ireland's Fastnet Rock and back to Plymouth.

The victim was not identified and it was not known what happened to the yacht.

An empty gesture

The preliminary plans of the Conservative government to reduce the public service show two things. First, the Tories are going about the reduction in a reasonably cautious and responsible manner. Second, it is incredibly difficult to attain any significant savings just by eliminating staff and "waste" from federal spending.

Treasury Board president Sinclair Stevens said Wednesday that the government will direct a three-pronged attack to meet its goal of a reduction of 60,000 in the federal public service over a period of five years.

Within government departments themselves, only two out of three job vacancies that occur will be filled. This, Stevens said, should eventually reduce the civil service by 35,000.

Another 20,000 jobs will be eliminated, he expects, when the government returns certain unnamed Crown corporations to the private sector. The remaining 5,000 job cuts will come when remaining Crown corporations are ordered to cut their staffs by about 17 per cent.

The two-for-three formula in the civil service itself is a reasonable way to tackle the problem. It will give the government much more flexibility in determining where cuts will come than would a straight freeze on hiring.

Just who will decide which jobs should be filled and which should disappear has not, however, yet been made clear. Without some detailed criteria for determining this, the government will lay itself open to charges of unfairness in hiring.

The cuts to be made by returning Crown corporations to the private sector may prove to be illusory, depending on which corporations are affected. Several Crown companies break even each year, taking nothing from the taxpayers' purse. If the government sells them, the official list of public service employees may decrease, but the taxpayer won't be saved a single cent.

The amount to be saved the taxpayer is undoubtedly the most discouraging part of the entire exercise. Stevens reported that once all 60,000 cuts have been made, the total saving to the federal budget will be between $800 million and $1 billion a year.

That's sounds like a huge figure, but it is only about eight or nine per cent of this year's federal deficit — let alone the total federal budget. Even if all the hardship of those cuts had occurred, the government would be more than $10 billion in the hole for the year. The true savings may prove to be even smaller if the disappearance of jobs leads to a corresponding increase in the numbers on the unemployment insurance rolls.

At best, the civil service cuts are a gesture, a gesture that the government is committed to reducing the size of government. The gesture may prove an empty one if the costs in increased unemployment and reduced government services outweigh the meagre saving to the taxpayers.

Avenging a death

In a way it would have been easier if a single bureaucrat could have been singled out as the cause of Charlene Harder's death. If one person had been negligent or inefficient in dealing with previous allegations of child abuse against Charlene, then the death of the 10-month-old Surrey girl last year would have been, at least, understandable.

But that was not what happened. A government investigation shows that the bureaucrats involved in the Harder case were, without exception, caring, hard-working public servants caught up in a system so complex and uncoordinated that their caring and their work went for nothing.

Doctors, hospital nurses, public health nurses, social workers, and policemen had all identified Charlene as a child "at risk" from birth. They all had some reasons to believe that the baby had been abused or was likely to be abused. Yet they never co-ordinated their information or efforts into the sort of whole that would allow some action to be taken on the child's behalf.

None of them perceived a total picture of the Harder family, so each kept giving the abusing parents the benefit of the doubt. When the information from all of them was put together, the picture was such that no reasonable doubt could remain.

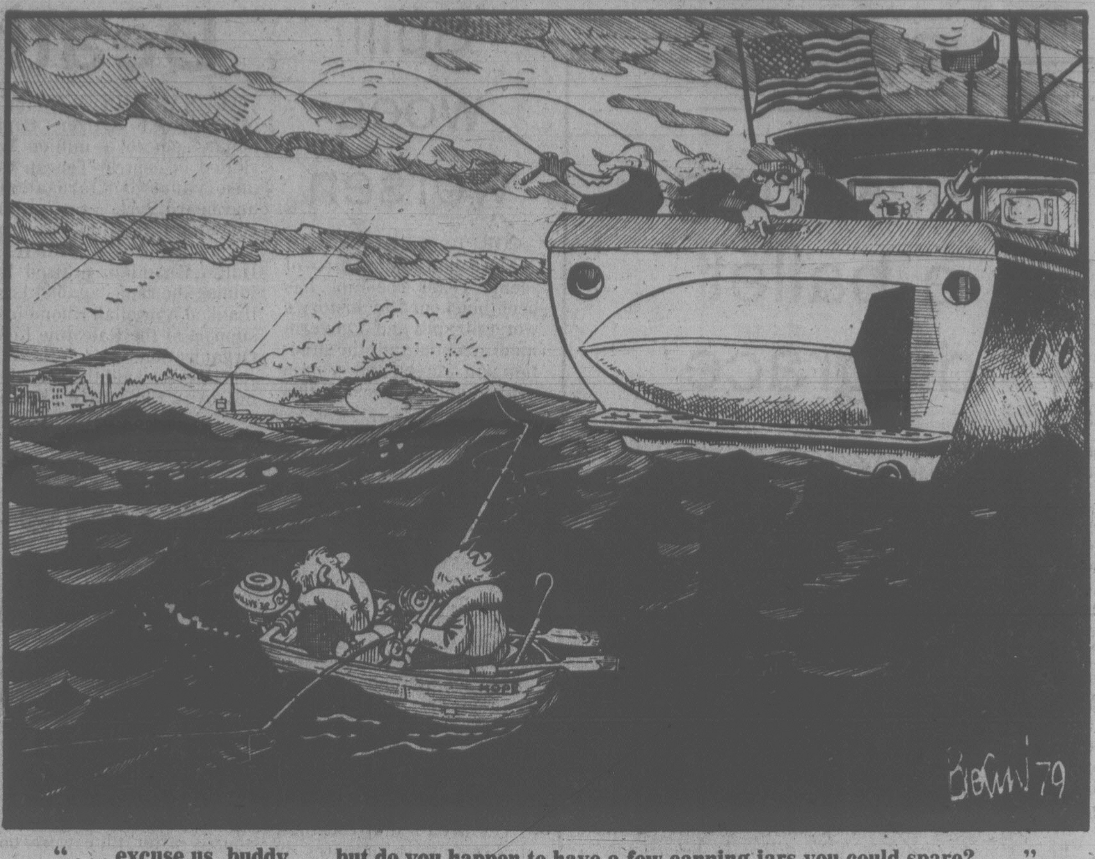
But by the time that happened, it was too late.

The government investigation, undertaken by Brent Parfitt of the attorney-general's ministry, makes numerous recommendations to improve the system of dealing with suspected child abuse cases. Parfitt emphasizes the need to educate health, human resources and police personnel about likely signs of abuse, about co-ordinated procedures available in such cases, and about the legal requirement on professionals to report suspected cases.

Legal help should be provided to professionals handling abuse cases, and checks should be built into the system to ensure that unresolved problems won't be overlooked.

The ministry of human resources says that many of Parfitt's recommendations have already been implemented, and steps are being taken to implement the others.

It can't happen soon enough. Changing the system to protect other children from abuse is the only way the irrational, unnecessary death of Charlene Harder can be avenged.



"... excuse us, buddy ... but do you happen to have a few canning jars you could spare? ..."

Environment Minister Rafe Mair has achieved the impossible — he has made the killers of baby seals look downright humane. After all, the seal's death is swift, if not instantaneous, unlike that planned for the coyotes, wolves and bears of British Columbia. Death by poison is slow and agonizing and Mr. Mair should be obliged to witness it at first hand before his plans are implemented. Possibly it might cause him to have second thoughts.

Last March Mr. Mair announced a two-year study to determine the true extent of wolf predation on livestock. He now proceeds to issue a poison permit while the study is still in progress and the final results are unknown, and he also adds bears to his list of victims. It is fairly obvious that his moratorium on the use of poison was for political purposes only and that since the Social Credit party has been re-elected, he can safely cater to the wishes of the ranchers. No one can reasonably blame them for wanting their livestock to be protected from predators, but why resort to poison? Surely there must be many sharpshooters in the provincial wildlife branch who could be utilized if the ranchers themselves are incapbable of using a gun efficiently. However, that would no doubt be too much to expect of a government which has yet to ban the leghold trap after years of promises.

Obviously, votes are far more important to governments than the anguish of wild animals which wield no political clout. It is unfortunate, however, that the name British Columbia will now be synonomous with Newfoundland in the minds of animal lovers around the world who do not believe that the end justifies the means. — Valerie Melville, 500 Transit Road.

Lose an asset

A recent article in Americana magazine contains some information regarding comvertion centres that should be of more than passing interest to Victorians.

City Hall in Charleston, South Carolina plans to demolish 30 buildings listed in the National Register of Historic Places to make way for a convention centre close to the city's business district. Plans include a hotel, department store, garage and small shops. Supporters maintain that the centre will generate revenue plus save the area from further deterioration. Dissidents claim that convention centres are failing all over the country and that Charleston will lose an irreplacable historic district to gain a short-lived financial boost. At present the conflict is unresolved.

Victoria also stands to lose an irreplacable asset, a unique harborside site, for a centre that is expected to lose money (public money), and will only be of benefit to the business establishment, a small but well organized segment of the community.

It is questionable that Victorians really need a convention centre on the Inner Harbor when other sites, say on the block opposite city hall or next to the Bay, would be more appropriate both in terms of central location and accessibility. Wharf Street can hardly handle the traffic generated already.

The type of development needed for the Inner Harbor shoreline should be more of the nature that would attract pedestrians to it. The idea of a convention centre even with a market and museum as come-ons does not fill the bill. The concept of associating museums with retail outlets alone, seems a dubious practice.

Paris tore down its famous Les Halles market and for years this very expensive and desirable piece of real estate was the subject of many proposals for intensive development. Finally the decision was made to turn it into a park — Victoria, City of Gardens could hardly do worse. — Thomas Palfrey, 941 Meares Street.

Welcome visitors

I would like to express the sincere appreciation of the Greater Victoria Visitors' Information Centre to the people of Victoria for their kindness and helpfulness in making visitors to our area welcome.

On frequent occasions since July 10 we have had to monitor available accommodation in the area and, in fact, call upon the use of private rooms that have been volunteered by generous Victorians. The promptness and enthusiasm with which the citizens have opened their homes to strangers has been heart warming. Their kindness has been much appreciated by our guests and by the Visitors' Information Centre.

In speaking of the kind words said in respect of our overload accommodation, I must mention the overwhelming preponderance of compliments versus complaints being received this year in all areas of tourist activity. Victorians are indeed making our visitors welcome. We hear about the smiles that greet them, the offers of assistance, the courtesy extended, and the beauty and cleanliness of our city. We are making friends and we can expect many of them to return.

To the waitresses, the sales people, the receptionists, the drivers and attendants, and to Victorians, please take a well-earned bow. — E.J.W. Higgin, President, Visitors' Information Centre.

Nowhere to go

I am one of those horrible persons on welfare who is struggling to raise a large family alone (five children aged 11 to two years). We are being forced to move by Aug. 31 as our rent has been raised to $550 a month, which we cannot afford as we only receive $695 from welfare. I have advertised for a house to rent and got not so much as one call. I phoned all the houses for rent in the newspaper that we could afford and they're always taken. I even advertised for a tent and people called me, thinking it was a gag! In two weeks we'll be out on the street with nowhere to go, so if you care enough to print this letter maybe someone would have a suggestion on what we can do. — Sharon Paton, 1639 Pinewood Avenue.

Thanks to billets

During the past week the B.C. provincial (13-year-old) Babe Ruth tournament was held at Reynolds Park with Saanich Evening Optimists being host.

The tournament was a success because of the many families in our area who came to my rescue and took boys from all over our province into their homes.

My thanks go out to all these kind people who helped me in my panicked hours when I was still lookng for homes. — Lousie Smith, SEO Babe Ruth Baseball League, 3439 Salsbury Way.

Fighting a crime wave in the genteel south

ATLANTA — Georgia State Patrol cars are cruising downtown streets this week after a triple slaying sent the city's rapidly-climbing homicide total this year to 149.

To Atlanta residents and law enforcement officials alike, the assignment of state troopers to supplement local police was a welcome sight.

With the approval of Atlanta Mayor Maynard H. Jackson, Gov. George Busbee Monday had assigned the 50 troopers and 10 Georgia Bureau of Investigation agents to traffic and narcotics patrols in the city, freeing more policemen to combat violent crimes.

Troubled police

Atlanta has been experiencing a wave of violent crime that has further demoralized a troubled police force, threatened Mayor Maynard H. Jackson's political career, and strained the city's normally stable race relations.

"Most of our men want to help out," Mark Lott, a state patrol public information officer, said of the troopers Tuesday. "They've got to live here, too."

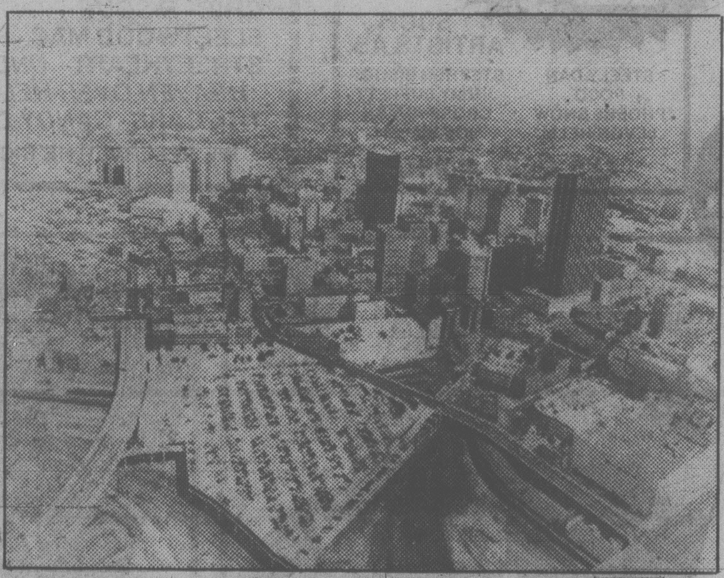
It was hoped that the additional manpower would enable Atlanta police — impaired by poor morale, low pay and a shortage of 20 men on an 1,100-man force — to combat violent crimes more effectively.

The city's black police chief, George Napper, who faces a stiff fight in his bid for confirmation from an 18-member city council that is equally divided among blacks and whites, said Tuesday that 50 to 60 officers would be assigned to a "flying squad" — a mobile unit to provide more police visibility in high-crime areas.

The city's 149 recorded homicides thus far this year, exceeds its total of 143 for all of last year. It is believed that many slayings here — including those of a man and two women whose bodies were found Monday in a north Atlanta home — are drug related.

Some observers theorize that Florida's recent crackdown on narcotics violators has turned this city into what some call "easy Atlanta."

However, of the city's recorded 116 homicides in the first half of this year, only one was officially listed by police as connected with illegal drugs. The three principal causes were non-domestic arguments (35), robberies (26) and domestic quarrels (22).



Downtown Atlanta: site of a murder a day this year.

Throughout a torrid summer, the crime spree has tarnished the city's image as the financial and social hub of a more progressive south.

City administrators have responded sluggishly to the crisis. When Busbee last Thursday offered reinforcements from the state patrol the mayor hedged. To some, the offer appeared to wound the political ego of Jackson, a black who has hinted that he may challenge Georgia Sen. Herman E. Talmadge's bid for re-election in 1980.

It was not until after four persons were slain in six hours Friday night and Saturday that the mayor accepted the governor's offer and formally requested help.

Amid the fear and anxiety, subtle racial problems have appeared.

Some whites have accused Jackson of indifference to the upsurge in crime, a charge that the mayor has denied. The leader of the Afro-American Patrolmen's League last week urged the city's black police commissioner, Lee P. Brown, to refuse the governor's offer of help, insisting that, "This is not a crisis situation."

And some have questioned why the community is offering reward money in the unsolved slaying of a prominent white Ohio doctor, Marc R. Tetalman, who attended a medical convention here, but no reward money in the unsolved murders of other victims, white and black.

"Unfortunately," Al Rapuano, the city's convention and visitors bureau director, said in an interview, "the doctor's death happens to be the one that makes the biggest impact on our city."

In fact, the rest of the nation began to learn that something serious might be wrong in Atlanta in June, when Tetalman died on his 11th wedding anniversary.

Tetalman, 35, a specialist in nuclear medicine at Ohio State University, celebrated the anniversary with his wife, Dale, and friends at a fashionable downtown restaurant.

It was a balmy night. After dinner, the Tetalmans and their companions decided to stroll back to their hotel. Suddenly two men appeared and demanded money. Tetalman resisted. Unexpectedly, one of the men pulled a gun, fired and Tetalman fell, wounded in the chest. One of Tetalman's friends surrendered his own money but was shot in the chest, right arm and hand. The robbers fled.

An hour later, Tetalman died in a hospital, the year's 112th homicide victim, a visitor to the city who had depended upon its tradition of southern hospitality, and its longtime boast that it was a city "too busy to hate."

"The problem," one of Tetalman's fellow conventioneers said later, "is that when you go to Washington or New York, you're ready for this kind of thing. But when you come to a nice, hospitable southern place like Atlanta, you feel sort of carte blanche, that you can just get up and walk around and do what you please . . ."

Atlanta, a city of magnolias, mansions, and fancy highrises, has a reputation for biracial politics and for keeping its cool during the civil rights confrontations of the 1960s.

But today, Atlanta is grappling with urban headaches often identified with such northern cities as Detroit, Newark and Philadelphia.

The general crime rate here has soared. It rose up 18 percent last year, more than in any other major U.S. city, while the police department has not fully recovered from a 1978 promotion exam cheating scandal that forced Brown's predecessor, A. Reginald Eaves, a black, to resign under fire.

There are other reasons, as well, for low morale on the force. Police here complain that they are among the nation's lowest paid in a major city, with a starting salary of $11,510. Although the force is 200 men below full strength, lawsuits challenging the racial makeup of the police force have blocked further hiring in all but 93 positions. The city awaits a federal judge's decision on filling the remaining jobs.

There have been attempts by the Teamsters Union to organize the police, a one-day "blue flu" protest walkout and threats of a strike.

At the same time, many Atlantans complain that some local judges encourage crime by giving light sentences to muggers, purse snatchers, peddlers of stolen goods and to prostitutes who aggressively solicit business from convention delegates and other visitors.

"With so many people with lots of money on the streets, you're asking for trouble," one police officer said. "First, all the publicity about not enough police manpower encourages the criminal to take chances. So do our lenient courts, which let the hookers back on the streets faster than we can arrest them. And it doesn't help when the mayor and the city council keep saying that there's not enough money to give us raises, but then turn around and vote themselves more money and thousands of dollars for things like art at the new airport terminal."

Atlanta's tax base has dwindled, in part, as the result of the mid-1970s building slump and "white flight" from a city that is 55 per cent black and has a predominantly black administration and a 90 percent black public school enrolment.

Atlanta's twin problems of crime and a police manpower shortage were dramatized again by the robbery of a white middle-aged man and his wife on a downtown street one recent night.

"Meet you there"

The couple said later that they were attacked, but not injured, by two young black men who wielded razors, and gave up their money without resistance.

After the youths had fled, the couple drove to summon police. Two officers told them to return to the scene of the crime, a few blocks away, explaining that it had happened "out of our zone." The couple said that the officers advised them to "meet us there."

Returning to the scene of the holdup, the victims waited 20 minutes. No police. They hailed a bus and asked the driver to issue a radio call for police. The driver obliged.

Twenty more minutes elapsed. Still no police. They walked one block to a pay telephone and called the police. An officer arrived five minutes later. He asked questions and made notes. He then looked up solemnly from his notepad, and the couple quoted him as saying:

'Patronage' not always a bad thing

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — "Governments may change," said The Globe and Mail Ottawa bureau recently, "but pork-barrel politics continue."

It went on to cite the example of Ralph Stewart, a renegade of the late Grit caucus who, having failed to win a Tory seat let alone a nomination, has been given a short-term contract to work in the Prime Minister's Office.

It's fair ball to ponder Stewart's appointment. Neither as a Liberal MP (Cochrane North) nor in his brief interlude as a Tory MP has Stewart seemed distinguished.

But did he get his job through "pork-barrel" politics? Surely it is more apt to call his appointment partisan patronage. "Pork-barrel" politics is the business of throwing money at roads, docks, dams and airports, or at communities, in order to hold on to office and to win the next election.

Earned reward

So, this patronage reward to Mr. Stewart, at least thus far, is merely a temporary way of covering an obligation to a one-time party supporter. Acts of loyalty, campaigning commitments, genuine partisan activities — these surely deserve rewards where such are possible. Must all be altruistic in politics?

Why do "they" deserve rewards? I can hear some New Democrats ask the question, particularly those unfamiliar with rewards given the many loyal followers of the Schreyer or the Blakeney governments.

One is tempted to reply that it must be done because the Liberals did it so long and so thoroughly that it is both practised and expected. Should Tories (or New Democrats) get a different deal?

One can also say that if jobs or contracts are at a government's command, why shouldn't they go to its friends rather than to neutrals or to political foes? Also, in cases where it's hard to get a genuine open competition, the award by a minister to a party friend seems reasonable. And, for positions needing someone in whom the prime minister has complete trust, a known party loyalist is a sensible choice.

Today, between the territory staked out for public servants and protected by laws, unions and professional associations, and the plentitude of loyal party supporters, there's little latitude for patronage. Of the 500,000 odd posts in federal departments or agencies, the PM and the ministry probably can influence the filling of only one to two thousand.

This tight situation for patronage can be seen in the Senate. Mr. Clark will have the chance in the next few months to appoint eight to ten people to the Senate. One of his staff people told me that the list of those in the party who have expressed a direct interest in the Senate or who are thought to be deserving of the Senate by reputable Tories numbers over 300. As he found in naming his ministry, Mr. Clark can hurt or discourage a score of followers with one appointment.

The politician is usually very sensitive when making a patronage appointment to the quality of the appointee. Mr. Clark, for example, desperately needs able debaters and experienced men in a Senate dominated by Liberals. He needs almost as desperately officials at the very top whom he can trust and with whom he and his ministers can work, certain of their neutrality. So, appoint a dolt, a hack, a mere party loyalist to the Senate, deputy-ministership or a directorship and you're exposed to scorn and trouble long after the anouncement of the appointment.

Need loyalists

After a score of years viewing the federal scene, I've shed my belief that every job in the public service should be held by a neutral. I've also lost confidence in the exclusive dominion of the tendering system for getting all goods and services bought by government. When the "outs" come in, they had better bring their top advisers and confidants with them and fill the cream appontments with their loyalists.

The corollary to this, of course, is that the "ins" who go "out" should really be "out." That is, if Mr. Clark does give Mr. Stewart an appointment of some permanence, Mr. Stewart should lose it when the Tories lose power. In such a system, at least the public would know that such rewards, drawn from its taxes, are not everlasting and that they last at the electoral whim.

The Shah . . . nothing was too good

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

Dogs can be proud, noble creatures; they can also be nasty, vicious brutes. The problem is that you can't always tell the good sort from the bad until you are on the ground, flailing between two rows or more of very determined teeth.

Two recent examples:

Bradfort, September, 1978. Two children, a five-year-old and a seven-year-old, are recovering in hospital after an attack by a German Shepherd. One child required 450 stitches to his ear and neck; the other, 125 stitches to her ear.

Laval, Quebec, July, 1979. Plastic surgeons have closed 16 wounds on the body of a 17-month-old infant who was mauled by two large dogs.

Dogs have teeth, no question about that — but in Ontario, especially in urban areas, the law does not. Municipal authorities are empowered under provincial law to regulate or prohibit the running at large of dogs (a dog is deemed to be running at large when it is found "in any place other than the premises of the owner of the dog and not under the control of any person"), but these regulations are generally frail things. In the first place, penalties are ridiculously light; the owner who fails to police his dog is subject to a maximum fine of just $50. In the second place, the law governing attacks by dogs (the Vicious Dogs Act, fully one sentence long) is plainly inadequate. It authorizes a judge to determine what should be done with a dog that has attacked a human; but, in practice, dogs are usually let off the hook unless a case can be made that they have a history of attacking humans. In effect, dogs are granted a free lunch.

In rural areas, the law is considerably more stringent. Any persons may kill a dog found killing or injuring livestock or poultry, or straying upon premises where livestock or poultry are kept. Between sunset and sunrise, any person may kill a dog found straying anywhere.

The inconsistency of the law is obvious. As Sydney Moscoe, a Toronto lawyer, has observed: "It's unbelievable that a chicken has more rights than a child in Ontario." Unbelievable, perhaps, but nonetheless true. We admit to having serious reservations about permitting large dogs to be kept in urban areas at all. But if dogs are to be kept, then it must be under the most rigid restrictions. Perhaps some exception might be made for guard dogs, but, other than that, any dog that attacks a human should promptly be destroyed. All dogs should be collard, tagged and accompanied by their owners at all times (as the law requires), but the penalty for a first offence should be radically higher than at present — perhaps a fine of, not $50, but $500.

Heartless? Cruel? Consider one more example:

Niagara Falls, August 1, 1979. A nine-year-old boy is not recovering in hospital, after being attacked by a pack of dogs. The boy is not recovering, because he is dead.

Shah's luxury playground laid waste by sun, sand

By JEAN-CLAUDE GILLEBAUD
Le Monde, Paris

Only a year and a half ago, the Shah of Iran inaugurated a "millionaires' paradise", a tropical version of Monte Carlo built at gigantic cost on Qais, a small island in the Persian Gulf 15 kilometres off the Iranian coast. Today, Qais is a ghost town.

Both the landing strip, designed to accommodate the Concorde on special flights, and the Iranian Army's air base next to it, are now deserted. At the end of the runway stand the terminal's two futuristic buildings: no sooner were they completed than they were invested by scorching sand and flocks of wild pigeons. Doors bang and creak in the wind. Inside, the only sign that the terminal has been visited by looters is the mass of wrapping paper, straw and ripped-up carpet which litters the luxurious waiting rooms.

The Shah and the Empress sank some $470 million into the ultramodern holiday resort on Qais. Only the Gulf sheiks and 10,000 or so privileged jetsetters could afford the prices: $2,350 a week, not counting meals, plus a $1,650 membership fee.

In return they were treated to quintessential sampling of the delights that Western high society can offer: English lawns, French hoteliers and chefs, a U.S. television station, an Israeli sea-water desalination plant, a casino, a shopping centre full of boutiques sporting the names of the best-known Paris designers and parfumiers: literally nothing was too good — or too expensive — for the imperial whim.

Tens of thousands of trees were ferried in by air, planted and kept alive by a vast complex of underground irrigation pipes. Also flown to the island were squads of Parisiennes remarkable for their ability to set the right price on their virtue.

At the beginning of 1979, the "Islamic revolution" swept away this horrifying caricature of Western "turpitude," and today Qais is not a subject readily discussed in Ayatollah Khomaini's entourage. A few weeks before the change of regime in Iran, the tourists and foreign staff on the island scrambled for safety abroad, while its so-called "governor," Mahmoud Monsef, managed to make a last-minute escape on a private plane with, I was told, $100 million in his pocket. He sought refuge first in Abu Dhabi, then in Britain.

Well before a "Khomaini Committee" arrived on the island, its few square kilometres of bungalows, villas, luxury hotels and gardens were systematically looted by local people. Millions of dollars worth of goods ranging from stereo systems, modern furniture and television sets to air-conditioners and expensive dresses were sold for a song to Arab smugglers who set sail for the island as soon as they realized the turn events were taking.

An oppressive silence now hangs like a pall over Qais. Anyone searching for something to symbolize the collapse of the Shah's grandiose dreams need look no further than this sand-clogged island, with its carpet of dead leaves and rotting dates.

The magnificent lounges, disco and kitchens of Qais' 250-room luxury hotel have been overrun by rats. Everywhere there are broken doors, overturned furniture and dismantled bathrooms. The hotel's five stories have been emptied of most of their contents except for futuristic furniture, wall coverings, old paintings and hundreds of color television sets (no doubt too heavy to carry away).

$470 million resort abandoned in hurry after the revolution

On one of the walls of the hotel's main lounge a graffito in Persian reads: "Death to the Shah!" Curiously, although the air-conditioning no longer works — the atmosphere inside the building is unbearably stifling — electric lights and garish chandeliers are still blazing.

The beachside villas of the Shah and former Prime Minister Amir-Abbas Hoveyda, which stand only a few hundred metres apart, have also been picked clean of valuables, yet there are no signs of gratuitous vandalism. The sofas, armchairs and wall-coverings have not been touched. Just a few photos of the Empress Farah have been slashed and a blown-up color photo showing the Shah bathing naked has been taken down from the wall.

In Qais' small harbor, built next to the Imperial Palace, there are still a few speedboats, launches and luxury yachts, all badly in need of a fresh coat of paint. The vast "enchanted gardens" of Qais, once alive with the melodious babbling of fast-flowing canals and cool fountains, have now been parched bone dry by the sun.

The arcades of the shopping centre are strewn with fashion photos, empty boxes and disembowelled packing cases. Papier-mache window dummies in suggestive poses have been smashed, decapitated or hacked with knives.

A question mark hangs over the immediate future of Qais. Only one of its five desalination plants is still working. Without the required number of technicians — most have left — there is no hope of maintaining the power station (its 25-megawatt capacity could supply half of Tehran's electricity needs) or the gigantic television station, which boasts the latest electronic equipment.

The three mullahs sent from Zom and Shiraz, who are camping incongruously in a small concrete shelter on the edge of this "atheist hell," show little interest in the fate of Qais. There would seem to be a fundamental difference of opinion between them and the handful of technicians recently sent to the island by the government.

It is clearly the mullahs' view that the tons of remaining furniture, carpets, pianos and miscellaneous gadgets should be sold off cheaply, or even burned as an act of purification. The technicians, on the other hand, feel that, however reprehensible this "gold mine" may be, it belongs to the Iranian people and that it would be wrong not to extract maximum benefit from it.

But how? It would be out of the question for the new and morally rigorous Islamic order in Iran to reopen the playground for the happy few in the hope of enticing back the oil-rich emirs and their petrodollars. It has been suggested that Qais could be turned into a university. But it is hard to imagine revolutionary students and pious mullahs in a gingerbread decor which, moreover, is habitable only during the six winter months and would cost a fortune to keep in trim. At one point the government also toyed with the idea of handing the whole complex over to Qais' 3,000 inhabitants, but eventually ruled that out for similar reasons.

It looks as though Qais is doomed to slow, painful oblivion in the terrible heat of the Persian Gulf.

One job, two people

Katharine Whitehorn

LONDON — Westminster is called the Mother of Parliaments but until recently it wasn't much good actually being a mother if you worked there. Long hours, testing work and a male-dominated atmosphere made sure that House of Commons staff found it hard to stay on once they were in the family way.

But under the tall, Gothic arches of the library, beside the oaken shelves across the hushed carpets, Julia Lowrie seven years ago staged a quiet revolution. And now all that is changing.

MPs go in extensively for what they call "pairing" — if a man from one party wants to be away, he fixes with someone from the opposite party to be away too, so that their votes cancel out. Julia started a different sort of pairing — the pairing of two women for the one job.

* * *

She was a valued worker in the research part of the library when she had her first baby; for a while, after her maternity leave, she tried to work full time — and it was just too much.

So she went and asked if she could work part time, and David Holland, the chief librarian, said: "Yes — if you can find someone else to do the other half." She found Kay Andres, another mother in the same predicament; they divided the job successfully and now several others have followed suit.

They split the week down the middle: Julia (who is 32) works 10-6 Monday and Tuesday and half of Wednesday, Kay the rest of the week. Their full-time pay would be around $15,000 and each gets half of that; which is not perhaps princely but neither is a lone breadwinner: Julia's husband runs a delicatessen, and another pairing lady, Jane Fiddick, is married to a TV critic.

So why did the librarian agree to anything so sensible? MPs in Britian rely enormously on the library, since they don't have the big offices and research staff of American Congressmen. Their needs vary between the man who wants a single newspaper cutting — "anytime in the next three weeks will do" — and the one who wants everything about social security since 1958, in half an hour.

The library staff build up an area of expertise; one is expert in housing, one in finance, and so on; and since so much of what they're asked is parliamentary — every politican wants to know when his enemy last said the exact opposite of what he is saying now — the experience and memories of the library workers are terribly important. To keep losing good, trained people because of pregnancies was heartbreaking; the library was as glad as they were to find a way they could manage to stay on.

* * *

How about their familes? Jane Fiddick's husband is delighted; he's glad she doesn't get as frustrated as she used to during her months at home, when she simply waited for him to come home so that she could have some conversation above the level of "Teddy's going to bed now".

Julia put it more forcefully: "I've never met this husband who's supposed to be against his wife working: all the husbands I know won't let their wives stop for a moment." Jane says the years at home certainly helped, though; the Members can be childish and trying (it amused me that these women are, like museum and zoo staff, classified as keepers); but "when you've dealt with children you don't worry about people being upset all the time."

What happens to the children the rest of the time? A network of baby-minders, friends, sharing a daily nanny and (surprisingly) grannies has held things together on the days the girls work; and during their "time off" — ha, ha — they catch up on little details like the washing and ironing, and cleaning.

* * *

There are snags — promotion prospects don't go well with part time, and, because they've got families, these girls don't on the whole do much of the well-paid night work.

And do they feel that running this job-sharing scheme at the very centre of power will help spread the notion like wildfire round the country? Well, no. "One Member had been asking me for stuff for years without apparently realizing he never saw me on a Thursday or a Friday," said Julia. "Then one day he asked where I'd been last week and I explained our system.

"God bless my soul," said he. "I've been advocating job-sharing in industry all these years and I never noticed it was going on under my nose!"

Sudbury II's going fishing

One of the most celebrated rescue tugs on the West Coast has been sold by Seaspan International and will become a fish processing boat in the Gulf of Alaska.

Sudbury II, a 220-foot deepsea tug considered one of the most powerful in the world, was purchased last May by Douglas Logan of Seattle to use in a trawling operation.

It's believed the purchase price was about $1 million.

For 36 years the tug, first with Island Tug and Barge Ltd. and later Seaspan, took part in dramatic rescue operations, often sailing through typhoons and heavy seas to tow freighters and merchant ships to safety.

The tug once saved four men stranded on an oil rig in the Caribbean after Hurricane Hattie in 1961. In a 1968 exploit it towed — during a storm — an explosives-laden 700-foot tanker that had been crippled by fire.

Other ships rescued by "Sudstwo" included the Atlantic Sun, Elli, Olympic Palms, Tainan, Lefkipos and Vanlene.

'Ecology group' criticized

Spokesmen for the Sierra Club and other environmental organizations says a newly-formed environment group is a wolf in sheep's clothing interested only in protecting profit and industry.

The Environmental Balance Association of B.C. (EBA), which met publicly for the first time Thursday, is a corporate lobby group disguised as an environmental organization, say Greenpeace and Society for Pollution and Environmental Controls (SPEC) directors.

The Sierra Club asked the organization for more information and a chance to discuss its goals and objectives, with membership in mind. But "we were rebuffed," said spokesman Bob Nixon.

The EBA, backed by corporations such as MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. and Tech Corp., said environmental groups is guilty of sloppy bookkeeping and of emotionalism, he said.

Tom Carney, EBA executive director, said the group will inject accountability and objectivity into the environmental movement.

He said environmental groups abuse their position under the name of environmental concern.

SPEC director Cliff Stainsby said that if the EBA were sincere about protecting the environment, it would work with existing environmental groups.

"Sure people are emotional about environment," Stainsby said.

He said industry and government are "belligerent, antagonistic and unwilling to listen," to environmental groups. He said EBA is designed to absorb money corporations would normally donate to existing groups.

"Their credibility is gone before they start," said Bill Otway, director of the B.C. Wildlife Federation.

Oak Bay weighs weekly pickups

Oak Bay council will be asked Monday to switch municipal garbage collection to once a week throughout the year.

Works committee recommended the change Thursday night but on a one-year trial basis with reports to council every quarter and a decision on permanent weekly collection to be made at the nine-month stage.

Ald. Peter Bunn said when a long weekend occurs during the fortnightly period residents can go as long as 17 days without a pickup.

Municipal engineer Geoff White has estimated the cost of weekly pickups for the rest of this year at $4,201 and $28,076 for all of next year.

Shopping centre team refused bid to join suit

The owner and the developer of a proposed shopping centre at Tillicum and Burnside in Saanich will not be joined with the municipality as defendants in an action by the Capital Regional Board designed to stop the development, Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan ruled in Supreme Court Thursday.

After three hours of technical argument by lawyers for the three parties, Ruttan said nothing could be added to the main point of the lawsuit — whether the rezoning of the property by Saanich council June 4 is valid.

While Tillicum Holdings Ltd., owner of the site now used as a drive-in movie theatre, has an economic interest in the result of the CRD-Saanich suit, nothing would be achieved by adding defendants and it was not necessary to add any parties.

Ruttan ordered that the trial over the validity of the rezoning bylaw be set for an early date. This will likely be in September or October.

The regional board wants to redirect growth away from agricultural areas and maintain the commercial dominance of downtown and does not want this eroded by a large shopping centre on the outskirts.

The president of Cal Investments Ltd., the developer, has said the shopping centre would add $300,000 tax revenue to Saanich, provide 800 jobs and increase parkland by six acres through a land swap.

The two companies, through their lawyer Brian Wallace, sought to join Saanich in the lawsuit. He said both companies have a legal right to develop the shopping centre and therefore had an interest in the regional board's action against Saanich in which the board seeks to declare the rezoning bylaw void.

Lawyer Malcolm Macaulay, representing the regional board, said the companies shouldn't be joined with Saanich because the regional board has no claim against the companies.

The board is seeking to have the bylaw declared void because it will impair or impede the ultimate realization of the objectives of the official regional plan and this would be contrary to a section of the Municipal Act.

Lawyer Rodney Taylor, representing Saanich in support of the two companies, said the legal rights of the companies would be affected by the order sought by the regional board.

He also said Saanich expected an application for a building permit from the developer and legally would have to give it. But he anticipated the regional board will seek an injunction to stop issuance of the building permit. He hinted that matters of damages could then arise.

Wallace said $250,000 has been spent by Cal Investments on preparations for the shopping centre.

Back-to-school safety show

Saanich police department will hold a back-to-school safety display in the K-Mart mall, 3986 Shelbourne, on Aug. 23, 24 and 25.

The display will be from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. on the Thursday and Friday and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on the Saturday.

This year's display will include a police motorcycle, set up so youngsters can have their photographs taken astride it.

A Polaroid camera will be used and a small fee charged. Profits will be given to the Boys and Girls Clubs of Greater Victoria, which will supervise this part of the display.

Sgt. Fred Wooster of the community services division says participation by members of the clubs provides an opportunity to promote the department's goal of working together to prevent crime in the International Year of the Child.

The quotations of 'Chairman Dief' recalled

By The Canadian Press

His reputation for eloquence brought invitations by the thousands from public groups seeking a keynote speaker.

Many of his speeches began with the famous "my fellow Canadians," but most of the remarks he'll be remembered for were brief, cutting tirades, shot without warning at his opponents.

His Opponents: "Have you ever seen him kiss a farmer?," referring to Pierre Elliott Trudeau's "kissing campaign" of 1968.

"The master of osculation (kissing) called Parliament back so he could kiss it goodbye," when Trudeau dissolved Parliament for the 1968 election.

"In the days of King, St. Laurent, Pearson and I (his two predecessors and his successor), we paid for our own cars," objecting to the Trudeau government's purchase of two $80,000 Cadillacs while the Liberals called for energy conservation.

"No party can stand for something when it carries a banner carrying the design of 'me too,' " of Robert Stanfield, then Conservative leader, on Diefenbaker's 80th birthday in 1975.

"You can't have a real Parliament when you have a third party with a leader who belched fire and brimstone before this sitting, then having met with his pride of lions in caucus, becomes a cooing dove," September, 1973, of David Lewis, then NDP leader.

"The House of Commons has become a mental hospital operated by its own inmates," June 10, 1972, after procedural wrangles had halted most Commons business that day.

"He has been guilty of an articulate lack of skill," of Dalton Camp, national party leader who sought a leadership review that led to the 1966 leadership convention, Diefenbaker's downfall.

"When you have government that tries to turn a banana into a backbone, you can understand some of the uncertainties of the past two years," in a 1965 campaign speech, referring to Lester Pearson, prime minister at the time.

His Career: "I am still making history," after losing the Conservative leadership to Stanfield in 1967.

"Any accolades that come my way embarrass me," in 1976 on his 36th anniversary in Parliament. "I have not often been embarrassed."

"A man coming into Parliament should always clash with the man at the top . . . No one ever made a name by exercising his debating strength against the weak," on his 69th birthday in 1964.

He had many offers to return to work as a trial lawyer "but I've appointed so many of the judges I feel it would be indiscreet to appear before them," when he turned 74.

"Don't get me started on history because then you shall know the meaning of eternity," said frequently of his love of storytelling.

"I will make mistakes, but I hope it will be said of me when I give up the highest honor that you can confer on any man, as was said of another in public service: 'He wasn't always right; sometimes he was on the wrong side, but never on the side of wrong,' " when he accepted the Conservative leadership in 1955.

"I'd never have been prime minister if the Gallup polls had had their way," in Lethbridge, Alta., in 1962.

"I never campaign . . . I just visit with the people," in 1965 at a campaign picnic.

"They say I've made mistakes, you know. But they've been mistakes of the heart," at a party gathering in 1963.

"My friends, you say: 'Give 'em hell John!' I never do that. I tell the truth and it sounds like hell. It simply sounds that way to the Grits," in Moncton in 1963.

Royalty: "This government won't be satisfied until all semblance of royalty is in the garbage can," part of his successful attempt to reverse a policy that would have substituted the word "Police" for "RCMP" on cars and buildings.

"Both the people who are silent and in the majority should stand up for the monarchy and stop the surreptitious chiselling away under the table against the things that through the generations have been upheld by Scots everywhere," in 1969 to St. Andrew's Society members.

His Country: I have never seen it as divided as it is today," during an Aug. 10, 1979, CTV interview. "Suspicion, fear, all these things that deny unity are present."

"Sir John A. Macdonald gave his life to his party. He opened the West. He saw Canada from east to west. I see a new Canada — a Canada of the North," in Winnipeg, 1958.

"We in Canada believe that good fences are necessary," introducing the late U.S. president John F. Kennedy at a joint sitting of the Commons and the Senate in 1961.

"There are great interests against us — national and international — but the people of Canada have an appointment with destiny," in Port Hope, Ont., 1963.

"I am the first prime minister of this country of neither altogether English nor French origin. So I determined to bring about a Canadian citizenship that knew no hyphenated consideration," March, 1958.

His Childhood: "This is no novelty to me," in 1962 when some women of the radical Doukhobor Sons of Freedom sect stripped off their clothes at a political meeting. "I was raised on a homestead in Saskatchewan and that's why I know what those things are."

"We measured it (the homestead) by tying a handkerchief to a cartwheel and then counting the turns," in 1965 of his prairie home in Rosthern, Sask., which he helped build.

"I can't waste any time on you, Prime Minister, I must get about my work," in 1910 when he was a newspaper boy talking to Prime Minister Wilfred Laurier.

Youth: "The boys and girls today don't have the pride in their country that they did in my generation. You bring to the attention of young people today the awful sacrifices of two world wars — it's nothing. They don't know about it," Aug. 10, 1979 in an interview for broadcast on CTV.

Prime Minister Joe Clark later bowed his head and said a prayer over the body.

Clark and his wife Maureen McTeer stood in front of Diefenbaker's casket for a couple of minutes before moving away and expressing their condolences to family members.

These are the funeral plans:

Saturday, Aug. 18

10 a.m. to 7 p.m. — Body to lie in state.

Sunday, Aug. 19

10 a.m. to 12 Noon — Body will lie in state before being taken to Christ Church Cathedral.

3 p.m. — State funeral.

Monday, Aug. 20

Travel.

Tuesday, Aug. 21

2 p.m. — Train scheduled to arrive Saskatoon.

2 p.m. to 9 p.m. — Body to lie in state at University of Saskatchewan's Convocation Hall.

Wednesday, Aug. 22

10 a.m. to 2 p.m. — Body to lie in state until burial in a plot adjacent to the John G. Diefenbaker Centre at the University.

A memorial service will also be held in Victoria.

Lieutenant-Governor Henry Bell-Irving will be among those attending a service for John Diefenbaker, at 12:30 p.m. Monday in Christ Church Cathedral.

The service will be conducted by Anglican Bishop Roy Gartrell. Other church leaders, including Roman Catholic Bishop Remi De Roo and a representative of the Council of Churches, will attend.

Diefenbaker, himself, largely scripted his own elaborate final farewell. Several months ago, a senior bureaucrat named Graham Glockling made an appointment with Diefenbaker and summoned all the tact and diplomacy he could muster.

Aware of the former prime minister's recurring health problems and advanced age, Glockling met Diefenbaker "to review the arrangements he would like" following his death.

Despite the somber nature of the discussion, Glockling says Diefenbaker's reception was such that there were no awkward moments.

"I had discussed funeral arrangements with him several times," the official said in an interview. "The last time was a couple of months ago."

Glockling noted Diefenbaker "asked for a State funeral."

The two men discussed protocol, the type of memorial service that would be held, and such things.

High-level noise. You can't see it or feel it, but it's one of the worst hazards of the workplace. Where possible, employers should control it at its source. In the meantime, it's up to you to wear proper hearing protection. Otherwise your hearing may become more and more impaired. And that damage will be permanent.

Protect yourself. Starting now.

Today's Markets

Toronto

Twelve of the 14 stock groups gained, led by oil and gas. Pipelines and real estate and construction declined.

Trading resumed at mid-session in shares of Home Oil Ltd., Cygnus Corp. Ltd. and Consumers' Gas Co., which had been halted since Wednesday.

Consumers' announced details of a proposed merger of Home Oil and Cygnus, under which the amalgamated company would become a wholly-owned subsidiary of Consumers'.

Consumers' Gas rose ½ to $23¾ while Home Oil A soared 14 to $80½ and Home Oil B 13½ to $80½. There were no sales by 2 p.m. in shares of Cygnus Corp. A or B, both of which last traded at $17.

Trading in shares of Reed Stenhouse Cos. Ltd. resumed at 1:30 p.m. following a halt at the opening.

Vancouver

Prices were mixed in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange, with volume to 10:54 a.m. at 3,077,398 shares. Declines outnumbered advances 116 to 101.

In the industrials, B.C. Resources Investment Corp. was up .07 to $6.20 on 64,420 shares, Grouse Mountain was unchanged at .75 on 7,500 shares, Webb and Knapp Ltd. was unchanged at $2 on 2,300 shares and Northway Gestalt was unchanged at $1.53 on 1,600 shares. Potter Distillers A was down .05 to $1.75 and Taro Industries was down .10 to $3.30.

On the resources and development board, Iona Silver Mines was up .16 to $1.49 on 139,200 shares, SNA Resources was down .03 to .47 on 96,000 shares, Redford Mines Inc. was down .11 to $1.90 on 90,500 shares and Iona Silver Mines Warrants was up .08 to .35 on 88,500 shares. Laredo Petro was unchanged at .90 and North South Resources was up .65 to $4.75.

New York

Stock prices were little changed in moderate trading today, in the face of a mix of economic news.

Oil stocks made substantial gains after President Carter announced he decontrolled the price of heavy oil, following through on a promise made in his energy speech a month ago. Heavy oi is thick tar-like product which is more expensive to produce than lighter oils.

Getty Oil jumped 3⅛ to $55⅝. Atlantic Richfield rose 1⅞ to $68⅛; Standard Oil of California gained 1⅝ to $51½.

Earlier in the day, the commerce department said the Gross National Product fell 2.4 per cent in the second quarter, less steeply than its earlier 3.3 per cent estimate. But the report also showed that corporate profits fell a steep 2.4 per cent in the same period.

London

The Financial Times index was ~~down 5.4 to~~ 474.3.

Company reports

Trans Mountain

Trans Mountain Pipe Line Co Ltd. reports net earnings of $3,842,000 or 50.7 cents a share for the six months ended June 30, compared with earnings of $2,387,000 or 31.5 cents a share for the same period last year.

Operating revenue totalled $16,992,000 compared with $13,798,000 in the first six months of 1978.

The higher earnings were attributed to the increased deliveries of petroleum, jet fuel and propane.

Trans Mountain has applied to regulatory bodies in Canada and the United States for permission to build a 30-inch pipeline system to Edmonton from Port Angeles, Wash.

Toronto Sun

Toronto Sun Publishing Co. has reported a profit of $515,900 or 26 cents a share for the 13 weeks ended July 28, a 47-per-cent increase from the $349,800 or 20 cents a share earned in the same period last year.

The company, which publishes both the Toronto Sun and Edmonton Sun, reported revenue of $12,105,000 compared with $10,011,900 for the 1978 quarter.

Alberta Gas

Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd. has announced that unaudited net income for the six months ended June 30, 1979, was $44.6 million, up 35 per cent from the same period last year.

Basic earnings a common share for the period were $1.03 compared with 87 cents in 1978 on a total of 29.3 million common shares outstanding. Earnings a share on a fully diluted basis were 88 cents compared with 84 cents last year.

Gross consolidated revenues were up 41 per cent to $310.3 million this year from $220.8 million in 1978. Gross revenues derived from gas transmission were $119.3 million in the period compared with $111.0 million last year.

Power Corp.

Profits before extraordinary items nearly tripled for Power Corp. of Canada Ltd. in the first half of 1979, rising to $35 million from $13.2 million during the same period last year, the company has announced.

Consolidated earnings amounted to $1.35 a share, compared to 48 cents a share for the same period in 1978.

Gross revenue increased to $115.3 million from $109.1 million. Earnings from operations fell to $7 million from $8.3 million, but unconsolidated subsidiaries and affiliated companies brought in $38.8 million compared with $13.3 million in 1978.

Extraordinary items amounted to $4.2 million this year and $1.4 million last year.

Second-quarter profits for 1979 reached $23.9 million, compared with $11.1 million a year earlier. Figures for 1978 have been restated to take account of a stock split and accounting changes, the company said.

Grafton Group

Grafton Group Ltd. has reported a profit of $2,853,000 or 38 cents a share for the three months ending June 30, compared with $2,320,000 or 30 cents a share for the same period a year ago.

The Toronto-based company said profit from its clothing division was flat but earnings from footwear, home furnishings and financial income improved substantially.

Inland Gas Co.

Inland Natural Gas Co. has reported net earnings for the year ended June 30, 1979 were $5.7 million or $1.53 a share, compared with $4.9 million or $1.25 a share the previous year.

Revenue was $86.7 million, the company said.

Brenda Mines

Brenda Mines Ltd. of Peachland, B.C. has reported net earnings for the six months ending June 30 were $11.6 million or $2.72 a share, nearly double those in the same period last year.

Earnings for the first half of 1978 were $6.5 million or $1.52 a share, the company said.

Revenue rose to $51.6 million from $35.2 million in 1978.

Inter-City Gas

Inter-City Gas Ltd. of Winnipeg said a cold winter helped boost revenues during the first half of 1979 to $216.5 million, up from $186 million last year.

In a statement the company said new residential and industrial customers also contributed to the increased revenue.

Net income before extraordinary items was up by 55 per cent during the six-month period to $8.44 million.

Ripples of recession spreading over U.S.

By GLENN RITT

WASHINGTON (AP) — A recession is like a wave in a pond, rippling slowly and inevitably across the economy, affecting different sectors at different times in different ways.

Many Carter administration economists, including newly confirmed Treasury Secretary William Miller, say the United States is in a recession. Statistics show retail sales down, inventories up, the gross national product slipping.

But a downturn's most dramatic sign — unemployment — has yet to show up nationally. The current jobless rate, 5.7 per cent, is nearly unchanged from recent months.

Economists say, however, that unemployment lags behind other indicators in signalling a recession.

"The 5.7-per-cent rate is a last gasp before everything on the employment front gets pretty rotten," says Jeffrey Green, an economist at Wharton's Econometrics Forecasting Associates.

His Philadelphia firm predicts a 7.5-per-cent jobless rate by next year. A memo prepared by administration economists suggests unemployment may exceed eight per cent by the end of 1980. Each percentage point represents one million people out of work.

Businessmen who sell consumer goods — particularly easily delayed purchases like cars, appliances and furniture — are the first to suffer from recession. In this year's second quarter, retail sales declined 4.5 per cent, adjusted for inflation.

But it takes months before depressed sales create inventories large enough to force businesses to cancel old orders or delay new ones.

Only then will producers have to cut production to avoid their own swelling inventories. When this happens, workers are laid off.

Then the recessionary ripple begins all over again. Laid-off workers lose the income needed to purchase a new car, a refrigerator, clothes, dinner out. Retailers face more reduced sales. Many must cut their orders even further.

Detroit already is in a recession, says Arvid Jouppi, auto industry analyst. The city's jobless rate, at 10 per cent, is nearly double the national average. Car sales started dropping in March, following 50 consecutive upbeat months.

What does this mean for auto workers?

Already, 43,000 have been laid off, and Data Resources Inc., a Cambridge, Mass., economic forecasting firm, predicts the toll will reach 102,000 by the end of the year.

Many economists say the layoff of 100,000 auto workers can create 200,000 layoffs across the U.S. in industries that supply Detroit, such as steel and aluminum from Pittsburgh, rubber from Akron and plastics from Delaware.

Who owns the land?

TORONTO (CP) — Although most of the provinces have placed some restrictions on land purchases by non-residents, none has figures on how much land is already owned by foreigners and only a few are attempting to find out.

The most recent figures from Statistics Canada show that, in 1975, foreigners had invested about $510 million in personal property.

But the federal agency does not know where in Canada this money is invested or how much land it represents.

Ten years ago, foreigners were free to buy privately-owned Canadian land indiscriminately. But eight of the 10 provinces have since responded to public pressure by imposing various restrictions on these land purchases.

Canada does not have a law similar to the Foreign Investment Disclosure Act in the U.S. which requires all foreign owners of more than one acre of agricultural, forestry or timber land to register the land's value with county officials. If they do not, they are liable to a fine of 25 per cent of the property's market value.

No Canadian province or territory has such a law and individual property acquisitions are not examined by the federal Foreign Investment Review Agency unless the foreigner is buying a business.

A recent amendment to the Canada Citizenship Act gave the provinces authority to control the purchase of land within their boundaries.

This is the situation by province:

—Prince Edward Island restricts the acquisition of property by non-residents (including Canadians) to 10 acres, or less than 96 metres of shore frontage unless the buyer has the permission of the provincial cabinet. The puchaser must also agreed to retain the land as he bought it. A spokesman for the provincial government said the province has decided to investigate property ownership.

—Nova Scotia requires that buyers file a disclosure statement when they buy property. This requirement has never been tested in court.

—New Brunswick and Newfoundland have no legislation restricting foreign purchases of land.

—Quebec charges foreigners a 33-per-cent surcharge tax when they buy land. However, if the property does not exceed one acre and the value of the building on it is greater than that of the land, the buyer is not taxed.

—Ontario charges foreigners a 20-per-cent tax for recreational and woodland purchases. The province has a policy for Crown cottage lots in Northern Ontario: Only in the third year on the market are lots open to foreigners for leasing. A government official said Americans and West Germans buy a lot of land in the province.

—Manitoba restricts foreigners to no more than 20 acres of agricultural land but foreign corporations are not restricted.

—Saskatchewan limits non-residents (including Canadians) to an aggregate land holding of no more than 160 acres of arable land. Rough statistics show that about five million acres are in the hands of non-residents. This is less than one per cent of that province's arable land.

—Alberta restricts foreigners to 20 acres of rural land but exceptions are made for industry and development. In 1978, one per cent of total rural sales and seven per cent of urban sales were made to foreigners.

—British Columbia refuses to sell Crown land to foreigners but lets privately-owned land be sold limitlessly. Purchasers of agricultural land must keep it in production.

—The Yukon and the Northwest Territories have no restrictions or statistics on foreign land purchases.

Drug firm leaving Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — Smith, Kline and French Canada Ltd., a pharmaceutical firm employing 250 workers, has begun transferring its operations here to the Toronto suburb of Mississauga.

Office workers completed their move this week, and by the end of the month, all manufacturing operations are expected to have been transferred, a company spokesman said.

Company officials refused to explain the move, although other firms in the Canadian pharmaceuticals industry, traditionally centred in Montreal, have complained that Quebec language laws make it more difficult to attract qualified staff, especially researchers.

Research centres operated by companies which do a substantial part of their business outside Quebec are not required by provincial language laws to operate in French, but there have been complaints about the language of schooling.

Inflation on the rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation is rising in most of the world's rich countries, with the United States well up among the leaders, the International Monetary Fund has reported.

The IMF lists 14 countries as "industrial." In the 12 that gave figures for the month of May — all but Italy and Denmark — consumers were paying an average of 8.3 per cent more for their purchases than they had been doing a year before. This was the eighth month in a row to show such a rise, and the IMF said the trend seemed to continue in June.

The U.S. figure was 10.8 per cent in May and 10.9 per cent in June. The May figure for the United States was the highest among the 12 countries reporting. In June, Britain's figure rose to 11.3 per cent.

The upward tendency was also visible in West Germany, Japan, Belgium, Sweden, Norway and Switzerland.

Among the 12, Switzerland still had the lowest figure in May, a price rise of only 2.9 per cent for the preceding 12 months, closely followed by Japan and Austria with 3.1 per cent. But Switzerland showed a considerable jump to an annual rate of four per cent in June, for which the Japanese and Austrian figures were not available.

Three countries reported a downward trend of consumer prices in May: Canada, Austria and the Netherlands, while France remained stable at the high rate of 10.1 per cent.

The IMF reported in a "memorandum" that the rich industrial countries are going deeper into the red on their international trade. They bought $87.3 billion worth of goods in May, a record figure and nearly $10 billion more than they sold. That deficit was more than twice as large as April's.

WIN! $1,000^00 IN CASH PRIZES EVERY OTHER WEEK!

WIN! GRAND PRIZE TRIP FOR TWO TO HAWAII, By Wardair

The object is to match the official letters published every day with the letters in the grid which you have filled in with your name (see samples 1 and 2). When you have circled a row of letters across, vertically, or diagonally either way, send your entry in for the bi-weekly draw for cash prizes. You may submit as many entries as you wish per game, but each must be in a separate envelope.

THE NAME GAME
Rules and Procedures

Object of "The Name Game": To become eligible for prize drawings by matching letters of the alphabet, published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, with the letters in your name. Each game starts with a Saturday Times and ends in the Sunday Colonist two weeks later. The official entry form will be published every day. All members of a family may play. There is no age limit. You may enter more than once but only one entry per envelope may be submitted. As each game ends, you are invited to play the next game.

1. Using the official entry form or a reasonably hand-drawn facsimile (no mechanically reproduced forms accepted), start at the upper left hand corner and print your name continuously, one letter in each square, until all the squares are filled in. (For example, if your name is John Anderson, Sample 1 shows how to fill out your entry form.) Do not include punctuation.
Use your legal name, in a form which can be verified on your driver's licence, social security card or other official identification. You may use various forms of your first name (e.g. John, Jonathan or John S.), as long as your identity can be verified. No nicknames, please.
2. Letters for the Name Game will be published as follows: 4 letters Saturday Times and Sunday Colonist and 3 letters daily. When an official letter matches one in your diagram, circle it on your entry. That letter may appear in more than one square on your diagram, but you may circle only one such letter (of your choice) each time. Since individual letters are selected at random, they may appear more than once — even on the same day. You may circle one such letter as many times as that letter is published. The same letters will be published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, but may only be used once in any one entry.
3. When you match enough letters to complete one row on your diagram — horizontal, vertical or diagonal (corner to corner), as in Sample 2, you are eligible for the prize drawings for that game. Drawings for 15 prizes will be held every other week for 10 weeks. At each drawing $500 goes to the first name drawn, $100 to the next —, $50 each to the next 3, and $25 for the last 10 — (Winners must answer a time-limited skill-testing question before collecting prizes.) All names drawn will be returned to the drum for the grand prize drawing.
4. Mail your completed entry form to: The Name Game, Victoria Press, P.O. Box 1390, Victoria, B.C. V8W 3C4; postmarked no later than the Monday following the end of that game. Completed entries may also be delivered, in a sealed envelope, to Victoria Press, no later than Tuesday, the following day. The game number (such as 'Game 1', 'Game 2', etc.) must appear at the lower left-hand corner of the envelope.
5. All entries will be placed in a container and the winning entries will be drawn at random. Winners will be announced in the Colonist and Times on the Friday following the close of each game. The odds of winning will depend on the number of eligible entries received.
6. It is not necessary to buy the Times or Colonist to participate. Copies of the newspaper may be inspected free of charge at the newspaper's offices during regular business hours. Sorry, official letters will not be given over the phone.
7. Employees of the newspapers and members of their immediate families are not eligible to participate. Unclaimed or invalidly claimed prizes will be donated to a recognized charity at the close of the contest.
8. Winners agree to allow publication of their names, pictures and publicity in the Times and Colonist without additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all game rules.
9. Decisions of Victoria Press judges in all matters relating to the The Name Game will be final.

Asked to spy in B.C., Croat says

A Croatian-born Canadian citizen says he was approached by the Yugoslav secret police while visiting his homeland and asked to spy on Croatian anti-communist factions in B.C.

Ceboci Milivoj, 37, of Vancouver says agents of the Yugoslav secret police (UDBA) asked him "to get close" to Mayor Jack Volrich, who is of Yugoslavian ancestry, and assess the mayor's feeling about the Croatian community on the West Coast.

Milivoj, an ethnic radio program producer who became a Canadian citizen in 1974, also said in an interview that he refused to spy on the 40,000 Yugoslavs living in the Vancouver area because he has never been interested in politics.

At no time did the police offer money in return for the espionage they expected, he said, demanding instead that he should be motivated by patriotism.

He also was to gather information on prominent Croatians living here and in Nanaimo including his former business partner George Djurkovic, and Dr. Mladen Zorkin.

Dr. Zorkin, who owns Zorkin Realty in Naniamo, says that he is naturally the target of Yugoslav spying.

"I'm not surpised," says Zorkin, "I think the consulate came to Vancouver just to spy on all Canadians of Croatian origin.

"As the national president of the Croation Peasant Society of Canada — the biggest and strongest Croatian organisation in Canada, I'm naturally their target."

A spokesman for the Croatian Liberation Association, Roko Nikolic, said it's common practice with the Yugoslav government to use all kinds of tactics to try and recruit spies.

He said he has heard of other local cases of Yugoslavia attempting to induct spies but refused to give any names.

Nikolic says that every third Croatian is in exile because of oppression in their own country.

Nikolic says that in 1970, the Canadian embassy advised him not to return to his homeland. He has not been back since he fled in 1957.

He says his own brother had his store bombed in Chicago.

"Always people want to have freedom. The ones oppressing them don't want to give up their rule," says Nikolic.

Milivoj said he was to collect information on these men, with emphasis on how much money they obtained for buying arms supposedly for use by Croatians against the communist regime in Yugoslavia.

Giuniu-Zorkin said he didn't know Milivoj personally, but "it's very interesting he'll say that publicly."

"Every consulate in the world is an agency for spying," said Giuniu-Zorkin. "I'm convinced there's hundreds of people in Vancouver are approached in the same way.

"I know of similar cases from people who come to me in confidence who have been asked to do the same thing."

Djurkovic said he knew Milivoj. Djurkovic and Giuniu-Zorkin both denied that any money in their organization went to support anti-communist activity in Yugoslavia.

Milivoj also said the secret police wanted to know who killed Dr. Valdimir Sovilj, a Serbian pediatrician who was shot several times about two two years ago as he left the Vancouver YMCA.

Det. Robin Kirkland of that city's major crimes section said Milivoj's story about being asked to work as a spy could be true. Kirkland investigated the Sovilj slaying and did not rule out a political motive in the shooting.

Forestry peace stymied

VANCOUVER (UPC) — A number of tradesmen from British Columbia's three major forest industry unions — the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada (PPWC), International Woodworkers of America and the Canadian Paperworkers' Union — have formed their own association and are conducting study sessions to back demands for extra wage increases on top of the recent industry-wide settlement agreed to by their unions.

And pulp workers, members of the militant PPWC, are still conducting local strikes over unresolved local issues which continue to stand in the way of a general contract.

Forest Industrial Relations (FIR), bargaining agent for some 20 forest companies in the province, is asking the B.C Labor Relations for a cease-and-desist order to stop another tradesmen study session planned for Aug. 23 and 24, an FIR spokesman said Thursday.

The men are angry because benchmen, who supervise the maintenance of all saws in sawmills, were given a larger raise than tradesmen in the settlement.

Tradesmen aren't the only ones that are dissatisfied. Some 2,000 pulp workers, members of the PPWC, were off the job Thursday.

Angus Macphee, president of the militant PPWC — only one of three major forest industry unions which has not reached agreement this year with the companies — has said the union will sign a contract agreement with the industry once outstanding local issues are cleared up.

The other two major unions have signed basically the same two-year contract.

Indians tackle mill over pollution

GOLD RIVER (CP) — The Mowachacht Indian band is attempting to implement a pollution control bylaw at a pulp mill here through the federal Indian Act.

The band, comprising 150 Nootka Indians, wants to use Section 81 of the act to impose stringent regulations on the Tahsis Co. Ltd. mill.

The band's main grievances include waste disposal, air and water pollution, chemical spills, noise and pesticide and herbicide applications.

The B.C. pollution control branch, the federal health department and the B.C. Medical Association's environmental health committee sent representatives to a hearing on the band's charges earlier this week.

Band members accused Tahsis of drastically altering their quality of life by operating the mill on reserve land.

Elders told of the loss of massive salmon runs in the Muchalat Inlet and the erosion of traditional ways of life.

"The trees are dying, we see no deer, elk or harbor seals and the salmon don't come up the inlet," said band chief Heywassuh.

"We can't breathe with the dust and stink," said Josie Johnson. "The steam blows all night, we can't sleep and our children don't get well from sores, rashes, watery eyes and sore throats."

A 1979 federal Environment Protection Service report documents the halted migration of two Pacific salmon species and a complete loss of herring spawning in Muchalet Inlet since the mill went into operation in 1967.

The band's bargaining point could be the mill's power supply which, B.C. Hydro has admitted, illegally crosses the reserve. An $8,000 settlement offer has been refused.

Hospital pull-out threat

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pat Shields, president of the British Columbia Private Hospitals Association, says members of his group might opt out of the province's long-term care program if the health ministry doesn't increase payments to private hospital owners.

Shields said the government's increased payments to owners of long-term care facilities "sad and shocking" in light of increased costs.

After months of negotiations, the health ministry announced Monday it would increase payments to the BCPHA and the B.C. Association of Private Care Facilities by about nine per cent.

The government now will pay $14.20 a day instead of $13.50 for personal care and $18.20 instead of $16.45, $21.75 instead of $20.55 and $35 rather than $28.30 for intermediate care.

Patients will continue to pay $6.50 a day.

B.C. Briefs

Hertz shifts to reverse on truck rental to mine

BURNABY (CP) — Hertz Canada Ltd. has agreed to stop renting trucks to Placer Development for shipping molybdenum after union members at Placer's strike-bound mine at Fraser Lake, B.C. set up picket lines at the Hertz truck rental centre here.

About 500 workers, members of the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers, have been on strike at the central British Columbia molybdenum mine since Feb. 14.

Union spokesman Bob Green said the union is conducting secondary picketing in an attempt to pressure Placer into settling the contract dispute.

Last month, a provincial mediator proposed wage and fringe benefit increases totalling 24 per cent in the first year of a two-year contract, and nine per cent in the second year.

On July 9, the union asked for an additional 15 cents to be added to wages Jan. 1, 1981. Base rate now is $6.43 an hour.

The company turned down the proposal.

MLA criticized

CRANBROOK (CP) — MLA Terry Segarty has been criticized by the Kootenay Secondary Mills Association for not living up to promises he made during the provincial election campaign.

Eugene Schmidt, association vice-president, Wednesday accused Segarty (SC-Kootenay) of betraying smaller logging operators.

Schmidt said the MLA has changed his stand in regard to the offering of timber.

Ruling favors HEU

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Labor Relations Board ruled Thursday in favor of the Hospital Employees Union in a dispute at a Vernon nursing home.

The union wanted the board to declare that the provincial government's Essential Services Disputes Act applies to the Norwick nursing home in Vernon so it could have a contract dispute settled by binding arbitration.

Norwick House, which does not want to go to binding arbitration, claimed it is not a hospital and therefore not covered by essential services legislation.

Board vice-chairman Jim McIntyre agreed the extended care facility is not a hospital under the act, but ruled that since the workers' main duty is patient care, the act does apply and arbitration is the next step.

PWA losses plea

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Federal Court of Appeal has dismissed damage claims by Pacific Western Airlines arising from the February, 1978 crash of a PWA Boeing 737 in Cranbrook that killed 43 persons.

Mr. Justice Louis Pratt dismissed the airline's appeal of an earlier action against federal government officials, the City of Cranbrook and the Boeing Co.

The action had been dismissed in Federal Court on grounds that it did not fall within federal jurisdiction. PWA appealed, but in a short written decision issued Thursday, Justice Pratt said claims against Boeing come under the jurisdiction of United States air regulations.

Claims more than money: Berger

VANCOUVER (CP) — A settlement of native claims will not be merely a matter of providing land and money, says Mr. Justice Thomas Berger of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

The claims extend to renewable and non-renewable resources, education, health and social services, public order and "over-arching all of these, the future shape and composition of political institutions," Berger said.

Speaking to the International Congress of Americanists, he said native claims are founded on something as important to the urban native as it is to the rural native.

"Their determination to remain distinct peoples is based on their conviction that individual identity depends on collective identity — knowing who you are means knowing who your people are, where your home is."

Berger said native people do not wish to return to the past.

"Rather, they wish to ensure that their culture can continue to grow and change — in directions they choose for themselves."

The settlement of native claims should allow native people to thrive and native culture to develop, Berger said.

"It is my conviction that if, in working out a settlement of native claims, we try to force native social and economic development into moulds that we have cast, the whole process will be a failure," he said.

Meeting slated on grain delays

VANCOUVER (UPC) — West coast marine employers have agreed to meet with grain and Vancouver port officials to resolve grain export delays said to be caused partly by lack of longshore manpower.

John Slos, chairman of a special port-grain officials committee that met earlier this week to discuss the problem, said Thursday no date had been set for the meeting with the British Columbia Maritime Employers' Association.

Slos said representatives of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union may also be invited to the meeting.

The BCMEA represents the grain industry and negotiates labor agreements with the longshormen.

Les Copan, vice-president of the longshoremen's union, blamed the summer vacation season as the reason for the shortages. He said the problem "should resolve itself shortly.

On Tuesday Pacific Elevators and Alberta Wheat Pool called for a total of nine gangs and got two. But by Wednesday, spokesmen for two other terminal operators — the United Grain Growers and Saskatchewan Wheat Pool — reported normal operations.

3 Nigerians jailed in U.K.

LONDON (Reuter) — Three Nigerians who tried to smuggle marijuana with a street value of $29,000 into Britain hidden in a set of bongo drums were jailed for a total of 10½ years. The men were arrested when they came to take delivery of the drums at London's Heathrow Airport.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The railways, the wheat board, the grain companies, the dockers — which deserves the blame for the steady succession of tie-ups and backlogs in grain shipments from Vancouver?

None of them and all of them, says a top shipping official, who cites a general lack of co-ordination in the complex system that delivers Prairie grain to overseas markets.

Norm Cunningham, president of the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association, assigns about two per cent of the blame to delays at dockside. The rest belongs to the other cogs in the grain delivery machine.

"Everybody looks out at the ships anchored in English Bay and blames the longshoremen and that's not so," Cunningham said in an interview.

"A week ago it was the railways. It's the lack of co-ordination in the delivery of grain."

The federal government agrees. During the last election campaign, the Progressive Conservatives promised to appoint a grain transportation co-ordinator with the power to get shipments rolling smoothly and make sure they stay that way. An inquiry has been fielded under Manitoba MP Jack Murta to define the position, but the system's problems continue.

Earlier this year, there were the usual seasonal complaints that the railways were not providing enough cars or moving grain to port fast enough. This week, the sidings at the grain terminals lining Vancouver harbor were plugged with cars waiting to be unloaded and it was the longshoremen's turn to shoulder the blame.

Terminal operators cited a shortage of longshoremen due to the summer vacation period and said that those who are on hand avoid working day shifts. Instead, they turn up in droves on night shifts which pay a premium rate of time-and-a-half on a base rate of $10 an hour.

Ed Isaac, manager of the local Canadian wheat board office, said the net result was that 30,000 tons of grain a day was moving out of Vancouver, down sharply from an average of 40,000 tons a day.

"It's terribly frustrating," said Isaac.

"We are paying time-and-a-half to load ships at night — during the day they are sitting idle.

"We have got the grain cars, we have got the grain, but we can't get the guys to load it."

One terminal reported that a call for five longshore gangs one morning this week brought out just one.

Isaac noted that delay means more than inconvenience. The wheat board — and ultimately Prairie farmers — are liable to a demurrage charge of $5,000 for each day that each ship is delayed.

"I'm not denying that some longshoremen hold back from the day shift," Cunningham said, "but that's just a nice, trite statement that doesn't answer the problem.

"I'm not defending the longshoremen — we have some difficulties in the summer vacation season and at Christmas time — but if you are going to point the finger at one thing, then you should look at the over-all equation. If you did, you'd find that the stevedoring industry and the longshoremen are maybe a two-per-cent factor."

Cunningham said a much greater delay results from bad co-ordination — when ships sit idle because the grade or variety of grain they are to take on has not yet arrived by rail.

Les Copan, president of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, agreed with Cunningham that while vacationing dockers are an obvious target, the real reason for the backlog is bad timing — no letup in the pace of rail deliveries during the holiday period.

Cigarettes top hazards at mill

VANCOUVER (CP) — A health study of nearly 2,000 workers at MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.'s Powell River, B.C. pulp mill places more blame on cigarette smoking than mill conditions for health problems among workers.

The study was carried out by a research team headed by Dr. Stefan Grzybowski and Dr. Moira Yeung of the Occupational Lung Disease Unit, University of British Columbia department of medicine at Vancouver General Hospital.

The researchers said data collected showed that workers in the Kraft mill about 120 kilometres northwest of here did not have an unusually high prevalence of chest symptoms or lung function abnormalities — even though they were exposed to such gases as sulphur dioxide and hydrogen sulphide.

However, the investigators found that workers exposed to carbon monoxide had blood changes which might adversely affect those with a history of angina or heart attack.

They also said workers exposed to paper dust and some chemicals have a higher prevalence of a history of jaundice but blood tests indicated no remaining disability or abnormality.

The study concludes — as have many other previous studies — that cigarette smoking is more harmful to the respiratory system and the lungs than the effects of the various air contaminants.

City 'reasonable' on fire precautions

Owners representing four buildings who have already agreed to conform with the National Building Code will be given the same option granted others if council approves the committee's recommendation.

The orders require buildings to achieve modern standards of fire resistance, with acceptable fire exits, emergency lighting, smoke warning and fire alarm systems.

Four had agreed to requirements specified earlier by the fire department and three had asked for an extension of the time allowed for improvements.

Twenty condominium owners of Bickerton Court showed up and strata council chairman Norman Calverley delivered a brief asking whether a strata lot is a private dwelling house, or a public building as defined in the Fire Services Act.

Chief Eric Simmons said the act defines public buildings specifically and any building other than a private dwelling house.

Calverley said it would cost $60,000-$80,000 to install the necessary wiring for an acceptable alarm system, pointing out it was only five years ago that Bickerton upgraded its fire requirements, and the building was certified by the fire department only five months before the most recent order was issued in November, 1978.

There are 97 suites in the building, housing some 150 residents of whom just over 100 are retired.

Each floor has two fire wardens and all residents are made aware of a comprehensive fire and emergency plan.

Young said the requirement for an approved fire detection alarm system should be waived provided Bickerton provides each residential unit and corridor with individual detectors.

Calverley said the cost of equipping the building with approved detectors would be less than $5,000.

Goodacre Towers, Regent Tower and Charter House would be allowed to upgrade by including room smoke detectors and corridor alarm-detection systems.

Seaview Towers, Beacon Towers, Princess Patricia Apartments and Lord Simcoe Apartments will be told they must upgrade in accordance with existing fire marshal's orders or complete work as requested by the fire chief by Nov. 30.

Street study hunts leader

Representatives of 23 groups and organizations will be called together to select a chairman for Victoria's task force on street people.

The task force was proposed by Ald. Robin Blencoe to deal with problems associated with the downtown core and people who make the streets their living space.

Blencoe said he has had difficulty finding a chairman who can relate to the the downtown business community and street people.

The committee will include representatives of council, police, the family court committee, the probation service, the human resources ministry, the Indian Friendship Centre, the Chamber of Commerce, Cool-Aid, Mustard Seed, Upper Room, the Salvation Army, the school board, YM-YWCA Outreach, business associations, youth workers and street children.

BLENCOE

The committee agreed that the Liquor Administration Branch and liquor dispensing licencees should be added.

"It is obvious liquor plays a large part in downtown problems," Blencoe said.

The task force will have no powers to act but will make recommendations to council.

Blencoe suggested that to make it work on a daily basis, the task force should develop subcommittees to deal with specific issues like native Indian problems, policing and the role played by drinking establishments in downtown problems.

Grant okayed for PoW meeting

A $250 grant to help former prisoners of war hold their 1981 national conference in Victoria was recommended Thursday by city council's finance committee.

The request came from Norman Rubenstein, president of the B.C. chapter of the National Prisoners of War Association.

Rubenstein, who was a PoW of the Germans in 1940, said the provincial secretary's department is giving $500 and that Defence and Veterans Affairs Minister Allan McKinnon has arranged for free armed forces flights for two delegates to attend the 1979 conference in Halifax, where preparations for the Victoria meeting must begin.

Most of the 60 members of the reactivated B.C. group are on disability pensions and cannot raise enough money to send delegates to Halifax, he said.

In other business, aldermen referred a Union of B.C. Municpalities resolution opposing Sunday shopping hours to council.

The B.C. division of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada sought council support in asking for provincial legislation to control Sunday shopping.

Exceptions would be allowed for corner stores, drug sections or stores in tourist areas, the association said.

The committee also recommended that an evangelical group be allowed use of Centennial Square from 2 to 4 p.m. daily for a week this month.

But it was also stipulated the city manager have discretion to tone down sound amplification if the singing, preaching, testimonials and musical instruments become too loud.

LITTLE GUY MAKES GOOD.

Chevy Chevette Now Canada's Best Selling Small Car.

Chevrolet is very proud to announce that in 1979* the Chevy Chevette became Canada's No. 1 small car. And for darn good reason. You see, when Chevrolet decided to build a small economy car, it drew on years and years of experience to create its design. And now, after less than 4 years, the Chevy Chevette has proven itself to be the No. 1 value car that it was designed to be. We knew you'd recognize one finely built, solid little character when you saw it.

VALUE

The Chevette has a personality just loaded with standard features. And we knew you'd welcome its low price tag. A price that includes so many features, even the competition had to sit up and take notice. Plus with three models to choose from: (a 4-door Hatchback rings in at $4,750, the 2-door Hatchback Coupe at †$4,610, and the nifty little 2-door Scooter at ‡$4,019), we knew you'd be hard pressed not to find one exactly right for your individual style.

FACTS

Now when we talk about Chevy Chevette's solid character, we're talking about a 1.6 litre engine with a 4-speed standard transmission that will give you an estimated fuel consumption/economy rating of 7.0 litres per 100 kilometres or if you prefer 40 MPG, reliable front disc/rear drum brakes, positive rack-and-pinion steering, sturdy double-panel body construction, sound-deadening acoustical treatment, body side mouldings, extensive corrosion-resistant treatments, a high energy ignition system, radial tires and believe it, even more.

COMFORTS

And when we talk about personality, the little Chevette really lets you sit back and relax. Just get behind the sports steering wheel and notice all that nice cut pile carpeting under foot. Not to mention fingertip control of turn signals, headlight dimmer, wipers, washers; AM radio, flow through ventilation, cigarette lighter and reclining bucket seats. All standard equipment.

MANOEUVREABILITY

And if you like to be close to where the action is, this little guy was built just for you. The Chevy Chevette can manoeuvre through the thick of it in comfort and style. In fact, it can turn you around almost as quickly as you can change your mind. Yes we knew it was all just a matter of time before the little Chevy Chevette would find its proper place in the sun, but that's not going to stop us from thanking you for recognizing it so soon. Get into a Chevy Chevette. Canada's No. 1 small car. It'll do you proud too.

New vehicle warranty 12 months/20,000 kilometres. 3-yr. perforation from corrosion warranty. Available Continuous Protection Plan.

Workers defy LRB decision

About 130 employees at Nanaimo Regional General Hospital are defying a Labor Relations Board back-to-work order and continuing a sit-in to protest the suspension of a co-worker.

A meeting opened today between union officials and representatives of the Health Labor Relations Association in an effort to resolve the dispute.

The board ruled Thursday that the employees should return to work under a 30-day interim agreement while a grievance over the suspension of a 60-year-old cleaner is resolved.

The members of the Hospital Employees Union began the sit-in Tuesday when the maintenance worker was suspended after refusing to take part in a garbage pick-up detail.

Those involved in the sit-in work in the dietary, medical records, and maintenance departments as well as the business office.

As a result of the dispute, the hospital has had to cancel elective surgery but hospital spokesman John Nikitium said today most other services are being maintained.

Refugee aid sought

The Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association today launched a fund-raising campaign to help Vietnamese refugees.

The drive was initiated by president Peter Lou-Poy and the association's academic adviser, Dr. David Lai.

The association hopes to raise enough money to sponsor a families to come to Canada or help those families already here who need financial assistance.

Rev. S.M. Li and Gene Mah of the Chinese Presbyterian Church are co-chairman of the fund-raising drive.

The Hoy Sun Benevolent Association was the first Chinese organization to respond to the campaign, donating $500.

Those wishing to donate should send cheques payable to the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association, c/o Rev. S.M. Li, Chinese Presbyterian Church, 816 North Park.

They can also contact CCBA staff members or representatives of any other Chinese benevolent association.

CCBA staff members include Rev. Daniel Ho of Victoria Chinese Alliance Church, Rev. Steve Wong of the Chinese Pentecostal Church, Augustine Low of the Peking Restaurant and Frank Lee of the Don Mee Restaurant.

Receipts with registration numbers will be mailed to donors for income tax return purposes.

8-year sentences

BRUSSELS (UPI) — A Belgian court has sentenced two Palestinians to eight years in prison each for an Easter Monday grenade and submachine gun attack at Brussels airport that wounded 16 persons. Hoseini Rad Mahmoud, 31, and Dayekh Khaled Dokh, 26, were found guilty of attempted murder.

Lot of talent back home, Aussie says

Scott's World

By Vernon Scott

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Every five years or so Australia exports a top-flight performer to the United States: first Helen Reddy, then Olivia Newton-John and now Julie Anthony who makes her American TV debut this month.

Reddy and Newton-John burst on the national consciousness with hit records. Julie is making her impact on TV starring in The Arthur Godfrey Special, a syndicated hour variety show.

She's also completed her own Julie Anthony's Gold Coast Special, another syndicated hour which she discribes as a mini-travelogue of Australia featuring her own singing and dancing. It will be televised the first week in September.

Julie is a tall, blue-eyed brunette who appears to be more sophisticated and polished than her two Aussie predecessors when they arrived in Hollywood. She is chic and poised. Her Australian accent is faint.

Unlike Reddy and Newton-John, she plans to continue to live in Australia, coming to the United States only when she has work to do.

Asked if we could expect a steady stream of female singers from down under, Julie nodded affirmatively.

"There's a heck of a lot more talent back home that hasn't been discovered yet," she said. "We've got hundreds of outstanding singers in Australia.

"The explanation is relatively simple. There are 500 nightclubs in Sydney alone and all of them feature singers who could do well in England and the United States if they had the opportunity.

"But even most Australians aren't familiar with them because they aren't cutting records and seldom appear on television.

"The singers, and there are hundreds of them, go from club to club getting a proper grounding and the necessary experience. There's nothing like it in the States or England."

Travellers cheque ads rile competitors

NEW YORK (AP) — Those "don't-leave-home-without-them" television commercials for American Express travellers cheques are under attack.

Competitors say the ads unfairly imply that people who lose travellers cheques may not be able to get a refund unless the cheques are American Express.

Citicorp Services, which issues First National City travellers cheques, took full-page advertisements Thursday in the New York Times, the Washington Post and some editions of the Wall Street Journal to advise: "Don't leave home without all the facts."

"We felt that we had no choice," said Jeffrey Neubert, president of Citicorp Services. He said the company asked American Express to withdraw the ads and was turned down.

Neubert said sales agents are complaining that potential customers are becoming increasingly concerned about the refundability of First National City cheques.

American Express refused to comment.

Collot Guerard of the division of advertising practices in the U.S. Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Consumer Protection said the agency "probably will take a look at the American Express ad."

Both Barclay's Bank and Thomas Cook Inc. have also criticized the American Express commercial.

The Citicorp ad said: "The implication is clear: travellers will have trouble getting a refund for any travellers cheques other than American Express . . . or indeed, any refund at all.

". . . The fact is that all major travellers cheques provide a refund when their cheques are lost or stolen."

First National City has about 18 per cent of the between $25 billion and $30 billion world travellers cheque market. American Express has about half.

Squabble on oil splits premiers

By PETER HADEKEL
FP News Service

LA MALBAIE, Quebec — Canada's ten premiers failed to agree Thursday on how much Canadian oil should cost and who should benefit from future price increases.

Ontario's William Davis and Saskatchewan's Allan Blakeney stood alone in calling for a new national profit sharing scheme for oil revenues.

But Davis was unable to convince other oil consuming regions of the country like Quebec and the Maritimes to back his proposal that oil profits should be re-invested in a national industrial development plan.

Alberta's Peter Lougheed, who presides over $5 billion in oil revenues, said he was "encouraged" the eastern provinces backed Alberta's stand that the provinces have exclusive ownership rights over their natural resources.

Lougheed said the unexpected report from the oil-poor provinces is a recognition that they might someday profit from their own oil and gas deposits.

Meanwhile, Davis said he was not surprised that the other consuming provinces sided with Alberta. "They have their own considerations," he said.

But while the Atlantic provinces opposed any interference in provincial resource ownership, they are not as anxious as Alberta is for the current domestic oil price of $13.75 a barrel to rise.

Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney repeated his call for a national energy security fund, administered by the federal government and financed by increases in the well-head price of oil.

Blakeney said excess oil profits should not be the exclusive property of multi-national corporations or provincial governments, but should be used to invest in major energy projects that could guarantee Canada's future energy self-sufficiency.

The stalemate on oil prices and revenues guarantees that the new Clark government will have to umpire a touchy dispute between its sister Conservative government in Alberta and Ontario.

Lougheed recognized that since the federal government has jurisdiction over inter-provincial trade, it must have a say in setting oil prices.

N.W.T. fire threat subsides

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (UPC) — Pine Point, N.W.T., has made some progress against a threatening forest fire and is in no immediate danger, a spokesman for territory forest services said Thursday night.

"They have made significant progress as far as making a fire line between the fire and the town is concerned," he said. "We don't consider that the town is in any immediate danger."

The town of about 1,200 south of Yellowknife made plans for a motorcade evacuation to Hay River, N.W.T., 80 kilometres to the west in case the two-day-old fire changed direction. Burning just 14 kilometres to the southeast, the blaze has already destroyed about 16,000 acres of forest, mostly black spruce.

"It burned about a half mile (almost one kilometre) closer to the town yesterday, but that is not a significant amount," John McQueen, regional director of forest services for the department of Indian and northern affairs, said Thursday.

The fire, which covered just 150 acres when first spotted southeast of the mining community Tuesday afternoon, was pushed seven kilometres toward the town by southeast winds over a period of four hours. Since then, winds have shifted to the northwest, easing the pressure on the community on the southern shore of Great Slave Lake.

"We held a meeting with the town people and they are as ready as they can be," McQueen said, adding that officials have made sure there are enough vehicles in the community to transport everyone.

Strike ends

MONTREAL (CP) — The 2,700 clerical workers and freight handlers at CP Express are expected back to work today, ending a six-week strike.

Union negotiators for the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks have agreed to a new two-year contract giving the workers a 9.5-per-cent pay increase in the first year and an eight-per-cent increase in the second.

Shares of Gulf start to retreat

TORONTO (CP) — Shares of Gulf Canada Ltd. retreated on the Toronto stock market Thursday, following a sharp jump Wednesday on news of a discovery of hydrocarbons in a well off Newfoundland in which Gulf has an interest.

Chevron Standard Ltd. of Calgary announced Wednesday a well about 325 kilometres southeast of St. John's yielded hydrocarbons, possibly oil or gas, but assessment of the find has not been completed.

Rumors were spreading that Chevron had found a 9,300-metre section of hydrocarbon-bearing rock, containing 3,100 metres of rock actually capable of producing oil or gas.

Police strike threat in Saskatoon ends

SASKATOON (CP) — Threat of a strike by Saskatoon's police force, which led some businessmen to talking about hiring security guards and boarding up their windows, ended this week when the Saskatoon Police Association ratified a one-year contract with the city.

The contract was ratified by a show of hands when 157 of the 262 members of the association met to consider it. There were only two votes against it.

Under the contract, retroactive to Jan. 1., the police will receive a 7.3 per cent pay increase and improved pensions and promotion procedures.

Wright said he would like to think the association was not playing on the fact that the city was host to the Western Canada Summer Games as a pressure point in bargaining. About 1,700 young athletes are in the city for the Games.

But the mayor added: "In police negotiations, the partners in negotiations are not equal and as a result power plays can have some effect."

Resolution of the main roadblock in negotiations — pensions — could set a new trend in pensions, Wright said.

The association sought an early retirement system and failing that, control over pensions with the city contributing a fixed amount each year.

The compromise agreed to in negotiations included early retirement and ownership of the plan shared equally by the city and the association, where all shortcomings and unfunded liability will be borne equally by the two parties.

WCTU chapter petitions Blakeney

MOOSE JAW (CP) — The local chapter of the Women's Christian Temperance Union has sent a seven-name petition to Premier Allan Blakeney to announce its opposition to a liquor plebiscite Aug. 22.

A petition signed by WCTU members and presented by President Amy Lancaster says "any relaxation of the sale of alcohol is followed by a rise in the number of patients in mental hospitals and institutions."

Song salutes missing cowboys

EDMONTON (CP) — The Canadian Rodeo Cowboys' Association says it would welcome any proceeds from a song written about four cowboys missing in the United States since last May 22 to help defray costs of searching for them and their aircraft.

Barry Tibbitt, association manager, said he has not been contacted by the song writer, Eddie Reed of Nova Scotia, since Reed announced that proceeds from the song, One More Rodeo To Go, would go towards a special fund for the cowboys.

Stored chemicals danger denied

GIMLI, Man. (UPC) — Provincial environment officials have denied that deadly sodium cyanide stored in Second World War storage tanks here would be lethal if they come into contact with water.

Carl Orcutt of the Manitoba environment branch admitted all stored chemicals present some danger, but said reports are false that contact with water would form a lethal cloud that would exterminate the local population.

United Way in 'devil's pocket'

CALGARY (CP) — The United Way is caught in a "devil's pocket" over the application by Calgary Birth Control Association for membership, Peter Gomery, United Way executive director, said.

"The issue is abortion. A significant number of the population believe in freedom of choice. Others believe abortion is wrong under any circumstances."

Gomery said the agency's 34 board members will make a decision on the birth control association's application this fall.

Metis settlements receive apology

EDMONTON (CP) — Social Services Minister Bob Bogle has issued a written apology to eight Metis settlements where files were seized by department officials June 18.

Bogle told a news conference he decided to apologize after provincial ombudsman Randall Ivany described the seizures and raids as "morally wrong."

Bogle said at that time the government needed the documents for its defence against a Metis court action claiming about $30 million in revenues from oil and natural gas production at the settlements.

Artists upset

WINNIPEG (CP) — The president of Canadian Artists Representatives says Nancy Dillow, newly appointed chief curator of the Winnipeg Art Gallery, "is not coming to us highly recommended by artists in Regina."

Her appointment follows 15 firings and resignations.

Park boasts ancient graffiti

CALGARY (CP) — When one thinks of a vacation in the outback, the idea of travelling for hours to see ancient graffiti doesn't normally come to mind.

But people do travel to see the petroglyphs and pictographs — graffiti of an ancient society — found in the Writing-on-Stone Provincial Park, 350 kilometres southeast of Calgary.

The inscriptions — carvings called petroglyphs and paintings known as pictographs — adorn massive sandstone outcrops in a restricted area of the park where visitors are taken by naturalists.

The preserve covering most of the park was established less than two years ago, primarily because of the tremendous damage that had been done to the writings, says ranger Pete Weddell.

Eldon Yellowhorn, one of the two park naturalists, says the first damage was done in the area when the Northwest Mounted Police came through in 1874.

Last summer, the guided tours reduced the number of cases of vandalism to two, compared with hundreds in the past.

The writings, which may be 700 or 800 years old, were executed first by Shoshone Indians and later by the Blackfoot, Weddell says.

The Indians believed the area was the home of spirits because of the unique character given to it by the hoodoos — haunting pillars of rock with a stone balanced on top — which were formed by erosion after the last major Ice Age.

Indian boys visited the area in hopes of seeing a vision which would reveal to them their guardian spirit and their adult name.

It is believed that many of the writings are "directly related to these vision quests," the ranger explains.

Tours of the area are conducted in a "sacrosanct" mood to reflect the sacred background of the region, he says.

TOWN TALK

It started with the Times People column Aug. 3, reporting that Walter Glanze was including the word "nerd" in the new Scribner-Bantam English Dictionary.

"Nerd" is defined as a noun meaning a "gauche, tacky or uncool person; creep."

Don't let it be said that Times staffers blew their collective cool when J. April McKenna, 1140 Tattersall, wrote and suggested that "nerd" should be "nird".

"It is, in fact," wrote McKenna coolly, "a sigluma, derived from the phrase 'no intelligent response detected.' This phrase would, no doubt, serve as a succinct definition."

The matter might have ended there, with McKenna's definition definitely better than most others before us. But sigluma? Surely McKenna meant acronym, no?

Check UVic's estimable linguistics department. Several days later a harried linguist decides there is no such word, and McKenna really meant "sigla," the plural form of "siglum," and meaning: "Letters (esp. initials) or other characters used to denote words." Thanks to Webster's, Oxford and all the other dictionaries frantically pawed through.

Check McKenna. What's that? A simple slip of an 'a'? Let's not tell the UVic linguists. It'll be our secret.

SHILO

. . . harbor splash

That man Lee Shilo is at it again and he even has police in on the act.

This time around, Victoria's modern-day answer to Harry Houdini will jump Saturday into the murky waters of the Inner Harbor shackled with a ball and chains.

All being well, he'll surface safe and sound having freed himself from his locked chains.

Shilo says he's sure his latest great escape will will go as smoothly as his stunt last April when he jumped off the Johnson Street bridge then wriggled out of a strait jacket underwater.

He says city police will check the locks before he jumps to make sure they're secure and he'll be examined first by a doctor.

The stunt will start about 11:45 a.m. slap in the middle of the harbor.

She completed the social service assistant program this July and now works as an educational adviser at Camosun.

The community of Abbotsford has just sent the last planes home after its most successful air show ever.

But Canada has more than this to offer in aviation spectaculars, if you've seen a T-shirt worn by a tourist around town this week.

"Yukon Air Festival," it says, with a picture of large mosquito, proboscis poised. We knew the bugs up north were big, but that big? A new source of air transport in the north, perhaps.

Dibble, only 36, toiled for the Vancouver Sun and other publications and later freelanced, working at one point as campaign photographer for Premier Bill Bennett.

Never known as a shrinking violet in a business where brashness is a byword, tales of Dibble's determination to get the best shot at all costs are legion.

Dibble, who slept with a police radio by his bed, was easily first on the scene in the wee, small hours. He was shooting away crazily when rival photographers and TV cameramen finally arrived.

As the contingent jostled Dibble for a good location, he turned and screamed: "B . . . . . off you guys, this is my fire!"

It looks as if the 120-year-old Four-Mile House that was once a stagecoach stop will soon take on a new career — this time as a furniture factory.

View Royal director Al Beasley says only five out of 30 persons at a recent public hearing opposed the plan. The site at View Royal Avenue and the Old Island Highway has to be rezoned from open space and conservation area to "neighborhood commercial."

Beasley says it is proposed to assemble ready-made white pine furniture from Eastern Canada and sell it at the Four-Mile House.

Since it was closed as a pub because of its hazardous location it has gone through several careers, including a short stint as a halfway house for native Indians on parole.

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Kewin, 24, a licensed practical nurse, lost her sight 18 months ago and has spent the summer researching job opportunities for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

When the studies are completed, Jones said the data will be compiled and a clearer picture will be available on what the blind may expect in the marketplace.

Bennett's job is a natural, says Kewin. "He has so many aides to do this and that," she says.

"Any political position is made easy because they have so many people to help them."

She says she was taken aback when Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm told her what he thinks it takes to be a politician.

"Any odd person . . . I nearly died when he said that," she recalls.

One of her interviews was with Victoria Ald. Robin Blencoe.

Kewin says he promised to make some noise about the fact that no blind person holds down a job at city hall.

She rates her interviews with Bennett, Vander Zalm and Blencoe as three of her most interesting.

She lists massage therapists and small engine repair work — such as lawnmowers — as two other jobs that could be done by the blind.

One job she rules out is that of a hair stylist because customers might feel uncomfortable if a blind stylist touched their faces in order to learn the contours.

When phoning for interviews, Kewin did not reveal she is blind.

It was only when she walked in with her seeing-eye dog Beau that people realized she could not see.

"People tend to stereotype blind persons," she says.

"They think of them as elderly, not very mobile, a little deaf and not very smart."

Her summer job, apart from developing her mechanical and social skills, has shown other people this is not so.

Kewin will attend the University of Victoria in September which she hopes will lead to a counselling job.

"They offered to give me the training but I didn't take it because I didn't feel I would enjoy that kind of work. I don't like sitting around an office."

She has no illusions that her job opportunity hunt will result in a variety of doors being opened to people like herself.

"They were all gung-ho on tape but had misgivings later."

Some of the jobs being carried out by blind people across Canada include those of accountants, computer programming, furniture salesmen, lawyers, public relations, stockbrokers, librarians, parole officers and physiotherapists.

In spite of this, Kewin says blind people often never reach their full potential because of society's attitude.

"Most blind people, about 99 per cent, can't read Braille. Young people, especially, think it's some kind of stigma to be blind. They don't want to use a white cane or learn Braille."

Naturalists want guaranteed access

Head off 'enclaves for the rich'

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

A Victoria naturalist Thursday asked the Islands Trust to prevent the Gulf Islands from becoming privileged enclaves for the rich.

The request was made at a public hearing on bylaws to control development on about 20 islands in waters off the Saanich Peninsula.

David Orton, vice-president of the V.I. branch of the B.C. Federation of Naturalists, said while the bylaws are a move in the right direction, they do not guarantee sufficient public access to beaches and private lands.

The Trust deferred its decision on a bylaw increasing the minimum size of lots from 10 to 20 acres after Jack Todd of Victoria, owner of Sidney Island, and Canadian Industries Ltd., owners of James Island, strongly objected to the restrictions.

But by a vote of two to one, trust members passed a bylaw limiting housing on a lot to one residence and a cottage.

Under previous regulations, there was little to prevent large subdivisions on small islands.

But the main issue at the meeting was the proposal for 20-acre minimum size lots.

It would mainly affect Sidney and James Islands.

Briefs submitted to the hearing were overwhelmingly in favor of the bylaw as well as a takeover of Sidney Island for a park.

The Victoria Outdoor Club, the Sidney Committee to Preserve Sidney Island as a park, the B.C. Chapter of the National and Provinial Parks Association of Canada, the V.I. branch of the B.C. Federation of Naturalists and other citizen groups and individuals urged the Trust to endorse the bylaw.

Todd said the original proposal to establish a subdivision around the perimeter of the island had been dropped.

But Todd said he did not want any restrictions to prevent him from allowing some homes on the island.

He said allowing one home for every 20 acres isn't practical.

He warned such a restriction would create land assessments so high that residence on the island would be restricted to the rich.

"I'm opposed to that," he said.

"I see a small cluster development on the island with homes within the means of most people."

Todd, who only recently tried to sell the island to the provincial government for park use, surpised many members of the audience by saying he is now against Sidney becoming a park.

He said vandalism and rowdyism on the island this summer changed his mind.

"Naturalists and people who like the outdoors are all right," he said.

He claimed the government isn't interested in the island and could not look after it anyway.

But Orton took issue with Todd for his arguments against the park proposal.

"If a person has a farm and doesn't live there permanently or have somebody look after it the year round, he is inviting vandalism," he said.

"If a park has no warden you can expect trouble from time to time. These are not reasons for opposing parks."

He said the situation in the Gulf Islands, including Sidney, which features signs such as Beware of Dog, Private Property or Beware of the Bull, are designed solely to create a psychology of intimidation.

"The visitors are not welcomed. This often results in a confrontation and sometimes in vandalism," he claimed.

Orton said Swedish landowners have taken a different approach.

"Swedes have full access rights, including one night's camping on private property providing it doesn't hurt the land or farming," he said.

He said the question of public access to Gulf Islands, their beaches and the availabililty of parklands, is becoming crucial.

"If this question is not resolved, serious and ugly confrontations will increase between residents and groups of visitors," he warned.

David Fraser, representing CIL, said the company plans to continue to use the island mainly as a distribution centre for explosives.

But he said the firm is opposed to any bylaw which might restrict its development in future years.

"We are not planning to subdivide the island. But there may come a day when it is no longer economically yiable to used it as a distribution centre. Then we would have to consider other options."

Heritage tag for old library

Aldermen today agreed to recommend to city council that the Carnegie library building on Yates be designated a heritage building.

They also recommended the city retain ownership of the building and lease the library section.

They agreed in principle that the net proceeds from these leases be turned over to an endowment fund which would be used to ensure public use of the library's annex.

The aldermen met as a council committee to discuss the future use of the old library when the Greater Victoria Public Library's central library moves into its new quarters, a provincial government building on Broughton.

Members of the committee will approach the other core municipalities to determine the future use of the library's annex, built in 1952.

Several organizations, including the Victoria Archives Society and the Victoria Inter-Cultural Association, have expressed interest in acquiring space in the building.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me if the origin of the name Quebec is Indian? R.B.

A. The genesis of the name is uncertain. Most historians claim it is of Indian origin. The Algonquin word was Quelbeco or Quelibec, designating part of an enclosure. But others say it is from a town in Normandy, France. It is called Brequebec. Another is called Cabec. But some people contend it all started when one of Jacques Cartier's French sailors saw the shape of the imposing Cape Diamond at Quebec. He exclaimed "quel bec", meaning what a beak.

Delesalle ponders gymnastic future

SASKATOON (CP) — Philip Delesalle of Victoria, the centre piece at the Western Canada Summer Games gymnastic competition, is pondering how much longer he wants to be one of Canada's ranking gymnasts.

"That's one of my problems right now, having to make up my mind how much longer I want to go on, if I want to go on to 1980 or 1982."

Delesalle, a member of the 1976 Olympic team, led the competition Thursday after preliminary results in the pommel horse and floor exercises in what was a comparatively quiet day.

Along with the first day of gymnastics, swimming, soccer, archery and modern pentathlon events got under way and yachting moved into its third day.

Delesalle scored 9.45 on the floor exercise, trailed by Saskatoon's James Rozon with 9.15 and Victoria's Owen Walstrom with 0.10. But he commanded a bigger lead in the pommel, his specialty, scoring 9.75, while Allan Reddon of Edmonton was second with 8.35. Dave Bibby of Victoria was third with 8.0. Preliminary competition continues today.

Walstrom, however, has been withdrawn from competition, said Bill McAllister, a spokesman for the British Columbia mission.

McAllister added there was concern about Walstrom's injury because he is close to making the next national team.

"I haven't competed since the Nationals so its more for me to come up for this because I haven't done anything for three or four months now," said Delesalle. "It's kind of nice just to go in here and maybe have a little fun."

Delesalle is pondering his future. "I want to see what happens at the world championships at Fort Worth in December and after that I'll pretty well know what I'm going to do from there."

He said he wants to put on a strong performance at Fort Worth because he missed the world championship last year, falling ill two days before the meet.

"I think the only thing that would make me really decide to retire would be maybe having a really bad meet (at Fort Worth) . . . I'm just like that. If I have a bad meet I get depressed.

There had been speculation that Delesalle would unveil his new pommel routine for the 1980 Olympics, but the gymnast said that was news to him. However, spectators will get a preview of his world championship performances.

"Some of the routines I'm doing here are for the world."

After the first round of women's archery competition, Victoria's Wanda Allen lead after 36 arrows with 279 points, Regina's Debbie Rutkowski was second with 269 and Saskatoon's Bev Parent was in a tie for third with Nancy Lovo of Calgary with 257 points.

Pete Lehman, of Taber, Alta., lead the men's archery after 72 arrows with 537 points; Dave Mann of Vancouver was second with 528 and Victoria's Vesa Myllyniemi was third, one point behind Mann.

Alberta picked up three of four gold medals in the first day of swimming Thursday, capturing the top four spots in women's 800 metres and winning both the men's and women's 400-metre medley relay. B.C. took first and third in the men's 1,500 metres, with an Alberta swimmer in second spot.

B.C. has won 33 medals, Alberta 22, Manitoba 13 and Saskatchewan 3.

Thursday was the first day of competition in the second phase of the games. About half the athletes from the four competing western provinces headed home Wednesday while the others arrived for sports beginning Thursday and today.

One round of boxing, which begins today, was cancelled Thursday due to a lack of competitors. Other sports beginning today are shooting, rowing, cycling, judo, women's volleyball, wrestling, weightlifting and equestrian events.

The games are intended to give western Candian athletes a taste of Olympic-level competition before the 1980 Olympics in Moscow. Gold medals are awarded to first-place finishers while silver medals are given to all those who participate.

Mets victimize aging wonder to score sweep

Times News Services

New York Mets had taken two in a row from Atlanta Braves and Thursday stood on the verge of sweeping their first National League series in nearly a year.

The only trouble was they were going up against one of the best pitchers in baseball — the one Mets manager Joe Torre describes as "older than dirt."

The man in question was 40-year-old knuckleball wizard Phil Neikro, who kept the Mets in check on four hits over the first seven innings. But the bubble burst in the eighth as the Mets struck for five runs en route to a 6-3 victory and their first series sweep since last September when they accomplished the feat against Pittsburgh Pirates.

"We beat their best tonight," Torre said. "He (Neikro) is old enough to be most of my players' father, and he probably will be there 10 more years."

Doug Flynn started the Mets rally with a double, but was thrown out at third when Niekro fielded pinch-hitter Gil Flores's bunt to the mound. Frank Taveras then beat out a single and rookie catcher Alex Trevino slapped his run-scoring single to centre, with Flores also scoring on the play after Barry Bonnell's throw bounced away. After Lee Mazzilli walked, John Stearns squeezed home Trevino and Joel Youngblood followed with a two-run double.

Elsewhere, Pittsburgh Pirates defeated San Diego Padres 5-4, Los Angeles Dodgers downed St. Louis Cardinals 4-2 in 15 innings and Chicago Cubs walloped San Francisco Giants 14-4.

Pittsburgh extended its first-place lead in the East Division to four games over the idle Montreal Expos as Omar Moreno's two-run single sparked a three-run fourth inning against Gaylord Perry, 10-10, and the Pirates won for the sixth time in a row. Gene Tenace hit a two-run homer in the first inning of Pittsburgh starter Bruce Kison, 8-6.

Milwaukee righthander Larry Sorensen now has 13 victories, and the way he pitched in the Brewers' 4-1 win over the slumping Texas Rangers quashed all talk that the American League club might move him to the bullpen.

Brewers manager George Bamberger had considered the move while Sorensen was being raked for 27 hits and 13 runs in 15 2-3 innings in his previous three starts. This time, helped by a new slider, he scattered eight hits and wasn't seriously threatened after the Rangers scored their only run in the first inning.

The Brewers, coming back with three runs against Brian Allard, 1-1, in their half of the first, ran their winning streak to five games. The Rangers, with one of baseball's highest payrolls, have lost five in a row and are 8-22 since the all-star break.

ALSO IN BASEBALL: Owner Ray Kroc of San Diego Padres, saying he made "a slip of the tongue" in vowing to go after New York Yankees' Craig Nettles and Cincinnati Redlegs' Joe Morgan, said Thursday even if they become available in mjor league baseball's draft he won't touch either one . . . Earlier, owner George Steinbrenner of New York Yankees angrily accused Kroc of an attempt at tampering . . . Kroc denied that intent but Cincinnati has asked commissioner Bowie Kuhn to investigate Kroc's action . . . Seattle Mariners have awarded a $43,000 settlement to Jim Todd, a 31-year-old right-handed pitcher who was released Feb. 8 and filed a grievance against the AL team.

Larry Wilson dies

Times News Services

Larry Wilson, former National Hockey League player and interim coach for Detroit Red Wings, died Thursday in Glens Falls, N.Y. while he was jogging near his home.

Wilson, 49, apparently suffered a heart attack, his family reported.

For the last two seasons, Wilson has been general manager and coach of Kansas City Red Wings in the Central League.

This season, he would have assumed the coaching duties of Adirondack Red Wings, Detroit's new American League affiliate in Glen Falls, N.Y.

The Kincardine, Ont., native played centre for the Red Wings from 1949 through the 1952-53 season before moving to Chicago where he played another three seasons for the Black Hawks.

He coached Detroit for the final three months of the 1976-77 season, replacing Alex Delvecchio.

Times tennis titles on line at weekend

This weekend is when it all comes down to the wire for competitors in the sixth annual Victoria Times Public Parks Tennis tournament.

Players will do battle in 10 semi-final matches on Saturday starting at noon at Oak Bay's Henderson Park courts and the five finals — men's and women's singles, junior boys' and girls' singles and mixed doubles — will be played Sunday, also beginning at noon. Spectators are welcome both days.

Some 255 players have taken part in the summer-long tournament designed specially for public parks tennis enthusiasts.

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP) — Although Newfoundlanders jokingly refer to "Newfie humor" as the island's major export, members of the Blomidon Golf Club are pointing their finger at 18-year-old golfer Rebecca Stark.

Stark, born and raised in Corner Brook but now residing in Armdale, N.S., shot a second-round 78 Thursday to lead Nova Scotia to the junior women's provincial title by two strokes over British Columbia.

Stark staved off a late record-breaking charge by Dawn Coe of Lake Cowichan to give Nova Scotia its first national team title since the competition began in 1955. The only other Atlantic Maritime entry to win the crown was New Brunswick, which turned the trick in 1960.

But Stark had help from an unlikely quarter.

Coe was en route to a one-over-par 72 that would have shattered the record of 76 set by Stark on opening day and given B.C. a one-stroke victory. Then came the disasterous 17th hole.

Coe hit her drive safely from the fairway but her second shot found the bog that sits about 170 yards from the elevated green. She ended up with a triple-bogey seven on the par-four 340-yard hole and finished the round with a record 75.

And she was not able to gain ground on leader Stark for the individual honors to be decided in today's final round. Coe trailed Stark by eight strokes at 162.

Ontario, which dominated the competition with six wins in the last 10 years, finished third six strokes back. Quebec was 14 off the pace, followed by Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Newfoundland, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Victoria bows out in final

Firefighters dropped previously-unbeaten Oregon 5-3 early in the day to force a deciding game in the double-loss elimination competition.

Oregon, however, came back to take the deciding game, 15-5.

Mussels derailed at wrong time

Lynn and Jim Chapman are still shopping for new owners but Victoria Mussels manager Bill Bryk has other matters on his mind.

Bryk is anxious to rediscover the winning formula that carried his Northwest League baseball hopefuls back into the Northern Division pennant race prior to Thursday night's disaster at Royal Athletic Park.

Mussels, who have played well before sparse crowds all season, reversed form by losing 9-2 to Bellingham Mariners before one of the larger gatherings of their two-year existance, 550 who showed up for helmet night.

The same teams meet again tonight at Athletic Park at 7:30.

Mussels were tied for second place with Bellingham three days ago but now are two games behind the Mariners. They had one consolation — first-place Walla Walla Padres failed to gain ground after losing 3-2 Thursday to the last-place Grays Harbor Mets.

Mussels blew it early when losing pitcher John Caraher, who failed to last beyond the second, and reliever Roy Moretti combined to walk five batters in the first two innings and presented the visitors with a 3-0 cushion.

Ramon Esteppa put the Mariners beyond striking distance with a six-inning homer to left that produced three more runs, all of them unearned

Winner Bob Randolph handcuffed Bryk's gang on five hits before yielding to Jed Murray in the ninth. Mussels managed one more safety off Murray, then retired quietly.

Owner-general manager Lynn Chapman confirmed he and his brother Jim are continuing negotiations to turn over the franchise to a Victoria group that may number as many as 10.

He refused to name any of the interested parties, originally numbering three, but was hopeful a deal could be worked out by the end of the season, two weeks away.

Two other parties have contacted him, he added, one from the U.S.

If the local deal materializes, the Chapmans would relinquish ownership of the club at no cost but the new owners would have to assume debts accumulated over two financially losing seasons.

Borg trying to improve with aggressive play

Times News Services

Bjorn Borg, who some say has nerves of steel and icewater in his veins, let everyone in on a little secret Thursday.

"I have emotions like everybody else. It's just that I keep them inside me."

With that out of the way, the top-seeded Swede in the men's draw at the Player's International Canadian Open tennis championships in Toronto went on to explain how he proposes to improve his almost-flawless game.

"I've got to become more aggressive," Borg said following his 6-2, 6-4 win over 19-year-old Yannick Noah of France in a third-round match Thursday. "I think I'll become more confident the more I play on this type of court."

The synthetic surface at York University Tennis Centre, home of the $210,000 Grand Prix event, appears to be to Borg's liking. And that can only be bad news for quarter-final contestants here and those entered in the U.S. Open to be played on an almost-identical type of surface at Flushing Meadows, N.Y. in two weeks.

Seventh-seeded Gene Mayer of the United States, who beat American Brian Teacher 3-6, 6-3, 7-6 Thursday to advance to the quarter-final meeting with Borg, agrees the Swede will be tough.

"Meeting Borg in any final is brutal," Mayer said. "He makes so few errors and keeps the ball in the court. The best time to beat him is in the first or second round of a tournament. After that, he is marvellous."

In other third-round matches Thursday, second-seeded John McEnroe of the U.S. easily defeated Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 6-0, fourth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis of the U.S. beat David Schneider of South Africa 6-4, 6-2, Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia sidelined Tom Okker of the Netherlands 6-2, 6-1, Paul Kronk of Australia downed Eric Van Dillen of the U.S. 6-3, 6-0, Wojtek Fibak of Poland beat Butch Walts of the U.S. 6-2, 6-1 and Australia's Phil Dent veat Andrew Pattison of the U.S., 6-4, 7-5.

The women's semi-finalists were decided Thursday and with the exception of South African Brigitte Cuypers, it will be an all-American affair.

In quarter-final play, seventh-seeded Pam Teeguarden beat fellow American Mary arillo 6-0, 6-2, Cuypers downed Kay McDaniel of the U.S., 6-0, 6-3, American Diane Desfor upended Chris O'Neil of Australia 4-6, 6-0, 6-3 and Laura Dupont defeated fellow American Lea Antonoplis, 6-2, 7-6.

First-four salmon limit wouldn't solve anything

There's a fight shaping up over the 20-inch size limit for chinook salmon (the 12-inch limit for other species would remain the same) due to be implemented Jan. 1, 1980 . . . But the best alternative anyone has come up with is for all sports fishermen to keep the first four salmon they catch over the current 12-inch size limit . . . Nice in theory, too bad it won't work . . . If Federal Fisheries doesn't have sufficient personnel to police commercial and sports fisheries right now, how could adequate enforcement be provided under the first-four-fish system? . . . People would continue to catch three fish and then release smaller ones in hopes of getting a lunker . . . And studies have shown a large percentage of released fish die in salt water . . . The fed fisheries proposal, unfortunately, isn't adequate either . . . It doesn't make allowances for the large death toll among the released fish or the harm it will do to some of the smaller resorts around Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland which depend on the smaller chinooks for a good portion of their annual revenue . . . There isn't any easy solution to the problem and experimenting with haphazard solutions isn't going to help.

Ron Ekstrom boated a 24:07 pound chinook Sunday to take first prize in the Dr. Hugh Clarke Derby for Chinook Club members of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association . . . Derrick Chow came a close second with a 24-pounder and Gary Vaughan was third with another lunker that tipped the scales at 21:08 . . . Hidden-weight winners were George Alexander, Bob Redgrave, Alf Joyce, Ace MacPherson, Harmon Leong, Leonard Sawyer, Karl Leong, Steve Purych, Win Rose, John Sadler and John Rose.

Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association will hold a panel discussion on hunting at their monthly meeting starting at 8 p.m. Monday in the Strawberry Vale Hall, 11 High Street . . . This might be a good meeting to attend and review some of the new rules and regulations.

Island Mountain Ramblers have a number of interesting outings on their schedule over the next few weeks . . . Leaders of the outings and their phone numbers follow the listing . . . Anyone wishing to go on a trip should contact the leader by the Wednesday prior to the outing . . . They should also be able to answer any general questions about the club . . . The outings are: Aug. 26 — Climb Mt. Arrowsmith (Mike Taylor - 748-1309); Sept. 1-3 — Climb the Golden Hinde, the highest peak on the Island at 7,190 feet, fly-in to Burman Lake so phone early (Brian Johnson - 592-6402 or Dave Coombes - 384-6396 or 387-6387); Sept. 1-3 — Della Falls, either by canoe or airplane to end of Great Central Lake so phone early (Kon Stockhausen - 245-4086); Sept. 9 — Mt. Hooper, Nanaimo Lakes from Nitinat River (John Cowlin - 479-6366); Sept. 16 — Mt. Heather near Cowichan Lake with Outdoor Club of Victoria (Alastair Fulton - 386-2791).

Salmon fishing is good just about everywhere around Vancouver Island right now . . . Some of the hottest spots have been the Sooke, Becher Bay, Pedder Bay, Finlayson Arm, Bamberton, Alberni Inlet-Bamfield, Muchalat Inlet and Campbell River areas.

PGA's champion won't run from 'good things' available

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Although he will continue his globe-trotting activities, David Graham, the newly-crowned Professional Golfers' Association champion, plans to concentrate his activities in the United States.

"I will not take the PGA title and run," the slender Australian said after a bogey-free, six-under-par 65 gave him a three-stroke lead after the first round of the $400,000 Westchester Classic. "I will not turn in my playing card. I've lived in this country for eight years now. This is my home. My children are in school here. All my friends are here.

"The best tournaments, the most money, the best players, the best conditions, the best organized tournaments are in this country. I now have a 10-year exemption. I will not turn my back on that.

"I really thought I'd have a little bit of a problem playing this week," added Graham, who had little opportunity to practice in the week since his playoff victory in the PGA at Oakland Hills.

And continued good play now is more important than before to Graham.

"I look at the names on that (PGA) trophy," he said. "Hogan, Snead, Nicklaus, Player, Hagen. They are great names. I think it is important that the current holder play well, play to the standard that title deserves."

He is in a stretch of some of the best play of his life. He's finished seventh or better in six of his last seven tournaments.

"I putted very, very well," said Graham, who one-putted nine times, didn't make a bogey and holed three critical, par-saving putts of between eight and 10 feet which he called "the backbone of the round."

Dave Barr of Kelowna had a 75, while Jim Nelford of Burnaby and 67-year-old Sam Snead both shot 76.

All-Victoria final for seniors title

Bill Thompson of the host Victoria Golf Club, who has taken the title five times in the past nine years, was scheduled to face clubmate and medallist Bill McColl in the final of the 57th annual Seniors' North West Golf Association championship today.

Thompson, the defending champion, downed 1977 winner Erv Parent of Seattle 2 and 1 in the semi-final round Thursday while McColl, who had a par 71 in the medal round, edged Keith Welts 1-up in the other semi.

Big Exactors at Sandown

Five big Exactors of $199.90 or more provided the major highlights of the harness-racing action Thursday at Sandown Raceway.

Others came in the first (Hanrihan-Senator Mike: $246.90), second (Charms All-Holridge Dakota: $199.90), fifth (Spreadeagle-Flex Step: $229.50) and sixth (Matsqui Miss-Rocket Dale: $299.30).

Joe Hudon padded his driving lead in the card despite not winning. He placed once and had three show finishes while Keith Linton, his closest rival, was blanked in three starts.

Willock moves up in endurance test

HITZKIRCH, Switzerland (CP) — Canadian cyclists in the William Tell Grand Prix road race completed the fourth stage of the bicycle marathon Thursday, covering 164 kilometres from Winterthur.

The best Canadians have managed after four days is an individual high of 31st by Pierre Harvey of Montreal, giving him the same position over-all among 96 entries.

Bernie Willock of Victoria was 46th, in the middle of the pack Thursday, which moved him up three places to 78th over-all. Only 88 cyclists scored in Thursday's race, which had one major hillclimb of over 430 metres.

The remaining three Canadians — Daniel Monat of Montreal, Michael Bruhn of Vancouver, and Normand St. Aubin of Montreal finished 85th, 87th and 88th respectively.

The cyclists have completed 617.5 of the 1,066.5 kilometres they most cover by Sunday.

Seaboard squad blanks Builders

Seaboard Construction grabbed a 2-0 lead in a best-of-five Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League semi-final series by blanking Juan de Fuca Builders 5-0 Thursday night at Central Park.

The third game is scheduled tonight at 6:30. If Seaboard wins, they'll advance to face Elks-Athletics in the opening game of the playoff final Tuesday.

Randy Jackson pitched a three-hitter for the victory and Scott Sinclair unloaded a two-run homer in the seventh inning.

Seaboard scored what proved to be the winning run in the second inning without the benefit of a hit. Glen Kilduff drew a base on balls and scored when losing pitcher Bob Fletcher made a throwing error after a sacrifice bunt by Brian Grexton.

At Heywood, Mears Realty downed Capital Builders 7-2 in the opening game of a best-of-five Heywood Men's League semi-final.

The Realty hitting parade was led by John Oliver, who tagged two doubles and drove in three runs, while Barry Moen added three singles and Larry Brown smashed a homer.

Theo Van den Bergh hit a two-run homer for Builders.

In Macdonald Men's League play, Birch Builders tripped Strathcona Hotel 10-6 to even their best-of-five playoff final at 2-2.

The deciding game will be played Monday.

Glen Eversfield and Ben Shumack each connected for a two-run homer to lead the Birch attack.

Nanaimo vetoes toughs' boxing

NANAIMO (CP) — The Nanaimo Regional District has rejected a request to allow another "So You Think You're Tough'' boxing match Sept. 20.

Most of the board's directors said it would be foolish to follow a collision course with the attorney-general's department after the department hinted a similar boxing match on July 19 might be illegal.

RCMP had said legal authorities indicated that prize fighting is illegal without the authorization of an athletic commission. The matches involve local amateur toughies who take to the ring to battle for money prizes.

Top award to Jacobs

Larry Jacobs Jr. of Victoria was named the All-American boy for displaying high standards of sportsmanship and leadership of the recent National Youth Bowling Association championships at Washington, D.C.

All four B.C. representatives in the competition, which attracted a total of 208 bowlers from 52 states and Canada, were from Victoria.

Jacobs was the provincial boys' scratch rep while the other Victorians were Chris Grunow (boys' handicap), Kelly Wenzel (girls' scratch) and Kim Oulton (girls' handicap).

AROUND OUR SHORES

Pat Dufour

Ted Turner hits the nail right on the head when he says this year's Fastnet race, terrible and tragic as it was, could have a meaningful message for the offshore sailing fraternity.

Turner, who was fifth over the finish line in Tenacious, says the death and destruction points out only too clearly that boats are being built too light and too skimpy with light rigging never designed to withstand tough stormy conditions.

Turner, who won the America's Cup in the 12-metre Courageous in 1977, has never been a man to mince words. Owner of the Atlanta Braves baseball team and the Atlanta Hawks of the National Basketball Association, Turner likens the situation to the period when Hitler was coming into power and the western world was hiding its head in the sand.

"Everybody laughed at Noah when he built the Ark," says Turner, who will be in Seattle next Thursday to race the six-metre Ranger in the U.S. Nationals, designed to whittle down a 15-boat American fleet to 12. The 12 will represent the U.S. in the Six-metre World Cup, to be held in Seattle Sept. 4-12.

* * *

Having done a fair amount of offshore racing, including the Victoria-Maui classic, one develops a healthy respect for the sea and what it can throw at you under certain conditions.

When we had our Columbia 26 Galenaia II built we insisted her deck be beefed up and extra shrouds put on. Galenaia II was the smallest boat in Swiftsure in 1977 when Native Dancer floundered and her skipper, Wilbur Willard, was lost. It was a rough trip but we knew the boat could take it.

On the other side of the coin, I've seen skippers who deliberately choose a light boat, banking on winning in light airs. Everybody likes to win but that's the kind of gamble that I consider foolhardy.

A friend of mine at the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre, who sails as a hobby, has nothing but praise for the way in which the Royal Victoria Yacht Club organizes, patrols and safety-checks the Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca races.

He agrees, however, the popular races pose potential hazard in the fact that, more and more, relatively rookie crews are trying their hand at offshore racing.

It's a very different thing to be on your own in the middle of a stormy night in the Strait of Juan de Fuca than to be competing in a daytime around-the-buoy race with other boats and at least one committee boat standing by.

The Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, is taking time off from racing to hold its annual picnic at Albert Head on Sunday. There will be a skippers' meeting at 10:30 a.m. and the race to Albert Head will begin at 11 a.m.

Commodore Bill Sargent says two barbecue pits will be set up on the beach and members will be bringing their own fixings. Bill is hoping for as good — if not better — a turnout as they had last year.

* * *

The RVYC has the fourth in its around-Discovery Island series on Saturday. The race will start in the Flower Island area of Cadboro Bay with the first boats getting their gun at 1 p.m. The reverse handicap system will be used so that, hopefully, most of the boats will go over the finish line close together.

* * *

Those who love to moor at Sidney Spit will be treated to a spectacular this weekend when the Victoria Hobie Cat fleet hosts the Vancouver Island Championships on Saturday and Sunday.

Brian McLeod says that at least 20 of the colorful fast-moving craft will be competing. Should the weather turn foul, however, Brian says the sailing action will be switched to Tulista Park in Sidney.

Pacific Rim volleyballers share spoils

HILO, Hawaii (CP) — Canada's men's team at the Pacific Rim junior volleyball tournament split two games Wednesday to match its opening-day performance in the international competition.

Canada defeated the host Hilo team 15-11, 16-14, 15-6 before losing to Japan 15-4, 9-15, 16-14, 15-10.

British Columbia's men's team had the same 2-2 record after losing 15-4-15-1, 15-9 to the defending champion United States team and 10-15, 15-7, 15-5, 15-10 to Honolulu.

In women's play — nine teams divided into two pools — Canada evened its record at 1-1 by defeating Honolulu 12-15, 15-11, 16-14, 15-7. B.C. had the same record after losing to the U.S. 15-6, 14-16, 15-3, 15-8.

The competition ends Saturday.

The Corporation of the District of Saanich

AGRICULTURAL LAND RESERVE APPEAL AND ZONING BY-LAWS

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

NOTICE is hereby given that all persons who deem their interest in property affected by the following proposed Agricultural Land Reserve Appeal and Zoning By-laws will be afforded an opportunity to be heard before the Municipal council on the matters contained therein at a PUBLIC HEARING, to be held in the COUNCIL CHAMBER of Saanich Municipal Hall, 770 Vernon Avenue, on MONDAY, August 27th, 1979, at 7:30 p.m.

a) AGRICULTURAL LAND RESERVE APPEAL.
The Corporation of the District of Saanich intends to appeal to the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council to exclude the following lands from the Agricultural Land Reserve:

"Part Lot A, Section 65, Lake District, Plan 7493" (25.37 acres off Beckwith Avenue)

This exclusion would make provision for park and residential property in line with the ultimate completion of the North Quadra Plan.

b) "ZONING BY-LAW, 1978, AMENDMENT BY-LAW, 1979, NO. 4324". To rezone:
- i) the land outlined in heavy black line on the plan forming part of this Notice from Zone District A-1 (rural) and Zone District P-7 (park) to Zone District RS-2 (detached housing); and
- ii) the land outlined in broken heavy black line on the plan forming part of this Notice from Zone District A-1 (rural) and Zone District P-2 (public utility) to Zone District P-7 (park). (western portion of Copley Memorial Park)

c) "ZONING BY-LAW, 1978, AMENDMENT BY-LAW, 1979, NO. 4281". The intent of this by-law is to rezone the lands included in the recent Sewer Enterprise Extension to urban use:

i) To rezone the following lands from zone District A-1 (rural) to Zone District RS-2 (detached housing):
Lot Part A, Block 21, Section 12, Lake District, Plan 1393 (4080 Grange Road)
Lot Amended 14, Block 21, Section 12, Lake District, Plan 1393, (4074 Grange Road)

Murder suspects on run

MONTREAL (UPC) — At least four suspects in the murder of an armored truck security guard during a credit union holdup eluded a manhunt for a second day as police investigated procedures used in making cash deliveries to the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

Investigators believed the bandits who escaped with $330,000 from the CBC credit union may have had special knowledge of the armored truck's delivery since it was not a usual one.

Police, who also believed one of the bandits may have been wounded in the holdup Wednesday, said no report had come in from any area hospital of anybody seeking treatment. Questioning of underworld ranks and eyewitnesses also turned up no suspects or arrests.

A second guard, Roger Audet, 21, who was critically injured during the robbery, remained in intensive care in hospital for bullet wounds in the back of the neck, jaw and thigh.

Police said Audet experienced some paralysis following the shooting but doctors had not yet determined whether it was temporary or permanent.

Montreal Urban Community police spokesman Norman Couillard said the guns of both guards were missing. Police have been unable as of yet to question Audet.

"This was a very sophisticated job, not the kind usually done by fellows who do bank jobs," holdup squad Capt. Henri Marchessault said of the swift and bloody robbery Wednesday at the Quebec headquarters of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

"We haven't had this kind of modus operendi in this territory for many years," he said. "They had to put a lot of work into the plans. They were aware of the money delivery plans because it wasn't a regular one. We're investigating how long the delivery had been planned."

"We're working very hard on this case but I'm not going to expose our investigating methods," Marchessault said, refusing to indicate how many persons had been questioned. "We are investigating some anonymous information we have received."

The cash delivery was intended to cover overtime payments for CBC employees, who were sent scurrying for shelter when gunfire erupted in the crowded main corridor of the building.

There's a hot time coming when sun blows its spots

MONTREAL (CP) — Earthlings, brace yourselves — the solar maximum is coming!

We can expect to see a marked increase in the sun's activity starting this January, according to astronomers attending an international convention here.

Massive explosions will erupt from sunspots on the its surface, shooting out waves of radioactive particles — known as solar wind in astronomical circles — toward the earth.

Fortunately, the atmosphere will absorb the most harmful effects of the wind, but it could temporarily interfere with radio-television communications and produce auroras — the northern lights — well below the poles.

Solar maximums occur every 11 years in the sun's cycle of activity, but this one will be more spectacular than ever.

"This will be the strongest solar maximum ever recorded in history," said Roger Bonnet, an astronomer attending the 17th general assembly of the International Astronomical Union.

"As such, it offers a prime opportunity for us to learn more about the sun."

Bonnet, who works at the National Centre for Scientific Research in Paris, says astronomers have been planning for the event for quite sometime.

They've set up a Solar Maximum Year program to co-ordinate their efforts in observing different aspects of the sun from both earth and space during 1980.

Radio and optical observatories around the world will set their sights on the sun with the aim of learning more about the bright halo of light, or corona, that surrounds it.

They'll also look for clues as to the origin of sunspots: As many as 200 were counted on the sun's surface during the solar maximum of 1947.

"We still don't know what causes these spots to flare up or erupt in massive explosions," Bonnet said, noting that during the solar maximum 20 to 30 such "solar flares" can occur in a single day.

"How does the sun accumulate energy in such a way as to release this energy? This is what we want to know."

Bonnet noted that observing the sun from the ground has its limitations because of inteference from the earth's atmosphere.

In January, NASA plans to launch what it calls the "solar maximum mission" — a special satellite equipped with six telescopes — to observe the sun's activities above the earth's atmosphere.

Another NASA satellite, the International Sun-Earth Explorer, which hovers above the earth without orbiting, will also participate.

Bonnet said astronomers will also try to determine why temperatures vary widely in different parts of the sun.

He noted that energy is generated at the centre of the sun by a thermonuclear reaction transforming two atoms of hydrogen into one atom of helium creating heat of 15 million degrees.

"By the time this energy reaches the sun's surface, it cools down to only 4,300 degrees. But what's baffling is that the temperature of the corona is one to two million degrees.

"We don't know how to explain how it decreases and then increases."

David Rust, an astronomer who works for the American Science and Engineering Co., said he believes the)arly downfall of Skylab may have been caused by the beginnings of a solar maximum.

Bonnet noted that astronomers are still trying to determine what happened in the 17th century, when the sun's activity cycle seemed to disappear completely for a period of 75 years.

Cloudy picture on anti-freeze

TORONTO (CP) — There should not be a shortage of vehicle-radiator anti-freeze this winter, manufacturers say. But wholesalers tell a different story about both supplies and prices.

Malcolm Greenhalgh of Union Carbide Ltd. said Thursday his company will be shipping 12-per-cent more to packagers this year. And Donald Stephenson of Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd. said he expects no shortage.

Dow Chemical and Union Carbide produce 90 per cent of the anti-freeze sold.

Meanwhile, Keith Warren of Warren Packaging Ltd. of Toronto, packager of Viceroy anti-freeze, said there is a shortage now and he does not expect relief until Dow builds a new plant in 1980.

Neil Nicholls of Flo-Pak Ltd., maker of Flo-Perm anti-freeze, said his company has been allotted only 90 per cent of last year's supply quota.

Greenhalgh said he expected the retail price of a four-litre container of anti-freeze to be $7.99, compared to $5.60 last year. Dow expects the retail price to be between $6 and $7.

Plant grant hit

LA MALBAIE, Que. (UPC) — An $82.5 million grant from the federal government to General Motors to help establish an aluminium casting plant in Quebec was a giveaway of taxpayers' money to a major corporation, B.C. Economic Development Minister Don Phillips said Thursday.

The grant was announced Wednesday in Ottawa by federal economic development minister Robert de Cotret.

Phillips said de Cotret's announcement had crushed all hope of a return to sound business practices by the new federal government.

$90M salmon scheme

SEATTLE (AP) — U.S. Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus has unveiled a $90 million proposal to rebuild salmon runs in the United States Northwest, and while it was called a good beginning, there already are indications it will undergo large-scale revision.

The plan, with a 10-year time frame, calls for new enhancement programs, the buying back of commercial fishing boats from non-Indians and a loan program for Indians to buy gear.

The federal plan is far less than the $208 million enhancement, research and buy-back program recommended by a federal study last year.

Already, the main catch in the proposal appears to be a section which would allow the federal government to withhold $75 million unless the state antes up $75 million of its own.

Andrus said the Carter administration is trimming expenditures but state Democratic Representative Don Bonker said the problem is basically a federal responsibility.

"It's a problem of federal dams on the Columbia River killing fish and of Canadian interception of fish runs."

Consequently, the federal government should spend more money than Andrus proposed, Bonker said.

The plan comes five weeks after the U.S. Supreme Court largely upheld U.S. District Judge George Boldt's 1974 decision that said treaty Indians must be given the opportunity to catch at least half of the harvestable salmon and steelhead.

A whale of a problem

GREENSPOND, Nfld. (UPC) — Whales are ruining fishing gear near this Bonavista Bay community about 400 kilometres north of St. John's and fishermen want the federal government to "eliminate" the creatures and pay for damages.

The naughty sea mammals have caused damages ranging between $1,800 to $10,000 over the last week, Arthur Wicks, a local representative of the Fishermen's Union, claims.

The whales, following schools of caplin and cod, have been moving north along the island province's east coast. They pursue the smaller fish into nets and often get caught themselves, damaging or destroying the gear.

"There are four boats now out of the water because they don't have any nets left," said Wicks.

"Looking down the road, with the seriousness of the whale situation developing in this province, it's about time the federal department of fisheries took a good, hard look at the gravity of the situation," Wicks said.

"It might be time they realized some of these whales should be eliminated," he said.

He said that if the whales keep increasing in number there may "soon be no inshore fishery left."

FULL FIVE-YEAR WARRANTY ON ALL PARTS AND LABOUR.

0.05% DISTORTION

Back in the early '70's, 1% distortion was considered good. A couple years ago, 0.5% was HOT STUFF. Last year, 0.1% was about the lowest distortion you could find in a stereo receiver. Yamaha receivers have no more than 0.05% distortion. Ask us about NDCR, or just trust your ears!

YAMAHA CR-220 AM/FM STEREO RECEIVER. 15 WATTS RMS PER CHANNEL WITH 0.05% DISTORTION. Drive main speaker in your living room, plus extension speakers in your bedroom or den. Continuously variable loudness allows you to compensate at any listening level for the natural drop off of the ears response.

LIMITED QUANTITIES AT $229.95

YAMAHA CR 420 AM/FM STEREO RECEIVER. 22 WATTS RMS PER CHANNEL WITH 0.05% DISTORTION. FM muting hushes interstation as you tune across the dial. High filter. Separate recording and listening (taping buffs take note!) Twin headphone outputs.

LIMITED QUANTITIES AT $319.95

YAMAHA CR 620 AM/FM STEREO RECEIVER. 35 WATTS RMS PER CHANNEL WITH 0.05% DISTORTION. Its 92 dB phono signal-to-noise ratio means clearer sound, especially during quieter passages. High and low filters. Twin tuning meters for totally accurate FM tuning. Two tape monitor loops.

LIMITED QUANTITIES AT $379.95

YAMAHA CR 820 AM/FM STEREO RECEIVER. 50 WATTS RMS PER CHANNEL WITH 0.05% DISTORTION. Optimum tuning system assures perfect FM reception by locking onto the selected station automatically. Two turntables are possible. Presence equalizer adds extra musical impact to a soloist or vocalist.

LIMITED QUANTITIES AT $469.95

YAMAHA CR 1020 AM/FM RECEIVER. 70 WATTS RMS PER CHANNEL WITH 0.05% DISTORTION. Three sets of speakers for maximum flexibility. FM blend for maximum enjoyment. Full range power meters. Both high and low filters have two turnover points for maximum flexibility.

LIMITED QUANTITIES AT $629.95

YAMAHA CR 2020 AM/FM RECEIVER. 100 WATTS RMS PER CHANNEL WITH 0.05% DISTORTION. Built-in high performance low-noise moving coil head amp. Four-gang volume control lets you listen at low volumes without losing the quietest sound. Pre-amp out/main in. Balanced design—input to output.

LIMITED QUANTITIES AT $689.95

YAMAHA CR 3020 AM/FM STEREO RECEIVER. 160 WATTS RMS PER CHANNEL WITH INCREDIBLE 0.03% THD AND IM DISTORTION. God's country. All previously mentioned features and more. Enough tonal control to challenge most equalizers. Separate headphone level control. Built-in recording calibration oscillator. Variable FM muting. Precise RIAA tracing, simply-your last sonic step up, for all practical purposes.

Two-tone suit a winner

By BERNADINE MORRIS

PARIS — The two-tone suit of Yves Saint Laurent, with its slimming side panels of dark velvet, will probably be the most copied style from the current batch of fall and winter couture shows.

The significance of the current collections transcends a specific fashion, no matter how influential. The couture has evidenced a fresh vitality this season. While the commercial buyers from stores and manufacturers from the United States have pretty much vanished, those from West Germany and Japan have moved into their seats.

Still, that is not what has made the difference. It is the individual buyers from the oil-producing countries, along with some from developing countries in Africa, for instance, who have given the couture a shot in the arm. A Paris label still has magic for them and this does not mean the label in ready-to-wear. The Plaza Athenee, which used to be filled with Americans during collection time, is now host to huge Arab contingents. The women do not necessarily come to the collections. The couture houses are delighted to send clothes to them. They are not particularly interested in day clothes. The evening styles are what they want, and the more sequins and spangles, the better.

So there has been a tremendous emphasis on dramatic evening fashions, with price tags of $20,000 not unusual. They certainly add to the glamour of the presentations, even if they seem far from everyday life.

It is the day clothes that will influence the shape of Western fashion. The princess coat is the across-the-board favorite, appearing in tweeds, smooth woolens and velvet. The amount of flare in the skirt, tightness in the waist, and padding in the shoulders varies, but the fitted coat is the most important shape.

Suits are also fitted in at the waist. The jacket then juts out over the hips in a flaring or smooth peplum. Combined with the puffed-top sleeves that are everywhere, it has a Victorian feeling which also marked clothes in the late 1940's and 1950's inspired by Christian Dior's New Look. The New Look resemblance is emphasized when the skirts are full, which they often are.

Dresses are less emphatic, but the prevailing shape is the chemise. This harks back to the no-waistline dress introduced by Balenciaga and Givenchy in 1957, 10 years after the New Look. After a few initial setbacks, it continued to dominate clothes during the 1960's and has not been totally absent since then, even when practically everybody wore pants. It is one of the best things in Givenchy's collection today. Avoiding the stuffed-sausage look, it is a relaxed, easy shape that appears modern. Unlike the versions in the 1920's, and the 1960's minidresses, the current incarnation of the chemise covers the knees.

There is little unanimity on hemlines in the couture collections, which does not matter so much since each style is adjusted to the wearer. With very few exceptions, and these usually for evening, hemlines descend below the knees and occasionally stop at mid-calf. They set the hemlines where the dress looks best, designers say. Nobody is manic about exact measurements and that, for 20th-century fashion, is progress.

As in other clothas, the shoulders of the chemise are padded, but usually not as exaggeratedly as they have been in the recent past. Pierre Cardin probably has the widest, squarest shoulders in town. Other designers soften the effect with sleeves that are gathered or pleated at the top, which certainly look more feminine. Compared with the no-pad look of Alix Gres, even the modified versions are seen as figure-distorting and not particularly necessary, except perhaps in very tailored clothes.

YOUTH CLINIC

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; Dr. Saul Levine, psychiatrist, and Bruce Vichert, social worker.

DEAR DR. LEVINE: I am a male of 18. For years I've done a lot of daydreaming — about making it rich, about travelling the world, about mansions, villas, cars, yachts, etc. I dream about meeting other millionaires, counts and contesses, dukes and duchesses, kings and queens.

Although I've told some of my friends that I've gone into business with a partner and I am making it big, I'm just a little employee.

When I was in school, I convinced two teachers that I was going to make it big. In my business class I knew everything about stocks and bonds, gold and silver, Swiss and Austrian bank accounts.

I've read books and books on how to make money, the lazy man's way. I know lots of things like "how to get a $10,000 car for free;" "how to make it big in the stock market;" "how to profit from a devaluation" and other things. But one problem — you need money to make money.

I've got this feeling that I'm going to make it big. When? I do not know. I've tried to make my dreams like a middle-class person, but I just can't. It always turns out with me having hundreds of millions of dollars.

Every time when I go out looking for work, I pray that I don't meet any of my friends. I think that I'd drop dead if I did.

How can I face myself, that I might not make it rich? And how can I face life, when everyone thinks that I'm going to be rich?

ANSWER: You are another example of the many people in our society who are preoccupied with the acquisition of wealth as their sole or major function on this earth.

And it is understandable, given the plethora and variety of books and programs on getting rich, and our society's fascination with money.

There is no doubt that sufficient money is necessary to not only subsist but also to enjoy some of the luxuries and pleaures that must be bought. But you may know of many people who have enough wealth and yet do not enjoy life. You also know of many pleasures that just can't be bought.

I am not decrying the need for money but when it becomes the sole reason for anybody's existence, and even then only in terms of vast amounts of the stuff, I fear that you may be riding for a fall.

You are worried about facing your friends, and more importantly, yourself, if you don't make it big. My concern is not that you won't have enough money; you most likely will accumulate a considerable amount because of your energy, commitment to the task, and knowledge of the "how-to's" of gathering some capital.

My concern, rather, is that vast wealth is the only thing that will satisfy you.

Unless there is more to your life than accumulation of riches, you may become a very frustrated man. Part of what makes our lives so interesting is the diversity of pleasures and problems which we experience. Single-mindedness is the stuff of genius — and discovery — but there has got to be a limit.

I wish you luck in your quest, but I urge you to try to read other books, develop other interests and experience other life styles and activities. In the long run, your friends will be more appreciative.

DEAR MR. VICHERT: I'm a 17-year-old girl and I'm dating a guy five years older than myself. I have lived with my mother after my parents divorced a year ago. I brought home my boyfriend for the first time and my mother approved of him — they got along really well.

One night I came home from work late and went into my mother's room to let her know I was home. When I opened her door I was shocked to find her making love to my boyfriend.

I don't know what to do. My mother has tried to apologize to me but I can't accept it. I really love my boyfriend and I don't want to let him go. What should I do?

ANSWER: It is a complicated situation and I can understand why you don't know what to do. First try to understand that the reasons your boyfriend is attractive to you also make him attractive to others. He may know this, and it is his responsibility to decide how he is going to behave.

The fact he was willing to become involved with your mother while he was going with you makes me believe his commitment to you is not very strong. Unless you can accept his apparent lack of concern about your feelings, your relationship with your mother and his own behavior, I suggest you chalk this relationship up to experience and end it. I can only believe that to continue it will invite being hurt again.

Kath Faryon's patchwork & quilting

Last January, as a group of us quilt fanatics were touring the Winter Fantasy Quilt Show in St. Paul, Minnesota, we rounded a corner of the large room where all the beautiful quilts were on display. And there, hanging on the wall before us, was a true masterpiece of patchwork. Designed and made by Dixie Haywood, the work was a showstopper.

The finely interwoven colors of mauve, blue and white with navy and rich purple velvet, done in the crazy quilt manner which Dixie has made famous, simply took our breath away. Our booth, as it happened, was next to Dixie's, so we heard all of the comments uttered by the passing throngs.

Dixie Haywood is the author of The Contemporary Crazy Quilt Project Book (Crown Publishing, 1977) in which she gives step-by-step instructions for fashioning her unique form of crazy quilting techniques, an example of which is featured in our illustration.

Observe the way the pieces seem to have a swirling effect like sails in the wind. The colors she uses, the way she cuts her pieces, and the embroidery stitches she uses, all combine to produce a very unique product be it a full-size quilt or something simple like a tea cosy or place mat.

After reading Dixie's book, I whipped out some scraps of velveteen. I had seen a pattern for a muff done in crazy patchwork, and decided to make the muff and learn Dixie's technique at the same time. I was very impressed with the speed with which I could complete the piecing.

The embroidery adds textural as well as visual interest. The results were very dramatic. The muff project led to other crazy quilt ideas — perhaps you remember the Christmas stockings, etc.

I was sold on Dixie's techniques, and was very pleased to see she had decided to publish color patterns, utilizing her designs in simple form. The illustrated tea cosy and place mat set are two examples.

Each full-sized pattern comes complete with directions, material requirements, and embroidery instructions. The basic contemporary crazy quilt directions are fully illustrated so that it takes but a few minutes to learn.

I'm sure you'll find making them a lot of fun. The terrific thing about them is that no two are ever alike — each is completely unique. And that's a hard thing to find in decorating today.

We spend a lot of time searching for a 'different' type of gift, or for something 'different' for our home. Search no more.

Not only are the place mats easy to do and the tea cosy practical, but they will be enhanced by their use. Somehow the crazy quilt design improves with age. It provides the user with an ever-changing scene — every which way it's turned, shows another view and gives a different feeling.

Whether you buy decorator fabrics, or use scraps from your sewing room, you'll find both of these items will provide lots of pleasure — not only in the making, but in the using for years to come.

Patterns, etc. available:

Tea Cosy — complete pattern and directions. $2.69.

Place Mat Set — including coaster and napkin tie, complete patterns and directions. $2.69.

Both of the above — $5.00.

VP-30 Fabric Pak — includes 50 pieces of calico, solids and dots suitable for crazy patching, in assorted colors, approximately 6'' (15 cm) square. $5.50.

How to order: Send your name, address and postal code, along with a cheque or money order to: Hearthside Patterns, c/o Victoria Times, P.O. Box 9120, Station E, Edmonton, Alta. T5P 4K2.

Lift your stein at Oktoberfest!

Lucy Izon

youth on the move

When you go from Paris to Vienna or from Copenhagen to Rome, your routes cross in Munich. If you pass through any time between Sept. 22 and Oct. 7 you'll find yourself in the middle of one of the world's largest parties — Oktoberfest.

Five million visitors make this pilgrimage annually. When the dust settles they'll have managed to consume over a million gallons of beer, more than 30,000 bottles of wine, at least 10,000 litres of schnapps and upwards of a million sausages. Quite a party — and a good reason why many young travellers include Munich in their fall plans.

Unfortunately, the devaluation of the dollar against the steady rise of the German mark is making it harder for a young budget traveller to survive the high cost of touring Munich these days. If you're planning on heading in that direction here are a few ways you can try to cut your costs.

If you arrive by train, you'll find a city tourist office within the main station. For a fee of about $1.35 it will arrange a room in a hotel or pension for you, and provide you with an English language map of the city, including its sights and information on how to get around. Here in the main station you'll also find facilities for storing baggage (for a small charge), a bank and a post office.

That service can save a lot of time, but if you decide you'd rather make your own accommodation arrangements, there are several ways that can be even a better budget deal.

The least expensive place to stay is the huge sleeping tent, am Kapuzinerholzl. You reach it by taking train No. 21 from the main railway to Botanischer Garten. If you can handle staying in a single tent that accommodates four hundred people, you'll love the price — $2 a night.

That fee includes blankets, air mattresses and hot tea in the morning. The camp also has a recreational tent, a canteen, an information bureau and showers.

To stay in a youth hostel in Munich you must possess an International Youth Hostel Federation membership card and be under the age of 27. Munich has three youth hostels. The Burg Schwaneck youth hostel is about 12 kilometres from the city centre; you can reach it on the S-Bahn No. 10 commuter train from the main station, getting off at Pullach station. From there it's about an eight-minute walk. Prices range from $4.65 to $6.25 depending on how many people you share a room with. Breakfast is included with that charge.

The DJH Jugendherberge hostel is the largest, providing accommodation for more than 550 guests. You will find it at Wendl-Dietrich — Str. 20, that's near the streetcar and bus stop Rotkreuzplatz. Prices here start at $4.65, breakfast included.

The DJH Jugendgastehaus Thalkirchen hostel has a discotheque, recreation rooms and sports halls. Prices here range between $5.30 for dormitory rooms to $10.00 for singles. It's at Miesingstrasse 4, near the streetcar stop Boschetsrieder Strasse.

If you don't meet the requirements of the youth hostels, or you find them too restricting, there are several youth hotels. Generally, they're a little more expensive, but they are more flexible with age limits and curfews. You can get addresses from the City Tourist Office. They're contained in an English language brochure called Young People's Guide to Munich which is distributed free.

The same brochure also lists campsite locations.

If you have a bit more to spend, you can try a budget hotel or pension. The lowest price you will probably find for a single room including breakfast is $13 to $18.50 per night. That's without a shower or bath. In some establishments you can skip the breakfast and reduce that charge by about $2.30 a night. Showers or a bath usually involve an extra charge.

If you're lunching in the park with homemade cheese sandwiches and getting bored, but your budget can't allow for the more expensive restaurant meals, you do have alternatives in Munich. Students with international identification can eat at the university cafeterias.

If you are going to head towards the beer gardens, you can take your lunch with you. It's quite acceptable for patrons to bring their own food.

When you plan to visit the sights and museums of the city, keep your student and youth identification handy. All but four museums are free on Sunday, but with a student card you get free entry to most museums and reductions at the others.

When you want to move on there are several special youth-oriented travel agencies where you are likely to get the better-priced deals.

Metric muttering

YORK, England (CP) — Pamela Halder, a farmer's wife, thought an intruder had broken into her home when she heard a man's voice in the downstairs hall late at night. Nervously she tiptoed downstairs to find the electric metre conversing with itself, with as many as four voices talking at once. Electricity engineers traced the voices to telephone cables running beside the house.

Competition for consumer group

for consumers

The Consumers Association of Canada has some new competition for its magazine.

The first edition of Common Cents is on the newsstands in Ontario and by September, the second edition will be distributed to news vendors nationally by Maclean-Hunter Limited.

At present the editor plans four editions a year but he wants to expand as soon as possible to a monthly schedule.

The magazine appears sound with good topical material but the most astonishing fact is that the editor and creator is a 19-year-old. This young man, Paul Aunger, is quite a powerhouse. He's quiet-spoken and modest but hellbent on making a go of it.

He is, incidentally, the advertising manager for the Students' Union of Ryerson Polytechnical Institute in Toronto. He's certainly going to need that experience for his new publication because without advertising, he's going to flop. He won't even entertain that idea. He says he'll get it.

I reminded him of how many magazines fail. He said, "mine won't." I told him he would have to vet all advertising to make sure it was in the consumers interest with no mail order rip-off, for example. He said he'd take care of that, too.

We discussed the difficulties of making sure that a freelance contributor had done a total research job. He said he was proud of the writers in the first issue and promised even higher standards. Any cautionary or negative comment came as no news to Paul. He had entertained every pitfall possible and seems to have thoughtfully stickhandled his way around them.

You can't help but hope it works for him. Good competition can't do anything but improve the quality of his competitors. We certainly don't have an overload of sound consumer information available to the public. There's room for Paul.

It's taken him a year to pull his first edition together but a lot of the spadework has involved the technical development of the magazine. He hopes to develop a fulltime staff of writers, but at present he will depend on writers who submit material to him on speculation. In fact, he has dense files of material from hopefuls.

To give you an example of the nature of the magazine, here are some articles that appear in the first issue of Common Cents: New Wave in Water Vehicles, an introduction to a new recreational water vehicle called a Wetbike (it was seen in the latest James Bond movie); Making Your Wedding Picture Perfect, which explains the various types of photographers and photographic plans available; Guide to Changing Your Car's Oil, giving the step-by-step procedure; An Alarming Look at Home Security, which, as well as listing the different types of locks and security systems available, also details ways in which your home can be broken into or how thieves can get copies of your keys, and How to Open a Swiss Bank Account (something many people have often wondered about).

In addition to its articles Common Cents has 14 separate mini-columns including Shopping Aisle, Woman's World, Apartment Living, Doing-It-Yourself, You and Your Car, and Energy Update.

When the young editor isn't working at his job of advertising manager for the Institute, or working on the layouts for the next edition of his magazine, he's churning out a syndicated column for American newspapers, writing lyrics for the rock band Destiny, or manufacturing a 100,000-unit line of disco jewellery called Disco Kisses.

Can you do all that and launch a creditable consumer magazine too? I really don't know. His first edition was well worth a dollar. If you're curious you can have a look for yourself by writing to Common Cents, P.O. Box 3282, Station D, Willowdale, Ont., M2R 3G6.

When I asked him if he'd get the magazine out promptly to my readers, he'd anticipated that too. "I have 1,500 in the basement and a way to get them out real fast."

Operation answer to baseball injury

My son is 18. A baseball hit him flush on the nose and broke it. Now he is left with a deviated septum. How successful are operations to correct this condition? Will it help him breathe better? — Mr. G.N.

Dear Mr. N.:

There are few more gratifying operations than the submucous resection of the nasal septum, the technical term for straightening the crooked dividing wall between the nostrils. When cases are carefully selected, the operation can give distinctly better air space to noses that have for years been blocked.

Underlying allergies, sinus infections and swelling of the turbinate bones in the nose are often the reason why some patients who have been operated on continue to complain of the inability to breathe freely through the nose.

The nasal septum is a wall of cartilage and bone that separates one side of the nose from the other. It rarely, if ever, is completely straight, even among those people who have not suffered a nasal injury.

Not all fractures of the nose are accompanied by a deflecting of the septum. Frequently, the injury to the outer bones of the nose calls attention to a deviated septum that might already have been present.

The operation to correct this condition is a safe and uncomplicated one.

Is there any explanation why a young, healthy person like myself should have had a tubal pregnancy? — Mrs. E.T.T.

Dear Mrs. T.:

Normally, the female egg (ovum) passes through the Fallopian tube and, when fertilized by the male sperm, implants itself into the inner wall of the uterus (womb).

Sometimes, the fertilized egg implants itself in the Fallopian tube where it continues to grow. With modern methods of diagnosis, a tubal pregnancy is recognized early, before complications can occur.

These tubal pregnancies are called ectopic pregnancies. They occur once in about every 400 or 500 cases. There are a number of suspected reasons why this unusual problem occurs. Previous inflammation of the tubes is probably the most common reason. Tumors of the ovary may compress the tube and be responsible for blockage of it. An anatomical defect, or kinking, of the tube is another possible cause.

The symptoms of ectopic pregnancy vary considerably. Usually, the problem is detected before six weeks. Early detection and early surgery insure the safety of the patient. There probably is no better reason to be under the supervision of a doctor from the very moment pregnancy is suspected.

Your car's gas tank has a built-in reserve supply. How much of a reserve? Find the tank's capacity in your owner's manual. Fill the tank when it reads "empty." The difference between tank capacity and gallons purchased equals the reserve, which could get you to the next service station.

An abundance of ripe tomatoes and no time to preserve them is no problem. Put tomatoes on a cookie sheet or pie pan and freeze them whole. When frozen, plop them into a freezer bag and seal. The texture won't be as good as when you follow standard freezing methods, but the tomatoes will be great for stews and sauces.

DECORATING

Joseph Egoyan

Once again the fascinating study of interior decorating will be introduced to you by theoretical and practical analysis. These lectures will be held in the store and also supplemented by on-location studies in selected homes including a visit to the residence of Mr. Egoyan to discuss the problems arising in furniture arrangement, color schemes, lighting, styles, theme, drapery and carpet selection and proper use of pictures and accessories.
Mr. Joseph Egoyan, B.A.ED., your instructor, is well qualified with extensive theoretical and practical knowledge. He is a graduate from the Art Institute of Chicago and California College of Arts and Crafts, has taught at Oakland Tech. High, Calif., the American College in Cairo and the Evening Adult Education program in Victoria. In addition, he has a wealth of practical experience in retail fields as proprietor of Ego Arts Gallery in Cairo for five years and Ego Interiors in Victoria for eighteen years. Mr. Egoyan is a qualified artist and has exhibited his art works in a number of one-man shows in the U.A.R. and U.S.A. He won first prize in Vancouver Island Jury Show at the Art Gallery of Victoria, also a one-man show was displayed at The Victoria Provincial Museum, The Burnaby Art Gallery and is now at Ego Interiors.
For the past fifteen years this course in interior decorating has been given by Mr. Egoyan twice yearly in three separate classes each week. At an average of twenty students in each class, more than a thousand students have taken the course to date.
THE CLASSES WILL BE HELD TUESDAY AFTERNOONS, FROM 1 TO 2:30 P.M. AND ALSO EVENINGS ON MONDAY OR WEDNESDAY 7:30 to 9 P.M.
CLASSES START SEPTEMBER 24th, 25th, and 26th at EGO INTERIORS. TOTAL COST OF FIVE LECTURES ONCE A WEEK, $25.00.

Elizabeth Forbes

Exactly four weeks ago in this space, I asked who is Winnifred London?

I also wondered if she was still alive and if so, where she might be.

Actually those were questions in the minds of Mr. and Mrs. Wilf W. Brown of Eastdowne Road because of a book that had come into their possession.

It was a record of graduation days at St. Helen's hall, a school for girls in Portland, Ore. and it was dated June 13, 1911.

The name on the inside cover was Winnifred London. The Browns found it at the botton of a carton of odds and ends he picked up at an auction sale. It had all the appearance of being a prized personal souvenir and whenever they looked at it they wished it could be returned to its rightful home.

Recently they showed it to me. I wrote about it and through my story they found Winnifred London and the book has been returned to her.

She is now Winnifred London Abbot, widow of H. H. B. (Bunny) Abbott, a well-known surveyor on the lower mainland, and she is living in West Vancouver.

Those facts were uncovered when the Browns received a phone call from Mrs. W. R. Gordon, a niece of Mrs. Abbott, living in Victoria.

She picked up the book, explained her aunt was about to visit this city and arranged that the Browns and myself meet her while she was here.

One day last week we sat on the balcony at the Gordon home on Cardiff place and listened while Mrs. Abbott and Mrs. Tam London (mother of Mrs. Gordon and also a visitor from Vancouver) told us something of the history of the London family.

Mrs. Abbott's father, Tampion (Tam for short) W. B. London, came from the family home in southern England, around the Horn of Portland, in his father's sailing ship. That was in 1888 and he was just 14 years of age.

The father, another Tam London, apprenticed his son with the import and export firm of Balfour Guthrie, in Portland. Then he sailed away and never came back.

Young Tam, who started as an office boy in that import and export firm, gradually moved up until in his early manhood he held a position of trust.

He married a Portland girl, Zulette Holman, whose father was the first white child born in Salem, Ore., they had two daughters, Winnifred and Zulette, and a son, Tampion.

Here Mrs. Abbott told us there has always been a Tampion in the London family and since her mother's time, there has always been a Zulette.

She remembers that while the family lived in Portland they visited Victoria for short vacations on three occasions.

Vancouver, on the other hand, was unknown.

"We had never heard of it, so it came as a shock and a complete surprise when our father told us we were going to live up there,"

Balfour Guthrie wished to open a branch in Vancouver and London had been named to handle the planning and organization work, to be manager when the branch opened and a partner in the Canadian firm.

"We nearly dropped dead," is the way Mrs. Abbott put it.

The move was made in January, 1911, but as Winnifred was graduating that year from St. Helen's Hall, she didn't join her family until after the June ceremonies.

She was in her late teens so it wasn't long until she made friends with a group of young people in that growing city and entered into their social life.

Eventually she met Abbott. They married, lived in Vancouver for a time and then at Maple Bay and in Abbotsford.

Her sister Zulette became Mrs. Bruce Boyd, wife of a well-known Vancouver lawyer, who later was named a judge.

Their Brother Tam chose as his wife Catherine Cotton, member of a pioneer mainland family, the same Mrs. Tam London whom we met at the Gordon home last week.

After they both became widows the sisters Winnifred and Zulette lived together, latterly in Beacon Hill Lodge, a senior citizens residence on the Capilano River in West Vancouver. Mrs. Boyd died there last February.

"She would have thoroughly enjoyed all this excitement and the reappearance of my graduation book," Mrs. Abbot said.

That led her to the one mystery as far as this story is concerned.

How did her graduation book get into the bottom of that box of odds and ends Wilf Brown picked up at an auction?

She has no idea how it happened, neither has any member of her family.

Indeed, until I wrote about it, she had forgotten she compiled it, or when it disappeared from her girlhood souvenirs.

As she turns the pages she sees the names of old schoolmates and of Portland families the Londons knew intimately. Also the names of friends down there who hosted parties, dances and get-togethers or sent congratulatory letters and gifts during her long-ago graduation days.

And I'm certain that book will never go missing again.

TV seen as whipping boy

EDMONTON (CP) - Many people believe television is a menace to the young, but that's not necessarily so, says Dr. Charles C. Anderson, a University of Alberta education psychology professor.

Television "is just a kind of handy whipping boy," he said. "To me, it's just a form of cheap pleasure, like bingo."

Anderson recently completed a study in which 900 pre-teen students from Vancouver, Calgary and Edmonton — mostly in grade 6 — were surveyed to see whether TV viewing had a bad effect on school performance.

He found generally that long TV viewers "don't differ very remarkably on all the variables" from those who watched less.

American programs, especially Love Boat, The Hardy Boys and The Brady Bunch, were the most popular. Canadian shows were generally disliked although CBC's Science Magazine was preferred by 12 per cent of the 450 Edmonton students.

The study found that students from the lowest socio-educational background tend to watch more television. Shows that Anderson said lack "cultural substance" were most popular among this group. The Jeffersons and Starsky and Hutch head the list.

If children are doing less well in school these days, Anderson said "the seductiveness of the material environment" is much to blame. There's more things than just school now, such as part-time jobs that raise money for time-consuming recreational activities.

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

Play it cool . . . if you can

DEAR ABBY: I am 30, attractive, desirable and could pretty much have my pick of men.

I recently met the man of my dreams. He's handsome, slightly younger, is built like a million dollars, drives a Porsche and is the world's greatest lover. More than that, he's so kind, considerate and fun to be with that the first night I was with him I thought I had died and gone to heaven.

Sounds perfect, doesn't it? Well, it's not — a dozen other women feel the same way about him.

HEAVEN CAN'T WAIT

DEAR HEAVEN: It won't be easy, but try the cool, laidback approach. With so many women drooling over him, he's sure to notice the one woman who presents a challenge. If that doesn't work, get in line. Your chances are still 1 in 12.

DEAR ABBY: My mother, who is 80, is getting married to a gentleman who is 82.

They will be married in a church and want to send out about 50 invitations and have a reception afterwards!

DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Age has nothing to do with it. If anything, I think their ages would enhance the beauty of the occasion.

Encourage your mother to have the kind of wedding and reception she wants. Do whatever makes her happy and, I promise, you'll look back on her wedding with no regrets.

DEAR ABBY: I have a married granddaughter I'll call Shelly. Last night, Shelly's husband, Harry, arrived home at 10 o'clock. He had driven 150 miles to get there after being away from home all week.

When we heard Harry's car in the driveway, Shelly's mother asked her if she wasn't going to the door to greet him. (Shelly was sitting, reading.) Her reply was, "Oh, it's only Harry."

Abby, that set me thinking. "Only Harry." Not long ago, Shelly thought Harry was very special. Of course he is still special, and Shelly would realize it fast enough if he didn't arrive home one night.

A travelling salesman's work is not easy. Sleeping in a strange motel room every night isn't fun either. But that's what Harry does because it's the way he can best provide for his wife and children. He is a loving, caring husband and father. He is something special, and I hope Shelly doesn't wait until after he's gone to appreciate him.

WIDOWED GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: How true. The saddest thing in the world is a kind word left unsaid. Please see that Shelly sees this.

Before the judge

Four persons were charged in provincial court Thursday with possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking.

Anthony Patrick Stock, 23, of 944 Tattersall, faces two counts of possession for the purpose of trafficking and one of trafficking in marijuana. Guenther Von Ilberg, 20, of 1119 Princess, James Clarence Hilborn, 22, of 4533 Glenover, and Murray Wayne Farup, 20, who gave addresses of 2670 Deville and Salt Spring Island, were charged with possession for the purpose of trafficking.

Four men were arrested after Saanich police seized nearly 10 pounds of marijuana from the trunks of two vehicles following surveillance of a residence on Tattersall.

All but Farup were remanded until next Thursday for election of their trial method.

Farup, who was handed a five-day jail sentence by Judge William Ostler moments before the drug charges were read, was remanded until this morning. He pleaded guilty to driving July 12 while under suspension.

* * *

A 23-year-old man reportedly on a socialization pass from Wilkinson Road jail was charged with robbery with threats of violence and acquiring a firearm without a permit.

Kenneth Brian McKee was charged early Thursday after Kenneth Wayne Lawrence was robbed of $23 and had his wallet and jacket taken.

Ostler remanded McKee until today for election.

An escaper smiled after he received a three-month jail sentence for being unlawfully at large for more than six months from the Jordan River prison camp.

Crown counsel Richard Law told the court John Paul Sunstrom was serving a two-year sentence for a number of break-ins at Campbell River in May of 1978 as well as shorter concurrent sentences for theft and uttering forged documents.

On July 13, 1978, Sunstrom walked out of the minimum security forestry camp and was free until arrested Feb. 4 in Ontario.

* * *

A landed immigrant from Germany was given a two-month jail term after he pleaded guilty to using a cancelled or revoked credit card.

A charge of fraud was withdrawn against 27-year-old Theo Wurm of 1940 Fort.

Court was informed Wurm racked up charges of $269.74 on his Royal Bank of Canada Chargex card after he had run up bills totalling more than $3,000 and had been informed his card was cancelled.

Law said the card was used illegally at Tilden and Budget Rent-A-Car, Western Drug Mart and the Strathcona Hotel.

Duty legal-aid lawyer Jasper Bomhof said Wurm, who was receiving unemployment insurance benefits of $492 monthly, landed at Edmonton on July 26, 1977.

Ostler, noting that Wurm also had $175 on him at the time of arrest, rejected Bomhof's contention that Wurm was in desperate circumstances. He also disagreed with Law's suggestion that Wurm should be held for immigration authorities for possible deportation. The judge said it was not the court's purpose to act for the Canadian immigration department.

* * *

Keith Thorne, 425 Wilson, pleaded guilty to two counts of breach of probation and was given concurrent sentences of five days and one day.

Thorne was convicted Dec. 22, 1978, of impaired driving, fined $200 and placed on six months probation. Two of the probation conditions were to report to the probation officer immediately and as required and to attend the impaired drivers course.

Law said Thorne breached both of those conditions by failing to attend any of the four nightly classes after receiving permission to miss a Feb. 15 session.

Daisy to stay perched awaiting trial verdict

Both sides in the battle over Daisy, the five-year-old red-headed Amazon parrot, agreed in county court Thursday the bird will stay where she is until a trial to decide ownership.

Lawyer Alan Milne, representing Erika Gidden, 1039 Linden, asked Judge Leslie Cashman to grant an order that the defendants, Allan and Stacy Sproule, 2813 Blackwood, preserve Daisy and not sell, lease or in any way dispose of her until trial.

He also sought an order that the Sproules notify Mrs. Gidden's solicitors within three days if there is any change in Daisy's location.

Lawyer David McInnes, representing the Sproules, said he did not oppose Milne's application which Cashman granted.

No date has been set for the trial to decide ownership.

Mrs. Gidden first had the parrot but she boarded it at a pet shop which in turn subboarded it with the Sproules because Daisy was being bothered by other birds.

Mrs. Sproule claims that Mrs. Gidden subsequently telephoned her offering to sell Daisy and she immediately accepted and set out to borrow $500. Mrs. Gidden claims that Mrs. Sproule inquired about purchasing Daisy but no agreement was reached.

Mrs. Gidden said Daisy hasn't been returned to her but belongs to her. Mrs. Sproule said she has lawful possession of Daisy because of a contract of sale, which Mrs. Gidden denies.

Ghost committee at it again

The B.C. legislature's standing committee on agriculture is dead but its ghost is still churning out reports.

The committee reported out in the spring amid NDP accusations that it was a waste of two years and $3 million.

The opposition said that all the committee managed to produce was a pile of useless reports.

A report on the province's dairy industry was released Thursday, but its most recent statistics are three years old.

The report pointed out that in 1976 the retail price of milk was higher in B.C. than anywhere else in Canada or the west coast of the U.S.

'COME TO THINK OF IT, JOEY, THERE AREN'T MANY KINDS OF WEATHER THAT AREN'T ROOT BEER WEATHER.'

Contract Bridge — B. Jay Becker

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

West leads the queen of hearts — on which dummy plays the deuce, you the nine and declarer the five. West continues with the jack and dummy plays the six. Which card do you play now and why? (For the purposes of this problem, assume that your partner is a thoroughly reliable player.)

♡ K62
◇ KQJ103
♣ K108

N

♠ 2
♡ A98743
◇ 92
♣ J764

The correct play is to overtake the heart jack with the ace — on the assumption that declarer has the ten — and then lead another heart. This will defeat the contract if South holds either of these types of hands:

♠KQJ9865
◇ A7
♣ AQ

or

♡ 105
♣ AQ

In the first case your partner will make two trump tricks with the A-10-3, whether declarer ruffs high or low; in the second case your partner will sooner or later score the jack of trumps and ace of diamonds to stop the contract.

How can you tell that South started with the 10-5 of hearts, not the singleton five? There are compelling reasons for reaching that conclusion. One is that you know — when declarer plays low from dummy at trick one — that he does not have the jack. He would surely have played the king from dummy in that case. You are likewise aware that West realizes at trick one that you know where the jack of hearts is located.

It follows, threfore, that if West had the Q-J-10 of hearts he would lead the ten of hearts at trick two to identify that holding. His failure to lead the ten — remember, he is a thoroughly reliable partner — is proof that he does not have the ten.

It is therefore safe to overtake the jack with the ace in order to fire a third heart at declarer and hope it will promote a trump trick for West that does not exist naturally. Of course, the cards may be so divided that you can't beat the contract, but overtaking West's jack of hearts with the ace is surely the right play to make.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

BY SYDNEY OMARR
Saturday, August 18

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You get to bottom line of important transaction. Accent on home, security and responsibility. Stick to facts, leave speculative ventures for another time. Older individual will lend support of experience and money.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Read Aries message for significant information. Finish rather than begin — you get chance to prove major contention. Relative confides problem. Don't cast first stone. Be flexible without losing sight of goal.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on new approach to money and possessions. You receive news which brightens financial picture. Leo, Aquarius natives figure in scenario. You could discover how to "hit jackpot." You've earned lucky break and you get it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Judgment, intuition are apt to be on target. Know it and refuse to be discouraged by those who would have you brood rather than act. Wear bright colors, be conspicuous by your presence. You make a valuable, new contact.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Popularity is on upswing; be ready for acceleration of social life. What had been a source of fear could now become a subject of humor. Accent on clubs, institutions, backstage scenarios and private conferences. Gemini, Sagittarius natives play key roles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Restrictions are removed. You have chance now to exhibit creative capabilities. Your position is stronger than might be apparent on surface. Know it and act accordingly. Scorpio, Aquarius persons play key roles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be analytical where goal, occupation, ambition enter picture. Some revisions may be necessary. Change should be welcomed, not a reason for fear. Member of opposite sex will be an ally. Room is being made for you at top. Written notice or memo could be cause for celebration.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lines of communication are open — get message across in dynamic, meaningful manner. One who had been indifferent is now enthusiastic. Personal magnetism flows — members of opposite sex are drawn to you. Family member surprises you with token of affection.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Roadblock to progress is removed. Cash flow could resume. Partner or mate resolves money dilemma. Be discreet; play cards close to chest. You learn a secret — keep it that way. If persistent, you locate "missing link."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Obtain hint from Sagittarius message. Be confident enough to wait for propitious moment. A special agreement can elevate prestige and financial standing. Spotlight on subjects of partnership and martial status.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Those who depend upon you may learn to heavily; know when to draw line. You finish basic task. Treat yourself to gourmet dinner. One who aided you in past makes reappearance. Revive memories without becoming maudlin.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Apply personal touch. Refuse offer of surrogate. Make your own presence felt. Imprint style. Affair of heart dominates. Emotions could temporarily shove logic aside. A Leo shows you the way to new experiences.

IF AUGUST 18 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you have sense of drama. You are drawn to theatre, law, medicine. People come to you when they are in trouble. Others are aware when you walk into a room. You seek peace and love, but you seem constantly to be embroiled in conflict. Aries, Libra individuals play important roles in your life. October could be one of your most significant months of 1979, a year in which you find spiritual enlightement. You will adjust to recent domestic change. Before August is over, you will have come to terms with a family member. People do not have halfway feelings about you. You are envied, admired, resented — but no matter what, others are very much aware of your existence.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"Well, that's the magic number,' Bob declared. "Now we only need some way to remember it."

Adam nodded, starting to figure out something on a handy sheet of paper. "I've got it," he said. "It's just one more than seventeen times the total of its digits."

Hardly a simple gimmick! But what was the number?

(Answer Monday)

Yesterday's answer: SNACK was 10245 (odd).

TRUE OR FALSE
QUESTION: McMusic is in Sooke.
ANSWER: False — We are in Colwood, just past Royal Roads College, with buses from town to our door.

A: False. McMusic is the only place you can get Odeyssey and Aria Pro 11 guitars Sound Crew, Traynor and Polytone amps and PA.'s, Morley effects, and Norman acoustics. The music industry is advancing rapidly and each of our exclusive lines combine quality and innovation.

Q: McMusic doesn't take trades.
A: False, we always have a good selection of used goods.

Q: They don't do repairs.
A: False. If it can be fixed — we can do it. Quickly, reasonably and guaranteed.

Q: McMusic is worth a visit.

RUSTIC CENTRAL SAANICH

Your imagination and talents could be the needed factor to bring this farm-style cottage to it's full potential. The owner has done a beautiful restoration so far. Living room, dining room, entrance hall, bedrooms and 1½ baths are charming but you may want to apply your skills to a larger kitchen. Will you see the potential in the undeveloped attic and sad little outbuildings? Some artistic additions of trellis and shrubbery could turn this semi-secluded garden into a very private one. Owners have instructed me to present all offers on the asking price of $56,000.

HOW TO WRITE
CLASSIFIED ACTION
AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

KUM — In Hospital on August 12, Shing Yue Kum, aged 84 years, of 555 Herald Street. Born in China and coming to Canada in 1921, he is survived by a son in China.

Funeral service will be held in Hayward's Thomson and Irving Chapel, 1625 Quadra at Balmoral on Monday, August 20 at 1:00 p.m. Rev. S. M. Lee officiating, followed by interment in Royal Oak Burial Park.

McCULLOCH — John Auld, beloved husband of Alice, peacefully in his sleep on August 15, 1979, after a long illness, at the Saanich Peninsula Hospital in his 93rd year. Mr. McCulloch was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, on May 21, 1887 and, as a small child, moved with his family to Runcorn, England. He was a pioneer resident of Semans, Saskatchewan, homesteading there with his parents and brothers in 1905. He married Alice Lintott in Raymore, Saskatchewan, in 1919 and they made their home in Semans until 1937 when they moved to Victoria with their family. Their home, for many years, was at 3775 Tillicum Road and more recently at 5370 Alderley Road with their daughter and son-in-law, Arline and John Parrish. Predeceased by two brothers, Hugh in May, 1979, and William in September, 1966, he is survived by his loving wife Alice, his daughters and sons-in-law, Marion and Campbell Small, Arline and John Parrish; his son and daughter-in-law, Keith and Marie McCulloch; three grandsons, Mark Parrish, Bruce McCulloch and Rennie Parrish; three sisters-in-law, Doris McCulloch of Victoria, Agnes Lintott of Courtenay and Myrtle Lintott of Raymore, Saskatchewan; many nephews and nieces.

Funeral services were held in McCall Bros. Chapel, Johnson at Vancouver Streets, on Friday, August 17, 1979, at 3:15 p.m. with the Rev. Dr. H. W. Kerley officiating. Interment at Royal Oak Burial Park. (Flowers gratefully declined.) Many thanks to the Saanich Peninsula Hospital staff and nurses.

POST — On August 15, 1979, at Duncan, B.C., Mr. James Albert Post, of Suite 208-340 Bundock Street, age 80 years. Mr. Post served with the Canadian Armed Services in both World Wars. He was a member of the Royal Canadian Legion, Cowichan Branch No. 53, and a member of the OAP of Duncan. Mr. Post was a pioneer on Vancouver Island. He was born in Saanichton and had resided on the Island all his lifetime. Mr. Post had been with the Federal finance offices 'til his retirement. Besides his loving wife Thelma, he is survived by a son and daughter-in-law, Frederick and Velma Post of Victoria; two grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Bertha Wallace of Seattle.

Services for Mr. Post will be held on Monday, August 20 at 1:00 p.m., in Sands Funeral Chapel, with the Reverend George Keenleyside officiating, cremation. Flowers gratefully declined. Those so desiring may contribute to the Heart Fund, Box 73, Duncan, B.C. Arrangements by Sands.

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies.
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

Brain Train really rolling

LONDON (CP) — One must do something while The Times is on strike.

With the celebrated crossword denied them, many commuters are improving their minds by travelling up to London aboard the Brain Train.

Even more incredible and enough to make the most naive a little dubious — there is no taxpayer's money in it.

Britons, among the most taciturn of people, are enjoying study groups covering a wide variety of subjects on board their trains as they chug into the city each morning.

After the 7.55 train call from Brighton to Victoria, commuters are no longer confused or surprised to hear the same voice advising Russian, philosophy, English and astronomy students to move to designated compartments for their classes.

Commuters are becoming more interested in learning a language, picking up a few pointers about buying an antique or discovering their zodiac sign than grabbing a little snooze, since for many the daily journey to London is an hour.

Since late 1977 the Mutual Aid Centre, in co-operation with British Rail, has organized various activities based on the premise that people are willing to work together to fulfil common needs.

The Brain Train provides a free educational service. The commuters pay no charge and the tutors receive no fees.

The teachers are merely other commuters with an interest in a particular subject or a little knowledge or expertise to share. It's mutual aid in action, which can make a long, routine trip more interesting.

MAC spokesman Pamela le Pelley says commuters admit that they've become acquainted with fellow travellers through the study groups after not exchanging a single word for years — although travelling together every day.

Five early morning trains now are housing study groups. The only prerequisite for those wanting to join a group or start one up? A commuter train with a journey time of 50 minutes or more. Anything less is too short.

Monsoons swamp towns

MANILA (Reuter) — Monsoon rain swamped about 30 towns in the northern Philippines Thursday, isolating several of them, causing at least six deaths and sending about 15,000 people scurrying to evacuation centres. Giant mud and rockslides cut several main roads, bridges were washed away and crops damaged. Heavy rains of the last four days accompanied Typhoon Irving as it skirted the northwest of the country on its way to Taiwan and China.

Sow now to reap later. . .

GARDENING

Hilda Beastall

Roof gardens and balcony gardens were already common in New York City and other eastern cities back in the 1930s, and some of the owners were growing food plants in their collections. Even then it was not easy to get fresh green things to eat daily in city areas.

Before the end of this month, you too can make a modest beginning by setting aside one planter for growing green edibles for winter.

Suggestions are parsley, chervil, lettuce and curled endive. A container alloted to a couple of plants of New Zealand Spinach will return many dollars worth of almost daily pickings of the best spinach you ever enjoyed. Once established in the current warm weather, it goes happily through a normal winter, needing only a light covering to protect it if a short cold spell should occur.

For this vegetable project, you do best with either a south or southwest facing balcony to catch maximum winter sun. Such a balcony misses the coldest of winter winds which come from the northeast.

A solid fronted balcony is inclined to keep out low winter sunlight if plants are on the balcony floor. This can be corrected with only one or two planters by raising them to catch maximum light.

Seeds can be sown into any fairly fine compost mixture that you are able to either make with the aid of a down-to-earth gardener friend or can buy at some of the garden shops who cater to balcony customers. Keep a small surplus to add as surface dressing as time passes or if you find the need for an extra planter or other container.

Look for the seeds now while seed racks are still around. Some stores put them away by September in the mistaken belief that gardening with seed sowing is finished.

Sow a half dozen parsley seeds along one edge of a planter; a half dozen chervil along another; and a half inch apart, sow as many lettuce seeds as the planter will accommodate without crowding.

The lettuce seed to look for is one which endures cool growing conditions. Early Curled Simpsons is suggested, or Cos (also listed as Romaine on some packets) or the curled leaf salad green called Curly Endive. If you can find the seed of Corn-salad, a half dozen plants will take you through the winter and into spring. You cut the young tops and leaves from the plants while small and the plants continue making new side shoots which in turn are cut off for sandwhiches and salads. This is a fine delicate taste experience.

Chervil is a fine-leaved delicately flavored green herb. Pick leaves for use in soups, salads and sandwiches. The plants grow enough all winter to keep up the supply of leaves. Parsley is well known but most people don't realize its vaue as a source of vitamin C.

Sprinkled finely chopped over potatoes and cooked beans, peas, spinach and other green vegetables that have been frozen or canned, raw parsley not only adds a fresh flavor but its vitamin C compensates for the loss of that vitamin in cooking.

As germination takes place, some seedlings may need to be removed to provide early space for growing the remainder. Some like lettuce will transplant readily into other containers, but Corn-salad and New Zealand Spinach are not so easy. They should be moved with a small ball of soil around the tiny roots.

With any kind of luck in winter weather, this scheme should go on for most of the winter to add flavor, interest and vitamins to routine meals.

Fiery death in a Pinto

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A young woman was killed late Thursday night when the gasoline tank of her Ford Pinto, rammed in the rear by another auto, exploded in flames, police reported.

A Louisville man, John Matthews, 20, was charged with manslaughter and drunk driving in the death of the driver of the Pinto, Deborah Cahill, 24, also of Louisville.

Police said the Cahill car was hit shortly before midnight. The Pinto, its rear-mounted gasoline tank exploding in flames, was pushed forward and rammed a Mercedes, which also exploded in flames.

The design of Pinto has been criticized by some consumer groups as unsafe because of the location of the gasoline tank near the rear of the car.

Landslide kills

NEW DELHI (AP) — At least 15 persons died in a landslide caused by heavy rains in Pithorgarh district in northern India, the United News of India said Thursday.

Passenger got drop to end hijacking

MIAMI (AP) — When the captain of an Eastern Airlines jetliner lunged for a knife-wielding hijacker, James Westendorf saw a chance to make sure he and his wife got home from their holiday in Guatemala.

"When he grabbed him down low, I grabbed him up high and put a half-nelson on him," Westendorf, 58, said late Thursday. "I knew damn good and well when I had him . . . we were going to get to Miami."

Captain Roy Hansen said crew members had to tell Westendorf to free the hijacker's throat from the wrestling hold.

"Maybe I squeezed him a little too tight," said Westendorf, a resident of Hollywood, Fla., who works at an Eastern maintenance facility in Miami. "I don't think he got what he deserved."

Allah Roland Kagan, 24, of Holyoke, Mass., was today remanded in custody on air piracy charges for attempting to divert Eastern Flight 980 to Cuba, the FBI said.

Special Agent Arthur Nehrbrass said Kagan, a navy veteran and former amusement park worker, was released July 23 from Northampton State Hospital, a mental facility in western Massachusetts. Nehrbrass said that Kagan denied asking to go to Cuba.

None of the 84 passengers and six crew members aboard the Boeing 727 was injured, airline officials said.

He was playing loud, "spacey electronic music" on a portable radio-cassette player in the departure area, said Gary Shapiro, 25, of Athens, Ga.

The pilot said he was told shortly after takeoff that a passenger claiming to have a bomb in a cassette player was demanding to go to Cuba.

After several conversations with the hijacker, Hansen said he satisfied himself there was no bomb. But then the assailant pulled a pocket knife on flight attendant Kelly Mitchell, 28, of Miami, and took her to the plane's first-class section, he said.

"I was just trying to keep him calm and break him down," said Ms. Mitchell. She said the assailant threatened to slit her throat.

As the jetliner approached Cuba more than two hours after takeoff, Hansen said he convinced the hijacker he would be better off in Florida.

And then, crouching in front of him, "I just saw an opportunity to grab both his wrists and jumped on him."

Then, Westendorf and four other passengers jumped into the fray.

"Just about everybody who could get a hand on him got a hand on him," Hansen said.

Westendorf said he offered the hijacker a cigarette and some water after he had been restrained with ties and seat belts. He said the young man was much less disoriented than he had appeared at the Guatemala City airport.

"Maybe that half-nelson I put on him woke him up," Westendorf said. But he added: "If I hurt the poor guy, I'm sure not going to apologize."

Rhodesia PM defends battle

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa said today government troops opened fire first in clashes that killed at least 183 counter-insurgency auxiliary forces loyal to his chief internal rival, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole.

In a statement to Parliament, Muzorewa, who is also minister of defense and combined (military) operations, described the incidents in late July as a "regrettable affair" but said the mutinous behavior of the militiamen left regular government forces with no option.

He said that in one instance, he personally instructed military commanders "to take whatever action was necessary to bring the undisciplined and criminal elements back into the fold."

In that incident, 58 auxiliaries were killed in the Nyamaropa area in the east.

"They were a large number of dissidents in Nyamaropa," Muzorewa said. "They were well armed and in well defended positions, which made it necessary to take military action against them, during the course of which 58 were killed and the remainder surrendered.

"Before the action was mounted, there had been four days of heated arguments and an utter refusal to obey orders. This constituted open mutiny."

Muzorewa said the Nyamaropa auxiliaries had been given a deadline by which to move to another area for retraining but "they chose to ignore the ultimatum."

Answer in nuclear core?

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A hole drilled through a 2½-metre-thick wall at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant soon may provide the answer to the mystery of what happened inside the devastated reactor.

The wall is part of the huge containment building housing the nuclear plant's reactor and other equipment. The hole has been drilled to obtain a sample of contaminated water inside.

"They should get the sample by early next week," said Sandy Polon, spokesman for the Metropolitan Edison Co., operator of the crippled plant.

The sample will be tested at two laboratories to see what sort of radioactive isotopes and other materials it contains.

That should give experts an idea of the type and extent of damage in the reactor core, Polon said.

There are an estimated 550,000 gallons of water more than two metres deep in the basement of the containment building, the residue of the March 28 accident which overheated the reactor.

It is not known how badly the reactor's 100 tons of uranium were damaged because no one will be able to enter the containment building until next year.

Sections of the building are believed to still contain lethal levels of radiation, much of it from cooling water which escaped from the crumbling reactor core March 28.

Federal officials have said there may be severe damage to as much as 60 per cent of the uranium fuel assemblies in the reactor.

Dr. Pickup man in middle of Alert Bay health storm

By ROGER SMITH

ALERT BAY, B.C. (CP) — When the talk turns to Indian demands that he retire, Dr. Jack Pickup lashes out at band council staff and reporters who took their word instead of his.

Then he points to his waiting room as proof of this community's faith in him. Most of Pickup's patients are Indians.

There now is a doctor working temporarily on the Nimpkish Indian reserve, but most band members still come to see Pickup, even though he was found negligent after a young Indian girl died in his care.

"Most of the Indians are on my side in the fight," said Pickup, who has practised here for almost 30 of his 61 years. "It's just that one group down there, that group that runs the band office."

Reflecting the feelings of many non-Indian residents here, Pickup directs his bitterness at reporters.

"I'm the only one on trial here. They check my credentials but they don't check my detractors'."

Alert Bay is on tiny Cormorant Island, a 20-minute ferry ride from Port McNeill on northern Vancouver Island. The Indian reserve is at one end of town; non-Indian residents and businesses are at the other. During the past few months, the split in the village has been more than physical.

But for many here, including Pickup, the loyalty of some Indian patients disproves media reports that the village's 1,800 residents — about half of them Indians — split along racial lines over the doctor's competence.

For others, that loyalty has neither dispelled the suspicions about Pickup nor has it answered the broader question of the quality of Indian health care that was hanging over Alert Bay even before 11-year-old Renee Smith died from a ruptured appendix in January.

Nimpkish band manager Pearl Alfred says some Indians still go to Pickup because of habit, because they don't know there's a choice or because they can't go to doctors in other communities as easily as whites.

Others, she admits, still believe in Pickup's competence. But the elected leaders of the Indian community don't, and neither does Mrs. Alfred who had three of her four children delivered by Pickup.

By alluding to the band's alleged radical connections, people seem to be casting doubts over everything its leaders say. It's an old trick, argue band leaders, but the allegation is irrelevant.

"If it's radical to worry about Indian health, then we should all be radical," said Mrs. Alfred, 43. "No one wants to talk about Indian health problems in a community like this or in any community in B.C. Everyone wants to think we have the good life."

After a post-inquest investigation, the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons, which licences doctors, agreed Pickup had made a mistake, but found him competent in a series of tests.

Since then, changes have quietly been made at St. George's Hospital, adjacent to an Indian burial ground and its dozen looming totem poles. Until a federal doctor arrived in late June, Pickup had been the only doctor working there for more than a year, on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The hospital now is operating under surgical guidelines for small hospitals which limit the kinds of surgery that Pickup or any other doctor can perform while there are fewer than three doctors.

Indian leaders, who wanted a full public inquiry, say the college hearing and the Ballam report amounted to a whitewash. They are awaiting a promised visit by federal Health Minister David Crombie.

"We've been going on this since January and we're not about to give up," said Mrs. Alfred. "We intend to ask the questions publicly. If the minister won't meet with us, we'll find other ways to do it."

Any attempts to pronounce the controversy dead are premature. There is still talk among both Indians and whites about Pickup's alleged drinking problem, a question brought up at the inquest.

. . . only one on trial

The Indian band still wants an investigation of specific complaints against Pickup which it says its members have made in affadavits.

Many whites jumped quickly to Pickup defence with tributes — many in the form of letters to the editor of a Port Hardy newspaper — to his service as former mayor, current board of trade president and longtime doctor.

Indian leaders say that's not the point: that Pickup has done much for the community in the past does not necessarily make him a good doctor now.

St. George's Hospital, located next to Indian cemetary, is centre of care debate

2nd doctor hard to find

ALERT BAY (CP) — The recent controversy over health care, tinged with charges of racism against the community's only doctor, have made it more difficult than ever to attract a second doctor to Alert Bay.

A second doctor would ease the tension that has developed between the Indian and white communities over the capabilities of Jack Pickup, a 61-year-old doctor who was found negligent in the January death of an 11-year-old Indian girl. But so far, increased efforts to find another doctor have turned up no commitments.

Isolation, long hours, a shortage of nursing staff, the range of medical problems a doctor would face and Pickup's control of the only currently available clinic space all compound the problem.

"To go up to Alert Bay, you're going to be working 100 hours a week," said Dr. Jack Ross, a general practitioner in Campbell River. "You're going to make mistakes and you're going to be criticized. Why should anyone do that unless they're absolutely the missionary type?

It has never been easy to attract doctors to such isolated outposts. The only town on Cormorant Island, Alert Bay is a 20-minute ferry ride and a 50-kilometre drive away from the nearest airport at Port Hardy on the north end of Vancouver Island. The Nimpkish Indian reserve dominates one end of the island, the white village the other.

"When a nurse is looking for a job she wants a place that is adequately staffed," said Victor Raz, a federal government doctor who agreed to work at a clinic set up by the Nimpkish band until a second permanent doctor was found. "Likewise, a doctor wants a place where he won't be on call all the time."

Several doctors have agreed that most medical school graduates would not be prepared for the range of medical problems they would face. Pickup said he had difficulty getting a stand-in so he could take a two-week vacation this month.

Hospital board member Bill Deadman said da new doctor's salary might be supplemented and help provided in setting up an independent clinic.

But some doctors say Alert Bay's 1,800 residents are not enough to support two doctors, although a single doctor suffers under the strain of always being on call.

There is one doctor in Port McNeill but none in Sointula on nearby Malcolm Island. Raz said a second doctor here could help in all three communities, which have a total of almost 5,000 residents.

It would also satisfy the Indian demand for an alternative to Pickup, who does not have the confidence of the band leadership but who says he won't retire.

In the past, St. George's, now operating 33 acute-care beds, was the only health care centre north of Campbell River, but the boom in northern Vancouver Island has produced new facilities.

There are hospital facilities in Port McNeill, Port Hardy and Port Alice and major logging camps have "band-aid clinics." As well as Pickup, there are four doctors in Port Hardy, one each in Port McNeill, Port Alice and at Woss, a Canadian Forest Products logging camp.

But it's up to the doctors to decide how to help each other out, and each is already busy in his own bailiwick.

Shipyards closed

LONDON (Reuter) — The state-owned British Shipbuilders Corp. announced Thursday that four merchant shipyards in Scotland will be closed and production at two in England will be reduced with an over-all loss of 10,000 jobs.

Huts for hikers?

Parks officials should cater to "intermediate" wilderness hikers, says Dr. John Marsh, president-elect of the National and Provincial Parks Association of Canada.

An intermediate is a hiker who doesn't like to backpack too much food and live in tents. They are usually women and middle-aged men.

"In large provincial and national parks, huts should be provided in wilderness areas for this group of people," he told an NPPAC meeting here. "The Swiss, Australians, Swedes and New Zealanders cater to this group."

While scientist Dr. Ian McTaggart-Cowan was sympathetic, he thought there would be difficulty maintaining the huts.

But Marsh says Sweden, New Zealand and other countries have overcome the vandalism problem.

Inflation rate slows to 8.1%

OTTAWA (CP) — The cost of living rose last month at an annual rate of 8.1 per cent, the lowest 12-month inflation rate since June, 1977.

Government figures released today showed the annual inflation rate for July dropped from the June figure of 8.9 per cent in spite of a sharp increase in food prices and transportation costs.

The Statistics Canada consumer price index showed the cost of living during July increased by 0.8 per cent, a relatively steep monthly jump. By the time the July figure was combined with those of the previous 11 months, however, the annual increase in consumer prices appeared moderate.

Leading all other prices in increases was a 10.5-per-cent rise in transportation costs. This reflected both the initial impact of the July 1 $1-a-barrel increase in oil prices and higher prices for new North American cars.

The consumer price index, the government's normal yardstick for measuring the impact of price changes on the average citizen, stood last month at 192.1.

Higher prices for fresh fruits and vegetables, beef, dairy products, cereal and eggs were chiefly to blame, Statistics Canada said.

This means a selection of typical consumer monthly purchases, which would have cost $100 in 1971, now costs $192.10. The price-tag for that same so-called basket of goods and services in June was $190.60.

In other words, a 1971 dollar last month had 52 cents worth of purchasing power.

Although some home-grown produce came on the market in July, many fresh fruits and vegetables such as apples were not locally available. Large monthly price increases were also reported for beef, fish and eggs.

The cost of buying a new car or truck last month was 13.2 per cent higher than one year earlier and the cost of running it was up 8.4 per cent.

Clothing prices rose last month at a rate of 9.6 per cent, health-care products were up 9.4 per cent and energy prices rose by 9.5 per cent.

Housing was one area where some relief was evident. Accommodation costs rose by 7.1 per cent last month, a more moderate increase than those reported for most other items. This has a signficant impact on the consumer price index because Statistics Canada assumes housing accounts for 34 per cent of the average person's monthly spending.

Canada's inflation rate is considerably less than that of the United States. The International Monetary Fund released figures this week showing that prices in the United States are 10.9 per cent above their 1978 level.

The Washington-based agency said Canada, Austria and the Netherlands were the only countries in the industrialized world not to face rapidly-rising prices so far this year.

Cyclist killed

Dead is Diana Fournier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Fournier, of 995 Brookview Road.

Colwood RCMP said the girl was attempting to ride across the Road in the 3400-block when she was struck.

The car was driven by 18-year-old Martin Andrew Haasjes, of 775 Latoria Road.

Fares upset handicapped

As of Sept. 1 a round trip ride on an Easter Seal bus will cost $7, a hike of $4 over the present fare.

On Nov. 1 the fare will increase to $14, not including a 25 cents a mile extra charge for each mile beyond the four-mile downtown radius.

A spokesman for the Handicapped Recreation Society said Thursday the disabled community is furious about the proposed increases.

Many handicapped people will have few alternatives, since most are physically unable to use taxis, even if they could afford them, he said.

In Victoria, B.C. Hydro will equip its regular buses for wheelchairs, but only for a six-month experimental period in the Beacon Hill area.

The highest concentration of handicapped citizens live in a Saanich housing project where the buses do not run.

The news of the increases came in letters to the handicapped from the B.C. Lion's Society for Crippled Children.

The society blames the increases on municipalities and the provincial Urban Transit Authority.

Prime Minister Joe Clark and wife Maureen McTeer pause beside John Diefenbaker's coffin

Hundreds line to mourn

Times News Services

His body will lie in state until Sunday, when it will be transported to its final resting place in Saskatchewan.

House of Commons janitors and security guards — the common people — were the first to pay final respects today.

Even before dignitaries and the general public arrived, House of Commons staff, who got to know Diefenbaker well over 40 years here, filed solemnly past his open casket near the Commons chamber he loved so well.

The coffin was draped with two flags, the old Red Ensign, which Diefenbaker had fought unsuccessfully to have kept as Canada's offical standard, and the new Maple Leaf flag introduced by Lester Pearson's Liberal administration.

The day dawned crisp and sunny as mourners made their way to pay their respects. Black and gray draping was placed in the entrances of the Peace Tower leading to the Centre Block of Parliament.

Israelis storm Lebanon town

BEIRUT (UPI) — Israeli commandos stormed into a southern Lebanese town today and Israeli and Lebanese rightist artillery bombarded a string of cities and towns along the southern coast, reports from the area said.

Beirut radio said 50 Israeli commandos invaded the town of Shakra, about five miles north of the Lebanese-Israeli border, searched several houses and blew up at least two of them.

It was the latest in a series of assaults in the region, apparently aimed at suspected Palestinian guerrilla positions. There were no immediate reports of casualties after the Israelis pulled out.

Israeli and rightist artillery fire, striking under an umbrella of Israeli reconnaissance warplanes, slammed into the southern port city of Tyre, suburban Bass and the town of Rashidiya just to the south, reports said.

The Palestine news agency WAFA said the heavy shelling began at 10:30 a.m. (4 a.m. EDT) and was still going on three hours later. At least one woman was killed and another wounded, the agency added.

Israeli jets swept over southrn Lebanon on low-altitude runs but did not attack.

Reporters on the scene said Israeli positions and Israeli-armed rightist militiamen inside southeast Lebanon unleashed 155mm and 175mm shell barrages against Palestinian-controlled towns including Nabatiyeh, Arnoun and Mahmoudiyeh.

2-month Alberni repairs

The bad news is now official.

The B.C. Ferry Corp. said Thursday that the Queen of Alberni, which ran aground a week ago in Active Pass, will be out of service for at least two months.

Mechanics at North Vancouver's Burrard Drydocks have finished examining the Alberni's engines and they report severe damage to the number two gear box, the corporation said.

The gear box will have to be removed and sent back to the factory in Germany for repairs. It then will have to be realigned with the engine.

However, airline spokesmen say the corporation may have trouble taking the 20-ton gear box overseas.

The spokesmen said most 747 jets can handle a maximum load of nine tons. While a spokesman for Flying Tigers air freight company said a special 747 could handle the gear box, he said the plane does not fly into Vancouver.

If the ferry corporation can get the box to Seattle the Flying Tigers may be able to fly it to New York, and from there maybe Lufthansa can take it to Germany, he said.

Ferry traffic between the island and mainland faced two and three-sailing waits Thursday.

Typhoon still flexing muscle

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Typhoon Irving, packing winds of 144 km/h, spared Shanghai but sideswiped Korea's southern coast today, killing at least two people. Three people were reported missing in the storm's wake.

The Korean Central Meteorological Station warned the storm could move inland off the Yellow Sea and hit the nation's western coast by tonight.

Irving dumped heavy rain on Cheju Island and other areas along Korea's southern coast Thursday and today, the station said.

Police said two people died and three others were missing.

At 3 p.m. Shanghai time, Irving was located about 81 miles west of the southwestern tip of the Korean peninsula, moving northeast at 13 miles an hour.

If the typhoon stays on its current course through the Yellow Sea, it is expected to land near Sosan, 65 miles southwest of Seoul by evening and then cut across the Korean peninsula into the Sea of Japan, the station said.

Meteorological officials said Irving showing no signs of weakening.

Irving also dropped heavy rains on the western Japanese islands of Shikoku and Kyushu, disrupting air flights and ferry services as it moved north, Japan's meteorological authorities said. The agency warned residents in northern Kyushu against strong winds and heavy rains.

Firemen walk out

HALIFAX (CP) — Halifax's 271 firemen began walking off the job at 10:10 a.m. ADT today in the first firefighters' strike in the city's 230-year history.

Several hundred off-duty firemen who packed the local fighters' club applauded, pulled out picket signs and went to man the picket lines as Greg Smith, president of International Fire Fighters Association local 268, declared the strike was on.

Smith reiterated that the firemen will not fight any fire, even a major outbreak, during the strike.

"There is no point in our withholding our services and then telling the public we will fight a fire," he said in answer to a reporter's question. "We will not respond to any fire fighting situation."

Off-duty firemen immediately manned picket lines.

Holdup in cab thwarted

A woman foiled an armed holdup early today when she flagged down a passing police car to report a city cab driver in trouble.

Police stopped the cab within a couple of blocks and arrested a man who was holding a knife to the driver's throat as he drove up Johnson Street.

City police said Esquimalt-Saanich cabbie Robert Chavenaile, 30, of 344 Vincent, picked up the man in View Royal about 1 a.m.

As the cab moved through the 600-block, the woman noticed something strange inside and flagged down a passing police car which caught up to the cab in the 1000-block Johnson.

The suspect gave up without a struggle and Chavenaile was unhurt.

Police are withholding the woman's name.

Police said the incident was the fourth armed or attempted armed robbery in the city within a week, all of which have led to arrests.

Shots warning as measles spread

Fifty-six cases of measles have been reported in Greater Victoria this year — up from only three cases this time last year.

"These outbreaks are not necessarily all bad," said Arneil. "They act as reminders to people who forget that the disease is still around."

Arneil said it is a serious disease. Complications can include bronchial pneumonia, encephalitis, infected ears and loss of hearing. The death rate is one in a 1,000.

Vancouver's new medical health officer, Dr. David Kinloch, said there were more than seven times as many cases reported in Vancouver in the first six months of 1979 than during all of 1978.

"Practically none of these youngsters need have been infected if they had been immunized," he said. "Measles could be wiped out in a few years, as smallpox has, if all children were immunized as soon as they are a year old."

In Canada this year there were 16,265 cases of measles up to June 16 compared with 3,813 for the same period last year. In Vancouver there have been 148 cases compared with 20 in 1978.

Victoria's Arneil said it is difficult to get an accurate reading of the problem because many doctors do not report measles.

Kinloch, who took his position about a month ago, also said he is concerned about Vancouver's immunization record, partly because of the difficulty in obtaining accurate records.

"We have to find some way to persuade private practitioners to inform us when they do immunizations," he said. "It is also essential that each individual have a record of when and with what he (or) she has been immunized."

Accurate personal records are particularily important for those past the age of 20 because of changes in a number of vaccines, he said.

It has been found the first measles vaccines using dead virus only gave immunity for a limited time, he said. Now high school and college students are getting the disease in increased numbers.

Most of this year's cases have been in children about nine or 10.

TOWN TALK

It started with the Times People column Aug. 3, reporting that Walter Glanze was including the word "nerd" in the new Scribner-Bantam English Dictionary.

"Nerd" is defined as a noun meaning a "gauche, tacky or uncool person; creep."

Heaven help the language when a dictionary must define anything with a word such as "uncool."

Don't let it be said that Times staffers blew their collective cool when J. April McKenna, 1140 Tattersall, wrote and suggested that "nerd" should be "nird".

"It is, in fact," wrote McKenna coolly, "a sigluma, derived from the phrase 'no intelligent response detected.' This phrase would, no doubt, serve as a succinct definition."

The matter might have ended there, with McKenna's definition definitely better than most others before us. But sigluma? Surely McKenna meant acronym, no?

Check UVic's estimable linguistics department. Several days later a harried linguist decides there is no such word, and McKenna really meant "sigla," the plural form of "siglum," and meaning: "Letters (esp. initials) or other characters used to denote words." Thanks to Webster's, Oxford and all the other dictionaries frantically pawed through.

That man Lee Shilo is at it again and he even has police in on the act.

This time around, Victoria's modern-day answer to Harry Houdini will jump Saturday into the murky waters of the Inner Harbor shackled with a ball and chains.

All being well, he'll surface safe and sound having freed himself from his locked chains.

Shilo says he's sure his latest great escape will will go as smoothly as his stunt last April when he jumped off the Johnson Street bridge then wriggled out of a strait jacket underwater.

He says city police will check the locks before he jumps to make sure they're secure and he'll be examined first by a doctor.

The stunt will start about 11:45 a.m. slap in the middle of the harbor.

Dibble, only 36, toiled for the Vancouver Sun and other publications and later freelanced, working at one point as campaign photographer for Premier Bill Bennett.

Never known as a shrinking violet in a business where brashness is a byword, tales of Dibble's determination to get the best shot at all costs are legion.

Dibble, who slept with a police radio by his bed, was easily first on the scene in the wee, small hours. He was shooting away crazily when rival photographers and TV cameramen finally arrived.

As the contingent jostled Dibble for a good location, he turned and screamed: "B . . . . . off you guys, this is my fire!"

It looks as if the 120-year-old Four-Mile House that was once a stagecoach stop will soon take on a new career — this time as a furniture factory.

View Royal director Al Beasley says only five out of 30 persons at a recent public hearing opposed the plan. The site at View Royal Avenue and the Old Island Highway has to be rezoned from open space and conservation area to "neighborhood commercial."

Beasley says it is proposed to assemble ready-made white pine furniture from Eastern Canada and sell it at the Four-Mile House.

Since it was closed as a pub because of its hazardous location it has gone through several careers, including a short stint as a halfway house for native Indians on parole.

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Kewin, 24, a licensed practical nurse, lost her sight 18 months ago and has spent the summer researching job opportunities for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

When the studies are completed, Jones said the data will be compiled and a clearer picture will be available on what the blind may expect in the marketplace.

Benett's job is a natural, says Kewin.

"He has so many aides to do this and that," she says.

"Any political position is made easy because they have so many people to help them."

She says she was taken aback when Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm told her what he thinks it takes to be a politician.

"Any odd person . . . I nearly died when he said that," she recalls.

One of her interviews was with Victoria Ald. Robin Blencoe.

Kewin says he promised to make some noise about the fact that no blind person holds down a job at city hall.

She rates her interviews with Bennett, Vander Zalm and Blencoe as three of her most interesting.

She lists massage therapists and small engine repair work — such as lawnmowers — as two other jobs that could be done by the blind.

One job she rules out is that of a hair stylist because customers might feel uncomfortable if a blind stylist touched their faces in order to learn the contours.

When phoning for interviews, Kewin did not reveal she is blind.

It was only when she walked in with her seeing-eye dog Beau that people realized she could not see.

"People tend to stereotype blind persons," she says.

"They think of them as elderly, not very mobile, a little deaf and not very smart."

Her summer job, apart from developing her mechanical and social skills, has shown other people this is not so.

Kewin will attend the University of Victoria in September which she hopes will lead to a counselling job.

She was offered a job by a travel agency during her summer probe.

"They offered to give me the training but I didn't take it because I didn't feel I would enjoy that kind of work. I don't like sitting around an office."

She has no illusions that her job opportunity hunt will result in a variety of doors being opened to people like herself.

"They were all gung-ho on tape but had misgivings later."

Some of the jobs being carried out by blind people across Canada include those of accountants, computer programming, furniture salesmen, lawyers, public relations, stockbrokers, librarians, parole officers and physiotherapists.

In spite of this, Kewin says blind people often never reach their full potential because of society's attitude.

"Most blind people, about 99 per cent. can't read Braille. Young people, especially, think it's some kind of stigma to be blind. They don't want to use a white cane or learn Braille."

Naturalists want guaranteed access

Head off 'enclaves for the rich'

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

A Victoria naturalist Thursday asked the Islands Trust to prevent the Gulf Islands from becoming privileged enclaves for the rich.

The request was made at a public hearing on bylaws to control development on about 20 islands in waters off the Saanich Peninsula.

David Orton, vice-president of the V.I. branch of the B.C. Federation of Naturalists, said while the bylaws are a move in the right direction, they do not guarantee sufficient public access to beaches and private lands.

The Trust deferred its decision on a bylaw increasing the minimum size of lots from 10 to 20 acres after Jack Todd of Victoria, owner of Sidney Island, and Canadian Industries Ltd., owners of James Island, strongly objected to the restrictions.

But by a vote of two to one, trust members passed a bylaw limiting housing on a lot to one residence and a cottage.

Under previous regulations, there was little to prevent large subdivisions on small islands.

But the main issue at the meeting was the proposal for 20-acre minimum size lots.

It would mainly affect Sidney and James Islands.

Briefs submitted to the hearing were overwhelmingly in favor of the bylaw as well as a takeover of Sidney Island for a park.

The Victoria Outdoor Club, the Sidney Committee to Preserve Sidney Island as a park, the B.C. Chapter of the National and Provinial Parks Association of Canada, the V.I. branch of the B.C. Federation of Naturalists and other citizen groups and individuals urged the Trust to endorse the bylaw.

Todd said the original proposal to establish a subdivision around the perimeter of the island had been dropped.

But Todd said he did not want any restrictions to prevent him from allowing some homes on the island.

He said allowing one home for every 20 acres isn't practical.

He warned such a restriction would create land assessments so high that residence on the island would be restricted to the rich.

"I'm opposed to that," he said.

"I see a small cluster development on the island with homes within the means of most people."

Todd, who only recently tried to sell the island to the provincial government for park use, surpised many members of the audience by saying he is now against Sidney becoming a park.

He said vandalism and rowdyism on the island this summer changed his mind.

"Naturalists and people who like the outdoors are all right," he said.

"They know how to treat the land. But there are others who are not interested and litter and vandalism follow."

He claimed the government isn't interested in the island and could not look after it anyway.

But Orton took issue with Todd for his arguments against the park proposal.

"If a person has a farm and doesn't live there permanently or have somebody look after it the year round, he is inviting vandalism," he said.

"If a park has no warden you can expect trouble from time to time. These are not reasons for opposing parks."

He said the situation in the Gulf Islands, including Sidney, which features signs such as Beware of Dog, Private Property or Beware of the Bull, are designed solely to create a psychology of intimidation.

"The visitors are not welcomed. This often results in a confrontation and sometimes in vandalism," he claimed.

Orton said Swedish landowners have taken a different approach.

"Swedes have full access rights, including one night's camping on private property providing it doesn't hurt the land or farming," he said.

He said the question of public access to Gulf Islands, their beaches and the availabililty of parklands, is becoming crucial.

"If this question is not resolved, serious and ugly confrontations will increase between residents and groups of visitors," he warned.

David Fraser, representing CIL, said the company plans to continue to use the island mainly as a distribution centre for explosives.

But he said the firm is opposed to any bylaw which might restrict its development in future years.

"We are not planning to subdivide the island. But there may come a day when it is no longer economically viable to used it as a distribution centre. Then we would have to consider other options."

Heritage tag for old library

Aldermen today agreed to recommend to city council that the Carnegie library building on Yates be designated a heritage building.

They also recommended the city retain ownership of the building and lease the library section.

They agreed in principle that the net proceeds from these leases be turned over to an endowment fund which would be used to ensure public use of the library's annex.

The aldermen met as a council committee to discuss the future use of the old library when the Greater Victoria Public Library's central library moves into its new quarters, a provincial government building on Broughton.

Members of the committee will approach the other core municipalities to determine the future use of the library's annex, built in 1952.

Several organizations, including the Victoria Archives Society and the Victoria Inter-Cultural Association, have expressed interest in acquiring space in the building.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me if the origin of the name Quebec is Indian? R.B.

A. The genesis of the name is uncertain. Most historians claim it is of Indian origin. The Algonquin word was Quelbeco or Quelibec, designating part of an enclosure. But others say it is from a town in Normandy, France. It is called Brequebec. Another is called Cabec. But some people contend it all started when one of Jacques Cartier's French sailors saw the shape of the imposing Cape Diamond at Quebec. He exclaimed "quel bec", meaning what a beak.

Send your questions to Ask the Times, 2621 Douglas.

Today's Markets

Toronto

Twelve of the 14 stock groups gained, led by oil and gas. Pipelines and real estate and construction declined.

Trading resumed at mid-session in shares of Home Oil Ltd., Cygnus Corp. Ltd. and Consumers' Gas Co., which had been halted since Wednesday.

Consumers' Gas rose ½ to $23¾ while Home Oil A soared 14 to $80½ and Home Oil B 13½ to $80½. There were no sales by 2 p.m. in shares of Cygnus Corp. A or B, both of which last traded at $17.

Trading in shares of Reed Stenhouse Cos. Ltd. resumed at 1:30 p.m. following a halt at the opening.

Vancouver

Prices were mixed in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange, with volume to 10:54 a.m. at 3,077,398 shares. Declines outnumbered advances 116 to 101.

In the industrials, B.C. Resources Investment Corp. was up .07 to $6.20 on 64,420 shares, Grouse Mountain was unchanged at .75 on 7,500 shares, Webb and Knapp Ltd. was unchanged at $2 on 2,300 shares and Northway Gestalt was unchanged at $1.53 on 1,600 shares. Potter Distillers A was down .05 to $1.75 and Taro Industries was down .10 to $3.30.

On the resources and development board, Iona Silver Mines was up .16 to $1.19 on 139,200 shares, SNA Resources was down .03 to .47 on 96,000 shares, Redford Mines Inc. was down .11 to $1.90 on 90,500 shares and Iona Silver Mines Warrants was up .08 to .35 on 88,500 shares. Laredo Petro was unchanged at .90 and North South Resources was up .65 to $4.75.

New York

Stock prices were little changed in moderate trading today, in the face of a mix of economic news.

Oil stocks made substantial gains after President Carter announced he decontrolled the price of heavy oil, following through on a promise made in his energy speech a month ago. Heavy oi is thick tar-like product which is more expensive to produce than lighter oils.

Getty Oil jumped 3⅛ to $55⅝. Atlantic Richfield rose 1⅞ to $68⅛; Standard Oil of California gained 1⅝ to $51½.

Earlier in the day, the commerce department said the Gross National Product fell 2.4 per cent in the second quarter, less steeply than its earlier 3.3 per cent estimate. But the report also showed that corporate profits fell a steep 2.4 per cent in the same period.

London

The Financial Times index was down 5.4 to 474.3.

TOWN TALK

It started with the Times People column Aug. 3, reporting that Walter Glanze was including the word "nerd" in the new Scribner-Bantam English Dictionary.

"Nerd" is defined as a noun meaning a "gauche, tacky or uncool person; creep."

Heaven help the language when a dictionary must define anything with a word such as "uncool."

Don't let it be said that Times staffers blew their collective cool when J. April McKenna, 1140 Tattersall, wrote and suggested that "nerd" should be "nird".

"It is, in fact," wrote McKenna coolly, "a sigluma, derived from the phrase 'no intelligent response detected.' This phrase would, no doubt, serve as a succinct definition."

The matter might have ended there, with McKenna's definition definitely better than most others before us. But sigluma? Surely McKenna meant acronym, no?

Check UVic's estimable linguistics department. Several days later a harried linguist decides there is no such word, and McKenna really meant "sigla," the plural form of "siglum," and meaning: "Letters (esp. initials) or other characters used to denote words." Thanks to Webster's, Oxford and all the other dictionaries frantically pawed through.

SHILO

That man Lee Shilo is at it again and he even has police in on the act.

This time around, Victoria's modern-day answer to Harry Houdini will jump Saturday into the murky waters of the Inner Harbor shackled with a ball and chains.

All being well, he'll surface safe and sound having freed himself from his locked chains.

Shilo says he's sure his latest great escape will will go as smoothly as his stunt last April when he jumped off the Johnson Street bridge then wriggled out of a strait jacket underwater.

The stunt will start about 11:45 a.m. slap in the middle of the harbor.

But Canada has more than this to offer in aviation spectaculars, if you've seen a T-shirt worn by a tourist around town this week.

"Yukon Air Festival," it says, with a picture of large mosquito, proboscis poised. We knew the bugs up north were big, but that big? A new source of air transport in the north, perhaps.

Dibble, only 36, toiled for the Vancouver Sun and other publications and later freelanced, working at one point as campaign photographer for Premier Bill Bennett.

Never known as a shrinking violet in a business where brashness is a byword, tales of Dibble's determination to get the best shot at all costs are legion.

Dibble, who slept with a police radio by his bed, was easily first on the scene in the wee, small hours. He was shooting away crazily when rival photographers and TV cameramen finally arrived.

Corporal Ken Bridges has the down payment on a house and he has a few in mind.

He was a $10,000 instant winner Tuesday on his Loto Canada ticket.

He says he's only won enough before to pay for the tickets and he's hoping he will still win the really big money.

It looks as if the 120-year-old Four-Mile House that was once a stagecoach stop will soon take on a new career — this time as a furniture factory.

View Royal director Al Beasley says only five out of 30 persons at a recent public hearing opposed the plan. The site at View Royal Avenue and the Old Island Highway has to be rezoned from open space and conservation area to "neighborhood commercial."

Since it was closed as a pub because of its hazardous location it has gone through several careers, including a short stint as a halfway house for native Indians on parole.

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Kewin, 24, a licensed practical nurse, lost her sight 18 months ago and has spent the summer researching job opportunities for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

When the studies are completed, Jones said the data will be compiled and a clearer picture will be available on what the blind may expect in the marketplace.

"He has so many aides to do this and that," she says.

"Any political position is made easy because they have so many people to help them."

She says she was taken aback when Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm told her what he thinks it takes to be a politician.

"Any odd person . . . I nearly died when he said that," she recalls.

One of her interviews was with Victoria Ald. Robin Blencoe.

Kewin says he promised to make some noise about the fact that no blind person holds down a job at city hall.

She rates her interviews with Bennett, Vander Zalm and Blencoe as three of her most interesting.

She lists massage therapists and small engine repair work — such as lawnmowers — as two other jobs that could be done by the blind.

One job she rules out is that of a hair stylist because customers might feel uncomfortable if a blind stylist touched their faces in order to learn the contours.

When phoning for interviews, Kewin did not reveal she is blind.

It was only when she walked in with her seeing-eye dog Beau that people realized she could not see.

"People tend to stereotype blind persons," she says.

"They think of them as elderly, not very mobile, a little deaf and not very smart."

Her summer job, apart from developing her mechanical and social skills, has shown other people this is not so.

Kewin will attend the University of Victoria in September which she hopes will lead to a counselling job.

"They offered to give me the training but I didn't take it because I didn't feel I would enjoy that kind of work. I don't like sitting around an office."

She has no illusions that her job opportunity hunt will result in a variety of doors being opened to people like herself.

"They were all gung-ho on tape but had misgivings later."

Some of the jobs being carried out by blind people across Canada include those of accountants, computer programming, furniture salesmen, lawyers, public relations, stockbrokers, librarians, parole officers and physiotherapists.

In spite of this, Kewin says blind people often never reach their full potential because of society's attitude.

"Most blind people, about 99 per cent, can't read Braille. Young people, especially, think it's some kind of stigma to be blind. They don't want to use a white cane or learn Braille."

Naturalists want guaranteed access

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

A Victoria naturalist Thursday asked the Islands Trust to prevent the Gulf Islands from becoming privileged enclaves for the rich.

The request was made at a public hearing on bylaws to control development on about 20 islands in waters off the Saanich Peninsula.

David Orton, vice-president of the V.I. branch of the B.C. Federation of Naturalists, said while the bylaws are a move in the right direction, they do not guarantee sufficient public access to beaches and private lands.

The Trust deferred its decision on a bylaw increasing the minimum size of lots from 10 to 20 acres after Jack Todd of Victoria, owner of Sidney Island, and Canadian Industries Ltd., owners of James Island, strongly objected to the restrictions.

But by a vote of two to one, trust members passed a bylaw limiting housing on a lot to one residence and a cottage.

Under previous regulations, there was little to prevent large subdivisions on small islands.

But the main issue at the meeting was the proposal for 20-acre minimum size lots.

It would mainly affect Sidney and James Islands.

Briefs submitted to the hearing were overwhelmingly in favor of the bylaw as well as a takeover of Sidney Island for a park.

The Victoria Outdoor Club, the Sidney Committee to Preserve Sidney Island as a park, the B.C. Chapter of the National and Provinial Parks Association of Canada, the V.I. branch of the B.C. Federation of Naturalists and other citizen groups and individuals urged the Trust to endorse the bylaw.

Todd said the original proposal to establish a subdivision around the perimeter of the island had been dropped.

But Todd said he did not want any restrictions to prevent him from allowing some homes on the island.

He said allowing one home for every 20 acres isn't practical.

He warned such a restriction would create land assessments so high that residence on the island would be restricted to the rich.

"I'm opposed to that," he said.

"I see a small cluster development on the island with homes within the means of most people."

Todd, who only recently tried to sell the island to the provincial government for park use, surpised many members of the audience by saying he is now against Sidney becoming a park.

He said vandalism and rowdyism on the island this summer changed his mind.

"Naturalists and people who like the outdoors are all right," he said.

He claimed the government isn't interested in the island and could not look after it anyway.

But Orton took issue with Todd for his arguments against the park proposal.

"If a person has a farm and doesn't live there permanently or have somebody look after it the year round, he is inviting vandalism," he said.

"If a park has no warden you can expect trouble from time to time. These are not reasons for opposing parks."

He said the situation in the Gulf Islands, including Sidney, which features signs such as Beware of Dog, Private Property or Beware of the Bull, are designed solely to create a psychology of intimidation.

"The visitors are not welcomed. This often results in a confrontation and sometimes in vandalism," he claimed.

Orton said Swedish landowners have taken a different approach.

"Swedes have full access rights, including one night's camping on private property providing it doesn't hurt the land or farming," he said.

He said the question of public access to Gulf Islands, their beaches and the availabililty of parklands, is becoming crucial.

"If this question is not resolved, serious and ugly confrontations will increase between residents and groups of visitors," he warned.

David Fraser, representing CIL, said the company plans to continue to use the island mainly as a distribution centre for explosives.

But he said the firm is opposed to any bylaw which might restrict its development in future years.

"We are not planning to subdivide the island. But there may come a day when it is no longer economically viable to used it as a distribution centre. Then we would have to consider other options."

Heritage tag for old library

Aldermen today agreed to recommend to city council that the Carnegie library building on Yates be designated a heritage building.

They also recommended the city retain ownership of the building and lease the library section.

They agreed in principle that the net proceeds from these leases be turned over to an endowment fund which would be used to ensure public use of the library's annex.

The aldermen met as a council committee to discuss the future use of the old library when the Greater Victoria Public Library's central library moves into its new quarters, a provincial government building on Broughton.

Members of the committee will approach the other core municipalities to determine the future use of the library's annex, built in 1952.

Several organizations, including the Victoria Archives Society and the Victoria Inter-Cultural Association, have expressed interest in acquiring space in the building.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me if the origin of the name Quebec is Indian? R.B.

A. The genesis of the name is uncertain. Most historians claim it is of Indian origin. The Algonquin word was Quelbeco or Quelibec, designating part of an enclosure. But others say it is from a town in Normandy, France. It is called Brequebec. Another is called Cabec. But some people contend it all started when one of Jacques Cartier's French sailors saw the shape of the imposing Cape Diamond at Quebec. He exclaimed "quel bec", meaning what a beak.

Send your questions to Ask the Times, 2621 Douglas.

The life of Britain's First Lady of Striptease will be re-lived for Channel 9's audience Saturday, August 18, at 9:15 p.m. The One And Only Phyllis Dixey, starring Lesley-Anne Down, recreates Dixey's stage performances and shows the surprising twists of fate and sad decline of her later years. The special is a presentation of Channel 9's Summer to Remember, the station's program awareness and membership drive.

The film traces her sensational career and sensuous appeal — from her early struggles as a chorus girl in the 20's, when she caught the Big Producer's eye and gave the world her first "pose" on stage — to her war-time hey-day as the star at London's Whitehall Theatre.

PLAYBOY HUSBAND

The One And Only Phyllis Dixey stars Lesley-Anne Down as Phyllis, along with Chris Murney as Phyllis' playboy husband and American comedian Jack Tracey, and Michael Elphick as producer Wallace Parnell.

Phyllis totally captivated her audience, and made them see only what she wanted them to see. Her technique was as subtle as it was skilled. She gave only lightning glimpses leaving the rest to the lively imagination of the audience.

Her "art," Phyllis once stated, "gives the people magic." She teased and tantalized her way through the Thirties, slipped out of her feathers for the boys in battledress, and was one of London's post-war tourist attractions.

NUDITY ON STAGE

Her performances created a furor in those pre-permissive days. While her nudity on stage brought her many battles with the censors, Phyllis delighted troops of many nationalities as "the girl the Lord Chamberlain banned"

The film includes documentary accounts from relatives and friends who knew her well — both on-stage and off plus features some well-known songs including Poor Butterfly, She Didn't Say Yes, I've Got a Feeling You're Fooling, along with specially prepared material of the period.

MAJOR EVENT

The program was a major television event in London. "It said something about our way of life — both then and now" wrote one London TV critic. "We must always have someone who is prepared to push the doors of freedom and excitement open for us. But must we always forget the pioneers so quickly when we have walked through ourselves?"

Produced by Thames Television, The One And Only Phyllis Dixey, is distributed to public television stations by the Eastern and Central Educational Television Networks. Its presentation on Summer to Remember is made possible by Members of Nine.

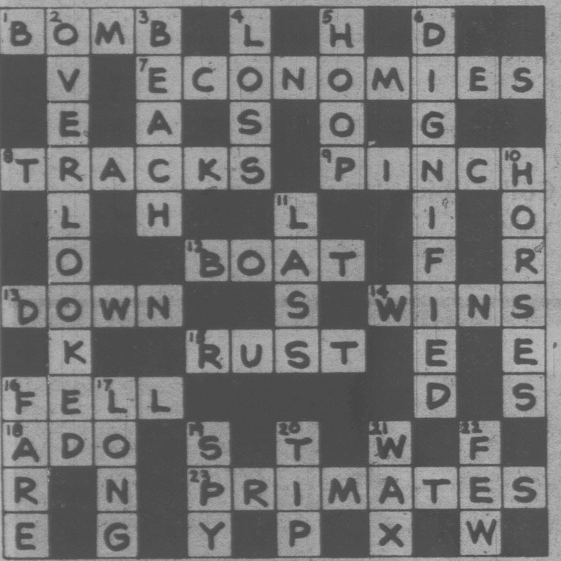
PAYOFF PUZZLE

Correct Answers to Last Week's Puzzle



CLUES ACROSS:

1. BOMB not comb or tomb. The clue most aptly refers to a BOMB, the sort of thing one usually associates with a degree of technicality or complexity in design (though there are, of course, the relatively simple ones). A comb is essentially simple, as a tomb also tends to be in its primary or general meaning. (Of a tomb, it might be more apt to say that it could be one of those that are of relatively elaborate design.)
7. ECONOMIES not economics. Economics actually is the management of finance; it isn't merely something there's need for in such matters.
8. TRACKS not trucks. Aptly, certain railroad TRACKS are more difficult to negotiate. No trucks themselves present real problems to competent drivers.
9. PINCH not punch. A PINCH is more or less painful as suggested, but a really hard punch may bring unconsciousness.
12. BOAT not moat. It is usual for a moat to contain water, and hence probably fish, without it being considered a suitable "kind" of moat. BOAT is more apt.
13. DOWN not mown. The belittling tone of the clue suits DOWN better. Mown is less apt to the context given, since proper gardeners keep the grass mown (while not merely "keeping it DOWN").
14. WINS not sins. As the clue hints, you or I (but not a religious ascetic) might like to WIN a lot. There is little reason why anybody should wish to emulate a sinner.
15. RUST not dust. The idea of removing "loose" or flakey RUST is quite apt, but there is no point in distinguishing loose dust (dust being loose anyway).
16. FELL not felt. As implied, if the star FELL ill, there would be an opportunity (which "might" be seized). A star who merely felt ill might well carry on.
23. PRIMATES not privates. As higher mammals, the PRIMATES, naturally, have "their rank or place in the order of things," in a broad sense. Privates simply have their rank (in the ordinary sense of military rank).

CLUES DOWN:

2. OVERLOOKED not overcooked. "Absent-mindedly," relating to a lapse of attention, links up more directly with OVERLOOKED.
3. BEACH not bench. The clue suits a place of solitude, such as a BEACH may well be. A bench implies probable close proximity of other people.
4. LOSS not moss. The tone of the clue hardly suits moss, which simply grows. A LOSS "may be growing all the time (the sort of thing said in cases of progressive change that is of concern).
10. HORSES not houses. From the initially stated idea of people owning carriages, that of HORSES follows more directly and naturally.
16. FARE not face. A boarder has some right to attractive FARE. The lady's face is none of his business.
17. LONG not lone. "LONG" adds suitable emphasis to the clue, but lone is superfluous.
22. FEW not new. Regarding old writers, the natural association is with a tendency to be wordy (as in the case of FEW) rather than with a failure to use new words.

TOM NEILSEN, is Floyd Parker in Guiding Light. He spent five years developing his talent while looking for work. Jane White is Tante Helen, the spiritual medium, on Search for Tomorrow.

Nielsen rates high in Light

Ask 24-year-old Tom Nielsen, who has landed the role of Floyd Parker on the top-rated soap Guiding Light. Tom spent five grinding years developing his talent while trying to get work as an actor.

A friend talked Tom out of it, however, and was able to set up an interview for him with Anna Strasberg, wife of the famous drama instructor, Lee Strasberg. She immediately recognized his potential and suggested that Tom study with her husband. Through the Lee Strasberg Theater Institute, Tom was able to get an agent, something which isn't as easy as it sounds. The audition for Guidling Light soon followed.

"I felt really flattered when the producers picked me," recalls Tom. "There were so many different types up for the role."

Tom's Floyd Parker is an honest, fun-loving, wise-cracking jack-of-all trades, not unlike Tom himself.

"I want to do it all, TV, films, stage," says Tom, who is also a singer-songwriter of soft rock music.

In addition to his soap role, Tom is currently involved in an upcoming new musical, Sweet William. It's a musical about William Shakespeare, and there will be a special showcase performance next month to get backing.

Meantime, Tom is content to glow in the "Guiding Light" success he worked so hard to achieve.

CHANNEL CHATTER: Search for Tomorrow is currently using the services of an unusual technical advisor. He's spiritualist Alex Murray and he's coaching Jane White in her portrayal of a spiritual medium, Tante Helene, who has been brought in to help with Liza's kidnapping. Murray is instructing both cast and crew in the psychic domain. Who knows, maybe during their lunch break they can conjure up old Tony Vincente.

Search for Tomorrow's executive producer Mary-Ellis Bunim is a lady with a lot of ambition. She started with CBS as a secretary and has been working her way through the production ranks ever since. On the personal side, Mary is expecting her first child in November, and her obstetrician happens to be a specialist with a name not unfamiliar to those who have given birth to projects on TV — Dr. Fred Silverman.

Search fans who have caught a recent public service TV spot in which Betsy Ross delivers a postal announcement have probably recognized Marie Cheatham (Stephanie Wyatt on Search for Tomorrow) playing the historic flag-maker. Marie, who is a Jacqueline-of-all-trades, happens to be a very good seamstress herself.

PLOT PORTENTS: Neil is a new stockholder in Anderson Manufacturing on Days of Our Lives, but Bob Anderson ought to be able to outsmart the man. After taking a beating from Neil in the love department, Phyllis is having a fling with Alex. And Doug may be low because of Julie, but he has the sense to be suspicious of Stephen.

Apparently Jill has a reprieve with Stuart Brooks on The Young and the Restless, but she is destined to foul up at any moment. That means her mother Liz must be patient, waiting for Stuart, a man who is clearly too mealy-mouthed for the grand lady.

PREVUE PAYOFF PUZZLE is the intriguing word puzzle game the whole family will enjoy and have an opportunity to win a big cash award every week! THIS CROSSWORD is not a draw. It tests your knowledge of words and pays off for EVERY correct solution. All you have to do is complete each of the words in a criss-cross format. Clues are provided . . . even a work list which has all the correct answers, plus some you'll have to eliminate. But there are no trick words or guessing . . . careful thought will make you a winner! So start and play today!

PLEASE NOTE: EACH ENTRY MUST BE IN A SEPARATE ENVELOPE

CONTEST RULES

1. Solve the Prevue Payoff Puzzle by filling in the missing letters to make the words that you think best fit the clues. To do this read each clue carefully.

2. Check the word list. It has all the correct answers plus some you will have to eliminate.

3. You need not be a subscriber to this newspaper in order to enter. You may submit as many entries as you wish on the entry blank printed in this newspaper or exact-sized, clear, hand-drawn facsimiles of the printed entry blank. NO MECHANICALLY PRODUCED, PRINTED, MIMEOGRAPHED, etc. copies of the entry blank will be accepted. Each entry must contain the contestant's name, address and phone number or it will not be accepted.

4. Anyone is eligible to enter this contest except employees (and members of their families) of Victoria Press Ltd.

5. All entries MUST be mailed and bear a postmark. The paper is not responsible for entries lost or delayed in the mail. Entries for each week's contest not received for judging by 12 noon the following Wednesday are not eligible.

6. To qualify you must write your answer to one of the clues on the outside of the envelope. See coupon for instructions.

7. Prevue will award the current prize to the contestant who sends in an all correct solution. If more than one all correct solution is received the prize money will be shared equally. If no all correct solution is received, $50 will be added to the following week's prize.

8. There is only one correct solution to each puzzle and only the correct answer can win. The decision of the judges is final and all contestants agree to abide by the judges decision. All entries become the property of Prevue. Only one prize will be awarded to a family unit.

9. Everyone has the same opportunity to win for EVERY QUALIFIED ENTRY WILL BE CHECKED and the winner announced. No claiming is necessary.

10. Entries must be mailed to Prevue Payoff Puzzle, Victoria Press Ltd., Box 300, Victoria, B.C. V8W 2N4. One entry per envelope.

MIKE'S SHOW — I used to watch "The Mike Douglas Show" when he was in Philadelphia. I thught he was going to resume the show right away when he moved to California.

What happened? Is he doing his show and our station is not carrying him? He used to be on at such a good hour. — A. D., Warren, Ohio.

"The Mike Douglas Show," now taped in Hollywood, is alive and well and being aired daily in most areas of the United States. The talk show is syndicated and is purchased by local television stations instead of by the major networks for distribution and showing on their network-owned stations.

I suggest you check your local listings to see if the show has been moved to a different time period or even to a different local station in your area. If not, I suggest you write to your local station asking it to bring back the show.

BRENNAN — When did actor Walter Brennan die and at what age? — K.D., Eugene, Mo.

HARDY BOYS — Why would they want to cancel "The Hardy Boys?" I am 68 and I think it is one of the best shown on television. — E.J., San Benito, Texas.

I've received many letters concerning ABC's cancellation of "The Hardy Boys." The weekly show went under because of poor ratings. It may have been a good program but very few Nielsen viewers watched, if the ratings are to be believed.

WHAT NATIONALITY — Could you tell me some information on Jan-Michael Vincent such as birthdate and nationality? — J.F., Cornwall, N.Y.

Jan-Michael Vincent was born on July 15 in Denver, Colo. (No year of birth was provided in his biography.) He was educated in Ventura, Calif. He was "discovered" by actor-director Robert Conrad for the movie "Los Bandidos."

Although he played major roles in such television series as "Lassie," "Bonanza" and "The Survivors," Vincent won national attention and crtical acclaim for his role as the pacifist draftee in the Emmy Award-winning television movie, "Tribes."

PRESERVE IMAGE — Please help me preserve an image. That's not Donny and Marie Osmond hawking Hawaiian Punch on those television commercials? Please say it's not. — C.O., Cornwall, N.Y.

Sorry, but the two in the commercials aired at this end of the country are Donny and Marie.

DISPUTE — Settle a dispute. A neighbor said actor Richard Jordan once played the role of Tom Hughes in the daytime soap opera "As the World Turns." I said no way.

Because we are both devoted fans of the show, we turn to you for an answer, which will cost one of us a dinner. — S.R., and J.W., Victoria, British Columbia, Canada.

Since the soaper premiered on CBS in 1956, four people have played the role of Tom Hughes, none of them being Richard Jordan. The four are Peter Link, Peter Galman, Paul O'Keefe and David Colson.

WHOSE VOICE — Is there any way of finding out who does the singing in those Lowenbrau beer commercials? — E.P., Eldon, Mo.

IMPRESSED — Had the opportunity to watch actor William Devane in a special movie on television the other day and I was most impressed with his acting abilities. What's his background like? — P.B., Oak Creek, Wisc.

A native of Albany, N.Y., Devane entered the acting profession in his teenage years with a little theatre group after concluding he had a "natural bent" for acting. In 1962, after a year in college and three with the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, he joined the New York Shakespeare Festival, where he has maintained a very long association. His first Broadway role, which also was his first major non-Shakespearean role, was in "MacBird," a highly-acclaimed political satire on President Johnson, his wife Lady Bird and the 1960s. He followed this up with the starring role in 1971 of the Broadway stage revival of "One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest."

In 1974, Devane received national television recognition for his strong portrayal of President John F. Kennedy in "Missiles of October." He also played John Henry Falk in the television special "Fear on Trial."

Devane says he prefers stage and film work over television because he can get more out of a character. This explains his rare appearances on television because he wants to perform "quality acting." Devance and his wife, Eugenie, have two sons, Joseph and Jacob. They live in San Fernando Valley, just north of Los Angeles.

AGE OLD QUESTION — How old is the boy who plays Arnold on "Diff'rent Strokes"? My sister and I have a bet on this. Also, what is his address? — Kristen Kurk, Bloomington, Ind.

Gary Coleman is 10 years old, although he appears much younger because of his height, the result of kidney disease which has stunted his growth. You can write to him at NBC-TV, Burbank, CA.

Yes, she has been swept off her feet by a younger man

By NANCY ANDERSON

HOLLYWOOD — "Into each life a little trash must fall," Susan Flannery said, airily supporting the theory that every older woman deserves at least one younger man.

"Of course, I've been swept off my feet by a younger man," she continued merrily without going into details.

"I belive in the double standard," Flannery declared, "so long as it works both ways.

"I believe that it's all right for an older man to become involved with a young girl, so why not an older woman and a younger man?

The subject was on her mind not because of anything in her private life at present, but because she was seen May 8 over CBS-TV in "Anatomy of a Seduction," playing a woman smitten with her best friend's son.

"No, this won't go into a series," she said. "We can't have seduction-of-the-week.

"I think the story has great poignancy."

While Susan didn't object to playing a so-called "older woman" in "Anatomy of a Seduction," she wouldn't consider "playing a Michael Learned type role."

For a guy who claims to be accident prone Donald Sutherland is certanly pushing his luck in "Bear Island," a new movie in which he's required to do underwater diving, ski, manage a variety of boats, engage in a fistfight and cut other dangerous capers.

He's so uncoordinated by nature, Sutherland wryly tells, that as a kid he was turned down by every type of athletic team and was even rejected by the Sea Cadets' band.

"I joined the Sea Cadets so that I could be their bass drumplayer," Sutherland reminisces. "I thought they would be sure to let me do it, because I was the biggest, but they gave it to some little guy.

"During the period I spent working with Jane Fonda" Sutherland continues, "whenever I hadn't turned up for a meeting, or whenever the phone would ring, Jane would shout, 'What's happend to him? What's happened to him now?'

"I never broke anything, but I regularly cut my forehead walking into doors."

After "M-A-S-H," Sutherland's career became somewhat becalmed, but he's a hot item again thanks to "Invasion of the Body Snatchers," "The Great Train Robbery" and "Animal House," in which he played a cameo role.

"M-A-S-H," he remembers, was a picture he was urged not to do.

"I went to the United States," the Canadian actor says, "after a small role in 'The Dirty Dozen' and stuck around while a lot of people, like 14 directors and a bunch of actors, turned 'M-A-S-H' down. Everybody told me not to do it, that it would ruin me.

"Then Bob Altman, who'd done nothing but 'Whirlybirds' and one film, got it together, and we made it in five weeks in Malibu Canyon.

"I went straight off to Yugoslavia to do 'Kelly's Heroes' and got spinal meningitis. I was dying, and my second wife made my funeral arrangements!

"It started out as a very bad year, but it ended up a terrific one, because I didn't die, and Elliott Gould invited me to New York, a place I'd never been before.

"He took me downtown and it was wonderful. I couldn't believe it. People would come up to me on the street and kiss me.

"I'd say, 'I don't know you,' and they'd say, 'No, but we saw "M-A-S-H," and it was wonderful.'

"Suddenly I was well known.

"I hated making 'M-A-S-H.' I thought it was going to be a disaster, and Elliott and I didn't understand Bob Altman at all.

"He's probably one of America's greatest amateur directors."

All-New Python

Monty Python once again when the wild and zany comedians reunite on The Pythons, premiering on Channel 9 Thursday, August 23 at 10:10 p.m. The hour-long special is part of Summer to Remember, the station's program awareness and membership drive.

The location is the vast Tunisian desert. The occasion that brings Monty Python together again is the filming of their latest movie, "The Life of Brian" — a "biblical epic.". The year is AD 33 and members of the Peoples Front of Judea — none other than the Monty Python zanies portraying multiple roles — are planning to overthrow the Roman Empire.

John Hearn's collectibles

I was talking the other day with Connie Tucker of the Upstairs Gallery in Fonthill, where she is adding a nice touch to the display of collectibles by the simple process of framing them. Treasures should be seen and enjoyed but all too often we have to manipulate the conversation to provide an excuse to bring out the old Nazi daggers or the personal letter from Albert Einstein. Valuables like that should not be left lying around, yet it is nice to show them off. Any first class framer will make a velvet lined, boxed, glassed-in frame appropriate to the object and your Victoria Cross, Granpa's railway watch, the pre-Columbian terra cotta miniatures or the plaster cast of Pierre Trudeau's footprint can safely bask in the light of admiration they so richly deserve.

Display frames are not inexpensive but they can enrich the family treasures — and can make a flattering gift for someone else's valuables.

We also talked about clocks and their relative values — with me arguing that they do not have relative values. The examples were a mid-18th century French longcase and an early 19th century reconditioned Seth Thomas wall clock. The long case was bought for the bargain price of $500. It did not go. The Seth Thomas was rescued from a fire and rebuilt. It does go.

The old French clock would have been handmade in its entirety — cabinet, works and all. Any replacement parts would also have to be handmade. Only a superbly good clock man could do the job and he might easily charge $1,000 and take a year to do it — depending on the nature of the defects. As far as current prices are concerned it would probably still be a bargain even after paying for the repairs and would appeal to the connoisseur collector.

But as an efficient timepiece it would never come close to the Seth Thomas which was factory made about 75 years later and remains a masterpiece of factory craftsmanship. With reasonable care it should give excellent service for several hundred more years.

What then are the relative values? One would fetch ten times as much as the other — but not to the same person. The collector who lusts after the French longcase to the tune of several thousand dollars would curl a distainful lip at the Seth Thomas while enthusiasts for the golden age of Connecticut factory craftsmanship, before the industrial revolution ran amuck, would not give you floor space for the old Grandpere.

The question, "what's it worth" has always to be qualified by "to whom?"

Driving around the countryside is ten times more interesting if you are looking for something. Book lovers cannot pass an old book store, insulator collectors are always on the lookout for disused spur lines, bird lovers find joy everywhere.

Once upon a time every little town had its own independent dairy with its name embossed on its own bottles. Very few of them are left, either the bottles or the diaries. But the old timers remember where they are. They will tell you who owned them and how often they changed hands and each name is part of Canada's history and therefore to be treasured. Somewhere down in the basement of the original building there may still be an old bottle or two and if people realize that you are genuinely interested they will be glad to help. If they suspect you are dealers their imaginations will run to thousands of dollars for something which should never trade for more than about $5.

And even if you don't find any bottles on that trip you will have stopped and talked with people and made the visit far more memorable than a fast hamburger at the local franchise.

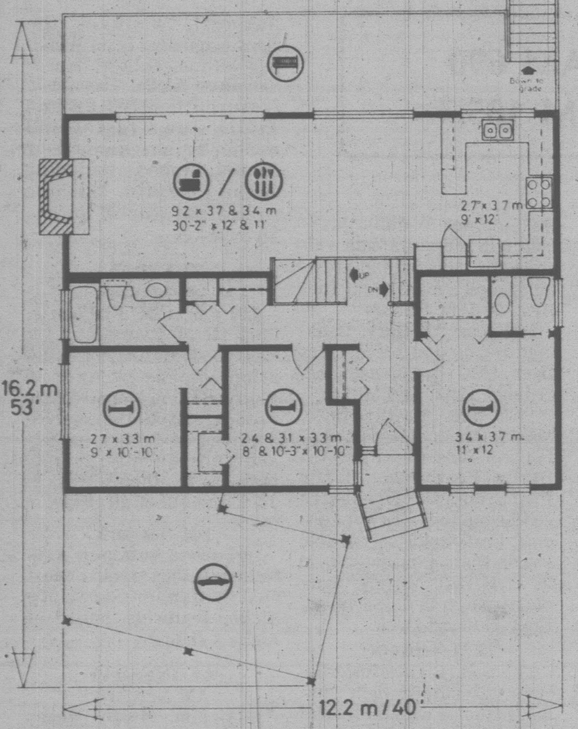
Home of the week



PLAN Nº 75-1187

Rear view with lots of space

Here's a charmingly different three-bedroom design of the rear view type which derives optimum living area from its compact floor space. The design would perfectly suit a narrow to medium frontage building lot, and accommodate comfortably the medium-size family.

The vertical channel siding, shake roof and long vertical window areas of the exterior increases the upward thrust of the design and creates an appearance of greater dimension. The angled carport roof overhang and angled entrance stairway underscores the massy appearance and lends a delightfully unique flavor to the design.

The weather-protected entry leads into a compact reception foyer, past the guest closet storage to the left, and directly forward and up six risers to the long rectangular family room/dinette combination. The family room features a large masonry fireplace and wide sliding glass doors, providing access to the full-width rear balcony.

The well-planned, extended U-shape kitchen has an excellent work triangle and ample closet storage. The kitchen divides from the dinette via serving counter and pass-through, which could be easily modified to provide for a small snack bar counter for casual family meals.

The large master bedroom has large deep closet storage and a two-piece ensuite bath.

Both secondary bedrooms have ample closet storage and easy access to the central bath and linen storage area.

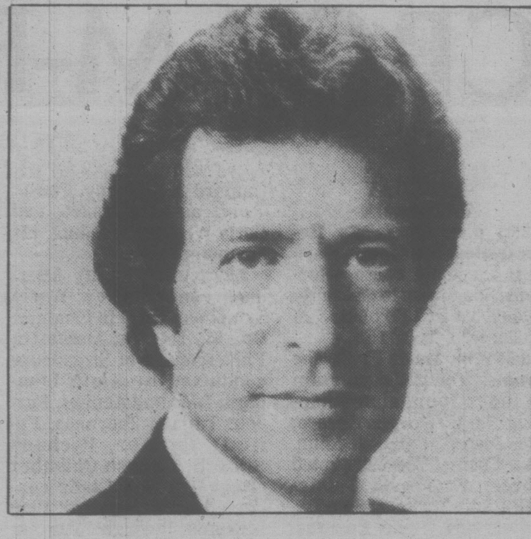
A full basement affords abundant space for future development of recreational facilities or additional bedrooms, should they be required by the expanding family. The single carport of the design could easily be completely enclosed for those who prefer the security of a closed garage.

Plans for design No. 75-1187 may be purchased either by the single set, at a cost of $70.00 for the first set and $10.00 for each additional set, or by the package. A five-set plan package, including the first set, is economically priced at $100 and an eight-set package, also including the first set, is only $125.

Whichever method you choose, please include $5 for postage and handling. B.C. residents add 4 per cent sales tax.

Send for the current edition of Select Home Designs magazine, Series 40, featuring imaginative decorating and home improvement ideas, plus 320 quality home plans of every type. Available for $2.75 ($2 plus .75 cents postage and handling).

To order any of these items please send cheque or money order payable to the Home of the Week. Address to: Home of the Week, c/o Victoria Press, 382 West Broadway, Vancouver, B.C. V5Y 1R2.



Al Ittleson, producer of ABC's 20/20

Al nurses show back to health

By Dan Lewis

Al Ittleson grew up in broadcast journalism. He worked his way through college as a news writer for a radio station and from there, went into television, specifically at ABC in New York.

He started when the news room was a patchwork, and the local and network news each were only 15-minute shows. And in both instances, ABC was the doormat.

Ittleson acquired the reputation of a newsroom doctor. He helped ABC's local news overcome many of its ailments as he rose to news director, then producer. He was an integral part of the team that developed "Eyewitness News," and then he rose to the network level, where he created, as vice president ABC's Special Service, a new function designed to help affiliates around the country improve their local news programs.

When ABC's effort to create the prime-time news magazine "20/20" suffered early pains, Ittleson was summoned for diagnosis and treatment. "20/20" is now his permanent patient. Ittleson recently was named executive producer of the show, and was given assurances that it will remain on the schedule, at least through the end of the year, as a weekly show.

In that respect, the network programmers have kept their word. The show becomes a weekly fixture starting May 31 on Thursday nights.

This ABC prime-time news magazine got off to a poor start. The very first show was roundly criticized because the very first segment, which dealt with training of racing greyhounds, showed the hounds devouring rabbits used as "leaders" in races. It was a grizzly sight, and had immediate repercussions at the network.

The show's first executive producer, Robert Shanks, the man who rebuilt "Good Morning, America" into a success, was quickly relegated to a subordinate role on "20/20." He subsequently departed. The first co-hosts departed after only one show, and Hugh Downs was rushed in to replace them.

Ittleson came on this past winter and started to apply his surgical skills in redrafting the attitude and intent of the show. He says he has the solid backing of ABC Television president Fred Pierce.

His philosophy is that a news magazine should be informational, revealing, and appealing to the viewers.

He has strong views about where television journalism has gone, and he is critically harsh when discussing some areas. He contends that TV news organizations are basing their judgments on "their own particular values."

Ittleson claims that there is "an elite gang of journalists today who never cared about what the viewer cares about.

"If the newsroom liked it, they (the journalists) liked it. What they did was judged on whether their own colleagues liked it, not the people. There have been few caring journalists since the days of Ed Murrow. He cared."

Ittleson says he wants "20/20" to be topical, that he will be making changes virtually until air time. The base of the show will continue to be live from the studio, and not pre-taped, except for the developed stories.

Medicine from a Marxist point of view

"The style of medical practice to which we were exposed was the one which prevailed in the teaching hospital: physicians performing life-saving interventions in medical emergencies; investigators solving complicated diagnostic problems; practitioners ordering countless tests in the hope of uncovering the unexpected (but always hoped-for) Big Diagnosis; and specialists performing recitals of every aspect of a disease and of every contingency that might arise, hardly ever referring to a book. We learned to be turned on to the exotic disease rather than to the average patient."

The writer is Martin Shapiro, MD, a specialist in internal medicine with degrees from McGill and UCLA. Evidently his medical education turned Shapiro on to more than exotic diseases; he has also received a master's degree in public health and is currently working on a doctorate in history at UCLA. With such a background it's not surprising that he's managed to pack so much into the book from which the quotation above was taken: Getting Doctored, subtitled "Critical Reflections on Becoming a Physician."

According to Dr. Shapiro, medical education in North America today is in urgent need of reform. Medical students suffer from extreme competition, fatigue, de-personalization and alienation; curricula tend to reflect, not a balanced approach to the various medical disciplines, but "the power structure of the medical school"; hospitals are run on absurdly authoritarian lines, and reliance on technology and specialization has reached the point where studies have shown that patients afflicted with uncomplicated heart attacks are better off recovering at home.

Of these ills, Shapiro singles out "alienation" as the most siginificant. He refers to alienation as defined by Karl Marx, which "can only be understood in relation to its opposite: 'unalienation' . . . Marx's ideal of unalienation is a person who 'as a productive social being . . . transforms the world around him in a specific way, leaving his mark on it."

Contrary to the expectations of the majority of health care workers, says Shapiro, "Medical work allows for little human individuality in the execution of the tasks at hand, much less provides workers with an opportunity to transform the world into a place to contemplate, understand and develop themselves. Instead, health workers are transformed by their work into a shell of their former selves. The work lowers their horizons and narrows their potentialities. Even those who recognize that they are unfulfilled lose the sense of their human possibilities."

Earlier critics of North America's medical establishment have cited either medical schools or doctors themselves as the prinicpal villains. Even Ivan Illich, in Medical Nemesis, cites the "oppressive influence" of medicine as the cause of many social problems, writes Shapiro. Not so, he continues. Medical problems are "palpably linked to problems in society as a whole," but the cure is a "general transformation" of our capitalist social and economic order. Only then will medicine be able to "transcend" its alienation and become the humanistic, fulfilling profession it should ideally be.

Shapiro's experience, intelligence and education make him a formidable challenger. Getting Doctored, though it contains notes, references and frequent esoteric allusions to the writings of various abstract thinkers, is also anecdotal and lively enough to appeal to the lay reader, who may find it alarmingly relevant. A few quotations, by the way of example:

". . . There is no doubt in my mind that patient care sometimes suffered when my colleagues and I were functioning well below our potential because of exhaustion."

"The rare instances in which the work of general practitioners was referred to in the classroom were occasions for deriding their error in diagnosis and therapy."

"The training received by the students or house officers, combined with any pre-existing sexual prejudice, often results in lower standards of health care for women than for men."

"Almost as much is now spent each year on drug promotion as on all medical education!"

Many readers will find Shapiro's conclusions debatable, however, because of their Marxist emphasis. This prevents him from seeing improvements from within his profession as anything but band-aid solutions. But such examples as the activism of B.C. doctors against nuclear power, and the admissions policy of McMaster Medical School, which actually considers the personalities of its applicants as well as their academic achievements, suggest reasonable grounds for hope. To imply, as Shapiro does, that medicine is not responsible for its own ills because our social order has foisted them upon it, seems a clear case of the pot calling the kettle black.

Of things that go bump in the night

By ANTHONY JENKINS

There's an indigenous Gothic streak in the contemporary American novel which the literary critic, Leslie Fiedler, explains as the inherited pull of the dark, untamed forest that once surrounded the continent's shaky civilization. The devil and his ministers still tend to lurk just beyond the back door.

Peter Straub's Ghost Story belongs to that tradition. Its impact stems from its ingenious and sophisticated construction, but it is more than a piece of lurid entertainment. The book combines the goulishness of a novel like The Exorcist with the carefully documented reality of a Rosemary's Baby.

Where British Gothic is characteristically polite, if elaborately romantic escapism, in America the Gothic has been linked to the cross-cutting techniques of the cinema. Its supple convolutions thread their way into the recesses of the subconscious.

That technique accounts for the disturbing grip of Ghost Story. Straub begins with a prologue which at first seems to have no connection with the ensuing narrative. Is that scene a flash forwards or backwards? Who are the fatigued driver and his young passenger, and why is the atmosphere so sinister? The effect of that cinematic prelude is to make the reader as uneasy as the book's main characters; the scene stays in the back of our minds as we, too, try to make the mystery fit into place. And, of course, that puzzle is solved only in the last chapter.

The novel takes place in upstate New York. The four elderly members of the Chowder Society meet regularly in each other's houses. To take their minds off the recent death of one of their members, someone has asked "what's the worst thing you've ever done?", and they have gone on like that ever since. The confessions, whose details we only hear of much later, have the effect of a ghost story; each of the members has terrifying dreams in which his friends are dead. Heavy steps on the stairs, deep breathing at the door, are surely only the imaginings of senility or the colored suggestions that grow out of the Society's meetings.

But then odd things begin happening which cannot be presumed to come from the elderly gentlemen's disturbed inventions. The winter is the worst for years; livestock in the surrounding farms has been vilely mutilated; there is a large number of inexplicable deaths in the neighbourhood. To reveal any more of the plot would destroy the effect of the skilful interweaving and unabashed virtuosity of the narrative.

But what distinguishes the novel from even the best of its kind is the way Straub builds a momentum out of the cleverly disguised hints behind the dialogue and balances the most incredible events against an unusually real-seeming background. Milburn and its environs has a telling solidity.

* * *

Lili Palmer's The Red Raven also derives most of its effect from its narrative structure. In essence her novel is a fairly ordinary if, in places, delicately perceived, love story. It is made to seem more complicated by the way the story unfolds in flashbacks as "L", now an actress of note, unfurls the details of a remembered love affair as she sits for a portrait painter.

The enigma in both the lives of "L" and the painter she sits for is Anabel, a lady of seemingly impeccable social means and the Red Raven of the book's title. During the course of "L's" memory-journey, the reader sees how little she has known about the true characters of her lover, Jerome, his valetudinarian father and their relationship with Anabel. The narrative also uncovers the tensions and ambiguities that drive Anabel and cause her to betray her family and friends.

Lili Palmer is, of course, herself a well-known actress, yet "L" does not seem all that convincing as a character. More acted upon than acting, she remains somewhat shadowy and the reader must take on trust the fact that she is on the verge of a brilliant stage career.

Much more convincingly drawn is the world in which the characters move: smart London flats, private picture galleries, spur-of-the-moment jaunts to the South of France or Hollywood. For me, the most interesting part of the book was an evocative summer holiday in the French countryside. Palmer captures the lazy rhythms of the Southern vineyard, its light and warmth, against which she plays the tensions of disintegrating friendships and loves.

Apart from that, The Red Raven strikes me as a trifle contrived, in the orderly way in which the past memories unroll: a skilful miniature, but ultimately rather one-dimensional.

Lili Palmer . . . love affair remembered

'We were doing what had to be done'

By JULIAN REID

Le Chambon-sur-Lignon is a small and superficially undistinguished village in the mountains of southern France. It is inhabited by some 3,000 persons, nearly all Protestants of Huguenot descent. By conventional standards, they are not sophisticated people: their lives, on the whole, are circumscribed and provincial, and they dwell somewhere apart from the furors of the contemporary world at large.

And yet, during the four years when France labored under Nazi domination, its inhabitants elevated Le Chambon into an enduring monument to human courage and compassion. Inspired by their beloved pastor, Andre Trocme, they consecrated their village as a "City of Refuge," as appointed in the Book of Deuteronomy — a community whose populace is unanimously committed to the sometimes perilous task of providing sanctuary for every harried refugee who comes seeking it.

Jews sheltered

In the course of the war, some 2,500 Jews, along with several hundred other fugitives from Nazidom, found shelter and comfort among the selfless Chambonnais. Some — mostly children — were housed and protected, at considerable risk to their benefactors, for periods of months or even years. But for most, Le Chambon was merely another station on the clandestine "underground railroad" which bore them to hard-won liberty in the neutral territory of nearby Switzerland.

Even so, the village was not forgotten by them. In 1972, Pastor Trocme, "the soul of Le Chambon" as he has been aptly characterized, was posthumously honored by the state of Israel with its hallowed Medal of Righteousness. It was a belated tribute to an unspectacular yet profoundly significant chapter in the far-flung epic of the Second World War.

"In remembrance resides the secret of redemption," observed the founder of Hasidism, the legendary Baal Shem-Tov. And it is in this spirit that Philip Hallie has set about chronicling the little-known saga of Le Chambon.

Lest Innocent Blood Be Shed is that all-too-rare event — a book whose contents are innately ennobling. And although the author's treatment of them falls somewhat short of the high sublimity that they properly demand, we should nevertheless be thankful to him for making the attempt. For in this era of lazy-minded cynicism and self-indulgent despair, the message he has to convey is as timely as it is timeless — an opportune reminder that, even in the face of the most subtly degrading of tyrannies, an uncompromising conscience can indeed prevail.

It was out of despair, Hallie informs us, that he was first drawn to Le Chambon. A professor of philosophy at Connecticutt's Wesleyan University, he is himself a Jew by descent, as well as both student and teacher of Ethics. As such, his particular professional concern was what he calls "evil incarnate," in the form of wanton cruelty and merciless persecution of the innocent — a topic that drew him, inevitably, to the study of Nazism and the innumerable crimes against humanity perpetrated in its name.

Wandering amidst this wilderness of vicariously-experienced horrors, Hallie happened upon an account of the miracle of Le Chambon — and was moved by it to a purgative outburst of tears. Hitherto his spirit had been virtually anesthetized by this seemingly endless catalogue of enormities. But here, at last, he found firm grounds for hope: an inspiring demonstration that, for all the evils they are capable of perpetrating, men and women nevertheless retain within themselves the capacity for individual and collective redemption through the healing strength of moral commitment.

And so, for him, the research and writing of this book became a pilgrimage — the spiritual odyssey of a sensitive and mortally anguished intellectual desperately yearning for the redemption of his tarnished species. Inevitably, this quality of pilgrimage permeates his account. Lest Innocent Blood Be Shed is no more concerned with the saga of Le Chambon than it is with Hallie's own responses to it, the responses of a middle-aged academic struggling to encompass sheer elemental humanity within the abstract framework of his own intellectual preoccupations.

Personal drama

And despite all protestations to the contrary, the book tends to focus on the psychological drama of Andre Trocme, himself an intellectual of sorts and hence a figure with whom Hallie can more or less identify, to the virtual exclusion of the more commonplace citizens of Le Chambon, who were by and large the actual agents of the community's achievements. Moreover, unlike the wiser Trocme, Hallie again and again permits himself to be lured in the snare of abstract philosophizing about the events he has set out to describe. Indeed, he seems virtually obsessed with the compulsion to formulate an existentialistic "life-and-death ethics," as he terms it, by which the altruism of the Chambonnais can be rationalized and thus rendered intellectually explicable.

Yet, by his own testimony, the villagers themselves were continually reminding him that all such intellectualizations must inevitably miss the point. "How can you call us 'good'?" he sums up their typical response to his interrogations. "We were doing what had to be done. Who else could help them? And what has all this to do with goodness? Things had to be done, that's all, and we happened to be there to do them. You must understand that it was the most natural thing in the world to help these people."

Try as he will, however, Hallie seems constitutionally incapable of comprehending that the actual practice of what he calls "goodness" comes as simply and as naturally as breathing — and that abstract philosophizing is of no more relevance here than a treatise on respiration is to a newborn baby. Ideally, he should have been content to chronicle the tale he has to tell in as plain and unadorned a fashion as possible, as John Hersey did in his classic Hiroshima. But as things stand, the book is seriously weakened by the way the author's well-meaning intellect incessantly interposes itself between the reader and the subject matter.

No divisions

Still, despite its failings, Lest Innocent Blood Be Shed retains the power to move and enrich us — for, even when merely glimpsed through a glass darkly, the drama of Le Chambon remains humanely sublime.

It is good to be reminded once again of the fundamental credo which guided Andre Trocme and his flock — the principle that "there are no important divisions between human beings, such as 'Jew' and 'non-Jew.' " Instead, as Hallie puts it, "the main distinction among people is between those who believe that those in need are as precious as they themselves are, and those who do not believe this." And the enduring achievement of the Chambonnais came when, in the face of a dehumanizing authority, they found the collective courage not simply to enlist themselves self-righteously in the ranks of the believers, but to stake their private well-being on the strength of that belief.

Long ago and pharaoh way

By PAUL BENNETT

Robin Cook, a surgeon as well as an author, became an overnight sensation with his first major novel, the medical thriller Coma.

Sphinx, his second work, has little in common with it except that the principal protagonist is a sensitively outlined, determined woman.

Cook has had a lifelong interest in Egyptology and his scholarship shows through in many ways, providing some insights into the ancient civilization that many a visitor to the King Tut exhibition will remain unaware of.

In Sphinx, Egyptologist Erica Baron stumbles across a fabulous statue of a pharaoh in the back room of a Cairo antique store. Her discovery sets in train a series of gruesome murders and an attempt on her own life.

The culmination is Erica's unravelling of the mystery of a far more valuable treasure than Tutankhamen's, a mystery set in train 3,000 years previously by an adviser to the powerful pharaoh Seti I.

Willie Mays, called "the most electrifying ballplayer and the greatest individual crowd lure in the history of the game," is the focus of Willie's Time, Charles Einstein's breezy, engaging pastiche of statistics, anecdotes and social-political history spanning Mays' active career from Truman to Nixon.

Einstein views the sweeping postwar civil rights movement from the pressbox of a ballpark: In 1947, Jackie Robinson's first year in the majors, the St. Louis Cardinals at first refused to take the field against a black player. In 1964, "with Barry Goldwater saying you cannot legislate what is in men's hearts, white and black Cardinal players hugged and kissed one another in celebration of their World Series victory over the Yankees."

The author's case for baseball as the unique element that "triggered the great civil rights revolution" is fascinating, but overstated. (Two decades before the integration of baseball, jazz musicians of all colors were performing together — if not yet in public — with far-reaching consequences for the Rock Generation that never saw the inside of a ballpark.)

Einstein fleshes out his book with long quotes from such well-combed sources as Harry Truman's Plain Speaking, William Manchester, Bernstein and Woodward. Succumbing to the baseball buff's incurable mania for statistics, Einstein dwells on esoterica that soon tires readers less than bedazzled by the national pastime. Where Einstein shines, however, is with a wealth of baseball yarns far more absorbing than the game itself. When a sportswriter in the depths of the Depression reminded Babe Ruth he was making more money than Hoover, the Babe deadpanned, "I had a better year than he did." The stuff on Satchel Paige, the legendary black pitcher, is pure gold: "One time Cool Papa Bell hit a line drive past my ear. I turned around and saw the ball hit his ass sliding into second." Maybe. But it's no tall tale that Willie Mays once "scored from first on a single to first" and that's running.

Despite the overlay of statistics, Willie's Time has much to enchant the lay reader, while baseball fiends will find the book an absolute necessity. Most of all, Einstein documents the crucial role of baseball in the civil rights struggle, drawing a skilful and loving picture of Willie Mays as the archetypal athlete of our time and a decent human being.

Morris follows the Naked Ape down a narrow and dead-end path

Desmond Morris endeared himself to millions of right-thinking people years ago when he became the first zoologist publicly to castigate zoos, not only for the physical and mental cruelty they inflict on animals but also as virtually useless institutions for scientific research. As a student of animal behavior (he studied at Oxford under ethologist Niko Tinbergen) he soon discovered that the behavior of captive animals is almost totally at variance with that of those in the wild, and as he became more disenchanted he switched his attention from mammals to homo sapiens. Hence The Naked Ape, published in 1967.

That brilliant ethological analysis put man firmly in his place — alongside the 192 other species of apes and monkeys, among which man is most easily distinguished by the nakedness of his skin. Despite his best efforts to ignore the genetic legacy of his evolutionary past, man remains then essentially a primate and, Morris argued, despite his erudition and inspirations, he still follows in all respects the fundamental patterns of behavior set down by his hunting-ape ancestors.

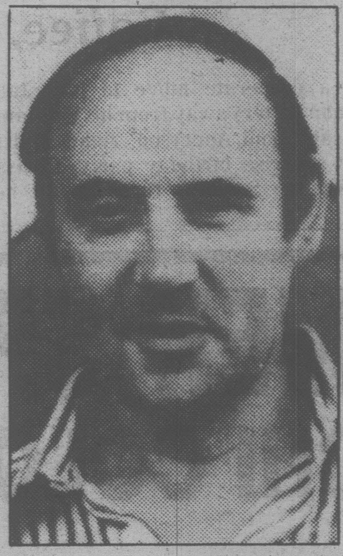
The whole range of human activities, gestures and emotions became suddenly and embarrassingly transparent to all who read that admirable study. Morris' insistence that man should recognize and try to understand the powerful biological forces that shape his life alarmed social scientists who had long concentrated on the variability of human behavior, and severely dented the thinking of anthropolgists and psychologists. We common people, on the other hand, were stimulated and delighted at finding a new method of self-scrutiny.

But the profoundest influence of The Naked Ape was on Morris himself. Scientifically observing the secret motivations of his fellow human primates became an irresistible occupation and there soon followed a book titled The Human Zoo. This was followed by Intimate Behavior, a book which hinted that the author was narrowing his field of observation from the general to the specific.

With the publication of Manwatching there was no longer any doubt. In that splendid book Morris concentrated on the powerful, unspoken language of expressive movements we use every day to communicate with one another. The emphasis was on the definition of many of our unconscious postures — hunting, mating, territorial ritual and so on — by which attitudes and feelings are signalled.

The question now became, where would he go from there? The answer, it turned out, was back to Oxford as a Research Fellow. What a pity. I suppose it was inevitable, but what a pity nevertheless. Morris has always been one of those rare scientists able to communicate with laymen cogently and entertainingly. Many try it, but most fail dismally; that's because it's a gift. And as many fine writers have discovered to their cost — a few historians and economists being notable exceptions — the surest way to lose the gift is to become immersed in a university atmosphere.

Upon entering a university, for some strange reason, a free spirit is transmuted into a scholarly academic, which demands being merely logical; that is abstract, unpractical and cold. What is it, I wonder, that overnight can change pellucidity into writing as ambiguous as the instructions that come with a Japanese-made calculator?



MORRIS . . . turns to academia

Anyway, to return to Morris. His work demands that he be part of the real world and by electing to become cloistered he is now observing mankind at second-hand by interpreting findings brought to him by others. And, as one would expect, the zing has gone out of his writing, which is now assuming the stodgy formulistic style so beloved of academics.

This is apparent in his latest book, Gestures, which is an analysis of the results of a field study made expressly to map the geographical distribution of human gestures and to show the variance in meanings from culture to culture. Morris' name appears on the title-page with three others, two academic psychologists and a language expert, and they may have influenced the style of presentation, although as project director Morris must be held responsible.

The region studied was western and southern Europe and the Mediterranean. It was chosen because it is a major region, covering a number of adjoining, but distinct linguistic areas. First, a preliminary study of the area was made and on the basis of that 20 key gestures were selected, such as the thumb up, the horn-sign, the V-sign, the fingers cross, the nose thumb, and so on. Then 29 workers and interpreters were sent into the field to conduct the actual research, following which the results were analyzed. The entire project took three years to complete.

Considering that the gestures are common ones, and that the subjects were chosen at random in public places, I would have thought that three months would have provided ample time. But then I'm ignoring the fact that Morris and his friends had to spin it out to justify the large grant they received from the Harry Frank Guggenheim Foundation in New York, a grant engineered by Morris' scientist friend Robin Fox.

Obfuscation comes naturally to the academic mind so it is never difficult to turn something simple into something complicated. Anyone who has travelled widely and managed to integrate himself into another culture knows that common gestures mean different things in different places. For example, to tap one's temple with the tip of a forefinger can mean either 'crazy' or 'intelligent' or nothing at all. A further example is the thumbs-up signal. In Britain it means all is well, but in Sardinia and Greece it is an obscene insult. Therefore, knowing that gestures do not travel well, it is wise to avoid using them when abroad.

A simple little book about gestures, published as a pocket guide to travellers, would be instructive and helpful, but what we have here is a full-fledged academic work, complete with tables, distribution maps, and histograms. In this way the simple tap on the temple is broken down into basic morphology, distinctive feature, selected symbolism, generic meaning and specific message — and voila! the gesture-student is born.

If Morris had written this book by himself before returning to Oxford, I hve no doubt it would have been stimulating, but undertaken with all the trappings customarily associated with an academic team project has complicated the subject to the point of ridiculousness. I know that many academics also deplore this kind of thing, but unfortunately they are always in the minority. If only academic dissidents of the world would unite in revolt. They have nothing to lose but their tenures.

Many people buy a book purely on the strength of having enjoyed an author's previous work, and it is precisely because of this that I have taken pains to point out that Desmond Morris has faltered and that the chief author of Gestures should not be confused with the author of Manwatching and in no fashion with the author of The Naked Ape. Save your money, ladies and genlemen, save your money.

Novel gives new dimension to Canadian Arctic

By WALT KELLYTHORNE

Although the comparison may be odious to some, this country is much like the United States in at least two important ways: the dominating culture of the present day is foreign, and the literature that comments on and amplifies that culture is often made by foreign-born writers who have chosen to settle on this continent for a greater or lesser time.

In Canada both these aspects of life are more apparent, still, than in the United States because this country is still expanding within its borders.

It would be tempting but irrelevant here to comment on the possible future clash between the French and English cultures, but it's more to the point to focus on the subtle takeover that whites — irrespective of origin — are practising in the north of this land. All the techniques that the Americans used to "win" the west — save, for the present at least, of wholesale slaughter of the natives — are being used by Canadians in the Arctic.

In such a situation many curiosities can be expected, among them what might be called reversals of the colonizing process. Thus The White Shaman.

And thus C. W. Nicol: born in Wales, long resident in Japan, Nicol made his first trip to Canada as a student to study bird life at Ungava Bay and the Belcher Islands. After returning from Japan in 1965 he worked for the Fisheries at St. Anee de Bellevue and made many trips to the Arctic. He now works for the Fisheries at Winnipeg and calls Canada home. The White Shaman is the first fictional fruit of Nicol's knowledge of the north.

It's difficult to believe in the fiction of this work: from the prologue spoken by Billy Toby at Tuktoyaktuk in May 1980 to the final page we are witnesses to a drama that ranks, say, with those recorded by Howard O'Hagan.

Richard Tavett, 18, is a Welsh biology student collecting samples for his professor. After a successful hunt he likes to play the blues on his harmonica. More importantly, though, Tavett is also Tikissi, "Boy-who-smiles" to the natives whose lives he shares and who admire his skills and enthusiasm for their land and their life. It's that love, eventually, that leads Tikissi into realms far removed from those he's lived in before — physically, emotionally and spiritually.

Seldom have those realms been so clearly delineated as they are in The White Shaman.

It's a cliche that bears repeating that an outsider's vision of a place is often more penetrating than that of those who live there; and this is not to denigrate C. W. Nicol's sheer talent as a writer, talent that forces its reader to stay with this book. Nicol's eye for the physical detail of the north is superb. Other dimensions of that land open for us, and it would be impossible for any reader to ever view the Arctic as a wasteland (much as Americans so long regarded Canada) after reading The White Shaman.

The native characters, too, are as live as the land: Noah, Joe, Ooniak, Annie and Ipeelee and their lives as hunters and fishers possess a reality that tenderly complements their physical setting to make a real and satisfying whole.

Into it all comes Tavett, Tik, Tikissi, self-styled " 'brother of the sea-creatures, brother of the loon and raven.' "

"He did not need the company of humans."

That pathetic fallacy is at the heart of the events that follow. Although the tragedy — if it can be called a tragedy — that inevitably ensues is the result of a goodly amount of misunderstanding and fear on the part of people who might be expected to know better, Nicol is not writing propaganda here. The people involved are too important for that, and we are not allowed the easy out of anger and accusation.

And echoing those words in his own way near the end of this story, the RCMP sergeant exclaims:

Spotlight on stars

By RUTH THOMPSON

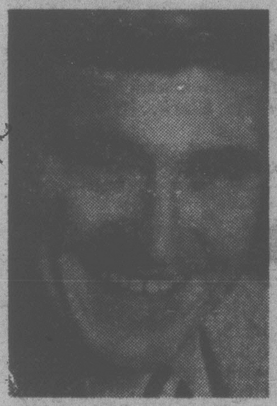
Ah, that Merv Griffin. He's a modern Pied Piper. After two years in Monaco, he has just moved his annual tennis tournament to Venice's lavish Lido resort area and lured along both celebrity players (among them: Ann Bancroft, Penny "Laverne" Marshall and Gene Wilder) and a coterie of celebrity rooters. Highlights of black-tie banquets, as well as footage of court matches fought out in the bright sunshine, are being edited into two 90-minute programs for Merv's 100-station lineup. But they won't be televised for another six weeks. So, in the meantime, here are a few sidelights from an eye-witness.

The most popular of the celebrity rooters was that fine actor and long-time star Trevor Howard. He cut into what was to have been one of his all too rare holidays at home in England because he says, "I like Merv, awfully decent fellow, and because this all benefits UNICEF and children. That's something we all want to help, isn't it?"

Jim Bacon, long known as a Hollywood columnist, a globe-trotter and author, will shortly bow as the host of his own syndicated television series, titled, fittingly, "James Bacon on the Go." Though he has "been in Italy 100 times," it took Merv to introduce him to the jet-set playground on the Adriatic. Worldly Jim flipped with enthusiasm and says he is originating his own first programs from the Excelsior and its sister Cigahotel, Des Bains, five minutes North along the beach.



Pied Piper Merv

The most visible, and vocal of the jet-set glamor girls was Dyan Cannon. With her tightly-frizzed long blonde hair flying in the breeze she whizzed back and forth across the lagoon via motor launch from the Lido's beach and tennis area to such downtown-Venice galas as a rooftop party at the Royal Danieli Hotel. Wherever she went, fans, cameras and two young, bronzed and handsome men followed. She brought no racquet to the tournament. However, as she squealed, "I may not be playing . . . but I'm winning!"

Since his "Father Brown: Detective" TV movie did not evolve into a series, Barnard Hughes now has the time block to do what he believes the stars of major Broadway hits should do: namely, tour them to other cities. So he has stepped out of the Broadway company of "Da," which brought him the 1978 tony Award as Broadway's Best Actor, and opens the first week in September in Toronto. From there it's on to Chicago, Los Angeles and half a dozen other cities.

Says Barney, "The Lunts (Lynne Fontanne) always felt obligated to tour. So do the Hume Cronyns (Jessica Tandy). I want to be numbered with them."

And, as with the Lunts and the Cronyns, the "Da" tour will be a family affair, with Barney's real wife, Helen Stenborg, stepping into the role of his stage wife.

Replacing Hughes in the Broadway company is Brian Keith, who starred in two long-run television shows, first as a bachelor father and later as an Hawaiian-based pediatrician.

Even if they asked her, Phyllis George would have to have said, "No thank you just the same" to again co-hosting the September 8 "Miss America" Pageant with Bert Parks. But since the pageant is a major television event (NBC) the Atlantic City fathers (mindful maybe of equal-time demands in political matters?) would hardly target Phyllis, the 1971 Miss America, this time around. Because — need you be reminded — Phyllis is the new wife of John Y. Brown who's campaigning to become the Governor of Kentucky.

Well, whatever. The pageant's seers did beckon a just as stunning — and even more logical — ex-wearer of the beauty crown. She's Mary Ann Mobley who won her Miss America title just 20 years ago in 1959.

ABC's entry, "Breaking Up Is Hard to Do," is a four-hour, two-parter set for Wednesday and Friday, Sept. 5 and 7. Robert Conrad stars as an embittered new "bachelor" and Tony Musante as a philanderer loving his "liberation."

Coffee, Tea or Jack

In a desperate move to lure Jack (John Ritter) away from his old flame Susan (Loni Anderson, right) and to his surprise birthday party, Chrissy (Suzanne Somers) turns on all her charms — and then some — in the encore telecast of Coffee, Tea or Jack on the ABC Television Network's comedy series, Three's Company, airing Tuesday, at 9 p.m., on Channel 4.

WHY SHOULD YOU BUY A HITACHI COLOR TV? The first reason would be because it has proven to be the most reliable TV on the market. It received top rating by one of the consumer magazines. In the last three years, we have had only one set break down which was a very minor problem. The second reason is the picture quality. Hitachi developed a new picture tube which gives you a brighter, sharper picture. Any Hitachi owner will tell you to buy a Hitachi. We service all our own sets and have special service rates based at cost for our own customers.
